Russians Protest Plans For Air Base In Tripoli

Moscow Radio Says Mellaha Proposal Would Violate Italian Peace Pact

London (Thursday), Jan. 29 (AP).—The Moscow Radio said today Russia had sent formal protests to the United States and Britain over American proposals to reopen the Mellaha Airbase, outside Tripoli.

The broadcast, quoting a Tass (Soviet News Agency) dispatch from New York, said Russia contended United States operation of the air field in the former Italian colony contradicted the terms of the Italian peace treaty.

The broadcast said "the American and British press stressed the great military strategic importance of this base, making possible the domination of the eastern and central Mediterranean.

Called Threat to "Democracy"

"It was also pointed out that reconstruction of the military air base in Mellaha constituted an act directed in the first turn against the countries of the new democracy in Europe."

(Russia and her supporting states reserve the term "democracy" for their forms of government.)

The U. S. Air Force announced January 14 in Frankfurt, Germany, that the Mellaha base would be reopened. It would be used as a service stop for Air Transport Command planes, the announcement said.

"The Tripoli base, closed last year, is being reopened because of the additional supply-carrying transport flights necessary to service American missions in the Middle East . . .," the announcement added.

The Moscow broadcast said "official representatives of the American State Department and of the British Foreign Office have confirmed reports on Britain's consent to place the Mellaha air base at the disposal of the United States Government."

32 Are Killed In California Plane Crash

Fresno, Calif., Jan. 28 (AP).—A chartered Immigration Service plane crashed and burned in Western Fresno County today, killing 28 Mexican deportees, the crew of three and an immigration guard.

The airliner appeared to explode over Los Gatos Canyon, near Coalinga, shortly after 10:30 a.m.

Nineteen bodies have been recovered from the smouldering wreakage. Most of those remaining in the plane were jammed into the forepart of the fuselage and mangled almost beyond recognition.

Irving F. Wixon, director of the U. S. Immigration Service at San Francisco, said the Mexicans were being flown to the deportation center at El Centro, Calif., for return to Mexico.

The crew was identified as Frank Atkinson, 32, Long Beach, the pilot; Mrs. Bobbie Atkinson, 28, his wife, stewardess; and Marion Ewing, 33, Balboa, co-pilot. The guard was Frank E. Chaffin of Berkeley.

The plane had been chartered from Airline Transport Carriers, of Burbank.

(Civil Aeronautics Board figures show 32 passengers and five crew members were killed in crashes of four nonscheduled planes in the United States in 1947.

(Five scheduled airliners crashed in 1947, killing 199 passengers and 17 crewmembers, the CAB figures showed.)

Southbound from Oakland airport, the plane crashed in view of some 100 road camp workers.

Foreman Frank V. Johnson said it "appeared to explode and a wing fell off" before it dived nose-first to the ground just off the road.

Johnson said several persons appeared to jump or fall before the plane hit.

The wreckage was enveloped in roaring flames when the fuel tanks ignited.

Defiant Senator T... Says He Won't Testify on Trading

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) and Dr. Ernest L. Klein of Chicago yesterday fired back at Government accusations that they had used their official positions in trading in commodities.

Both men were named on a list sent to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, investigating speculation in commodities by Government insiders, by Agriculture Secretary Anderson Tuesday.

Thomas said he will not appear at public hearings called to consider his trading activities and added that "they can't subpena me."

"They can't make a Roman holiday out of me," he declared.

The Senator said he has been in the markets for years, and added that he would demand that all other members of Congress reveal their financial transactions.

Klein, who served as a member of the United States reparations mission under the chairmanship of Edwin W. Pauley in 1946, demanded that Secretary of Agriculture Anderson clear his name of any accusation that he used inside information in his market transactions.

(Klein, a brother of Col. Julius Klein, former special assistant to Secretary of War Patterson, was incorrectly identified by The Washington Post Wednesday morning, as being a brother of Dr. Julius Klein of Washington, a personal adviser to former President Herbert Hoover.) (The Post regrets the error.)

"My services with the reparations mission took place in May, June and July, 1946," Klein said in a telegram to Anderson.

"I served without compensation and with great sacrifice to my personal affairs. At no time during this service did I personally, or through any agent, engage in any trading.

"It is not fair to place me on any list, which implies that I may have taken advantage of inside information for personal gain."

Thomas, referring to reports that agents of the income tax division of the Internal Revenue Bureau were investigating his accounts, said: "They can go back as many years as they want to go."

His total profits, he said, from speculation in 1946 were $3856.

Thomas said that he went to his brokers last week "and sold every security that I owned." He planned, he said, to offer an amendment to the Senate Rules requiring every Senator to file an annual financial statement, so all his colleagues will have "to go through what the committee made me go through—bare my financial transactions."

In his telegram to Anderson, Klein said:

"My services with the Reparations Mission took place in May, June and July, 1946.

"As a private citizen, nearly a year later, I made one small transaction in commodities in March, 1947, and a few small trades in

Balkan Union Idea Criticized By Pravda

Party Line Paper Opposes Suggestion of Bulgarian Premier

Moscow, Jan. 28 (AP).—The editors of Pravada, Communist party newspaper, today disavowed Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov's ideas for a Balkan-Danubian federation.

(By implication the Pravda declaration could also be considered as disowning a statement by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, in Sofia last November, that the network of mutual assistance pacts being woven in the Balkans was making federation "only a formality."

(Informed sources in London speculated that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's plan for a union of western Europe may have caused Russia to revise her policy of tightly knitting together the countries in her sphere.

Views of Diplomats

(Diplomats believe Russia may be pursuing a policy of divide and rule in her sphere in eastern Europe.

(Pravda's declaration was viewed as saying that what was needed was a strengthening of the Communist Party in each of the nations, not a federation.

(London diplomats believe Russia wants to keep the Balkan-Danubian states divided and dependent upon Moscow.

(They pointed out that in forging economic and cultural ties with her neighbors, Russia has pursued direct negotiations with one nation at a time. In developing political bonds her strategy has centered around support of the Communist parties inside the several states, a method which opens direct channels from Moscow for influencing the domestic affairs of each state.)

Statement Broadcast

The Pravda statement was broadcast by the Moscow radio but was not carried by any other Soviet newspaper. The statement declared Dimitrov's proposal was against the principles of the Communist International Information Bureau—the Cominform—of which he is a leading organizer.

Dimitrov said in a news conference at Bucharest, Romania, on January 17 that "when the time is ripe" the people of Bulgaria, Al-

Marshall Holds To 6.8 Billions As Aid Goal

Full Authorization Needed in 15 Months Period, He Declares

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

In spite of congressional talk of a compromise figure, Secretary Marshall persisted yesterday in saying that a full authorization of $6,800,000,000 was needed for the first 15 months of the European recovery program.

Reports of a compromise sprang from a Budget Bureau estimate that only $4,500,000,000 of this total would actually be disbursed in the 15-month period. Most of the remainder, amounting to $2,300,000,000, represented goods that would be shipped but not yet paid for by the end of the 15-month period, as well as goods contracted for but not yet shipped or paid for.

It was this gap which led Chairman H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee to say a few days ago that President Truman's budget figures for foreign aid were "phony."

Secretary Marshall told his press conference that if there were no authorization for the remaining $2,300,000,000 there could be no contracts for these supplies and no preparations for their delivery. Therefore, he said, he was not changing his previous statements that the full amount of $6,800,000,000 should be authorized.

Effect of Reduction

If you reduce the authority you reduce the whole program, he said.

The Secretary made one important concession, however, when he said the State Department would not object to having the ERP administered along the lines of the Brookings Institution report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

This plan would set up a separate Government agency, with an administrator of Cabinet rank and an advisory board, and with the Secretary of State able to go to the President whenever he felt foreign policy to be endangered.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has given many indications that it would recommend a scheme close to the Brookings proposals. Yesterday Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) suggested one minor change, putting the Secretaries of State, Com-

They 'Like to Jump'

Dog Paratroopers Are Trained To Rescue Plane Crash Victims

Westover Field, Mass., Jan. 28 (AP).—Dog paratroopers that "like the flying and like the jumps" are the United States Air Force's newest team for rescue of plane crash victims from winter wilderness.

The Air Transport Command announced today their first full-scale test of dropping dog teams with a trainer and a doctor will be made tomorrow in Labrador.

Dogs which have been trained in jumping all summer will bail out in special parachutes which open automatically.

The dogs solved the problem of flattening the chutes which might drag them in a wind on landing, an ATC spokesman said.

"Instinctively the dogs run to the chute and sit on it,' he said. Tomorrow's experiment will be the first full-scale operation in charge of Col. Paul A. Zartman, Goose Bay commandant.

Three planes will probably be used, a B-17 Fortress for the dogs and two others carrying the dog sled, the trainer and doctor with medical supplies and temporary shelters.

The ATC, which reported rescuing 48 persons from northern wastes last year, said the dog paratroopers should solve "the chief handicap—getting rescuers to the scene of the crash."

Once landed, the dogs' chutes can be unsnapped and their chute harness will also serve as the dog-sled harness.

The dog trainer will make the jump first and be waiting for his team. In practice jumps, the ATC reported, "the dogs seem to love it."

Parties Hit Head-on in Tax Rumpus

Feelings Boil As Knutson Bill Gets Clear Track To House Floor

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Party feeling boiled over in the House yesterday as Democrats and Republicans, in rival pep rallies, collided on the controversial Knutson bill.

The GOP's big general tax reduction measure, carrying a new 6.5 billion dollar price tag, received a clear track to the House floor from the House Rules Committee.

The ensuing party rumpus stole the thunder from today's formal opening of debate. The full Democratic membership heard the bill lambasted as a rash, hasty measure that would shake the Nation's economy and give "a windfall to the wealthy." Republicans in separate caucus heaped ridicule on the President's alternative tax plan and praised the Knutson bill as constructive legislation that would spur production and leave a fat surplus for the debt.

Democrats at Sea

Despite the show of almost solid Democratic opposition to the Knutson bill, Democrats were still at sea over what to offer as a substitute. Demands for information on the latter point echoed through yesterday's conference.

Former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) told reporters Democratic Ways and Means committeemen will "attempt to agree" on a recommit motion before the week is out. A report later circulated that another Democratic conference may be called.

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), first to balk at the President's proposal to give everyone $40 tax cuts and pay the cost with an excess profits tax, had this to say:

"A lot of Democrats want some tax reduction and unless something is presented to their liking, I'm afraid a lot of them will vote for the Knutson bill."

Rayburn, however, described Democratic sentiment against the Knutson bill as "pretty unanimous."

Party Lines Solid

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) told reporters:

"I asked any Republicans opposed to the bill to stand up. No one stood."

Enjoying the Democratic split over a substitute tax motion, Martin and Halleck again challenged Democrats to present the President's plan.

Martin predicted the bill would pass the House Monday with ease, but carefully refrained from forecasting a two-thirds majority (the margin needed to override a veto) in the initial House test.

He said "party feeling" was run

Citizens Get Home Rule Action Call

3 Commissioners Slated as First Witnesses at Hearing Monday

A "call to action" urging participation of all District citizens associations in the congressional hearings on home rule has been issued by Wilbur S. Finch, chairman of the national and local suffrage committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The hearings, to be held by a joint subcommittee of the Senate and House District Committees, will begin at 10 a. m. Monday and are expected to continue for about 10 days in the Caucus Room of the old House Office Building.

The three District Commissioners were assigned yesterday to be first witnesses Monday.

The hearings will be held in the mornings, Monday through Saturday.

Witnesses Listed

Testifying on the first day with the Commissioners will be Corporation Counsel Vernon West and Budget Officer Walter Fowler.

Witnesses for Tuesday include Federal Budget Director James E. Webb; United States Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren; Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Mrs. Kathryn H. Stone, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters.

For Wednesday the witnesses include Dr. Louis Brownlow, a former District Commissioner who conducted the study of reorganizing the executive branch of the Federal Government for the late President Roosevelt; Wilbur S. Finch, head of the Central Suffrage Conference; Kenneth Armstrong, treasurer of the Federation of Citizens Associations; John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Austin L. Fickling, chairman of the suffrage committee for the Federation of Civic Associations, and Mrs. Milton Dunn of the District League of Women Voters.

About 50 persons have applied to testify. The hearings will be conducted by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), chairmen of the House and Senate subcommittees on District reorganization and home rule.

Finch urged full support of the companion bills introduced by Senator Ball and Representative Auchincloss to reorganize the District government and grant home rule to the District citizens.

All member associations should have a representative testify in support of the bills or write to Representative Auchincloss in favor of their enactment, the federation official said. In any event, he continued, each citizens association should arrange for a group to attend these hearings not only on the opening day, Monday, but also on all days when the hearings are being held.

The Junior Board of Commerce will hear Dr. George Galloway, staff director of the Home Rule Subcommittee of the House District Committee, explain the Auchincloss bill at a 12:30 p. m. luncheon today at the Hotel Burlington.

Ginsberg Says Housing Group's Investigation Is Boost to Business

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Isadore Ginsberg, the roly-poly 301-pound gypsum dealer, yesterday heard a congressional committee air charges of larceny and threaten him with a contempt citation but wound up by insisting the hearings were good for his business.

The building materials peddler from New York was the star witness at an uproarious session of the Joint Congressional Committee on Housing, which is investigating the "grey market" in building materials.

Ginsberg escaped possible contempt citation—which bears a maximum penalty of one year in jail and $1000 fine—when he agreed to turn over to the committee—in strict confidence—the whole list of his customers for scarce gypsum building materials.

During the noisy session, Gensberg heard Senator Joseph H. McCarthy (R., Wis.), committee vice chairman, accuse him of fleecing a crippled veteran out of $840.

He heard witnesses tell of larceny complaints against him filed with the district attorney in Queens County, N. Y., and he was told he was being investigated for possible mail fraud violation.

But Ginsberg shouted noisily he wasn't worried about all that: he wasn't guilty anyway, and when it came to a proper trial before "a proper tribunal" he'd prove it.

The New York dealer, who says he isn't a gray marketeer either,

Failure of Marginal 'Million Dollar' Deal Told by Bennett-Fey

By The Associated Press

Albert Bennett-Fey told Congressmen investigating the steel "gray market" yesterday that he "might" have had only $480 when he was proposing to buy a Warren (Ohio) steel mill for eight or nine million dollars.

Under oath before a House Public Works Subcommittee, Bennett-Fey testified he has also used the names of A. Terry Fahye and Alan Adams Hay. He lives in New York.

From Julius Klein, Philadelphia stove manufacturer, the committee got a story last Monday of Fayhe's offering to get him 10,000 tons of steel if he would pay a price netting Fayhe $1,100,000.

The so-called "gray market" is sale of steel at abnormally marked-up prices from the mill price. Such sales are not illegal, but Congress has had complaints that the gray market adds to inflation.

Bennett-Fey said his "deal" to buy the Copperweld Steel Co. in Warren "fell out" because the company wanted one million dollars for an option.

"I didn't have the million, so nothing happened," he said.

"Isn't it a fact that you had approximately $480 in the bank at that time?" asked John Reddan, committee counsel.

"It might have been $480 or $4800 or $54," Bennett-Fey answered.

The plump, hand-waving witness said he next became interested in having one of his companies, the Ferrocraft Corp., buy a Govern-

200,000 More Talk Strike In Germany

Over 4 Million Now Considering Walkouts On Food Shortages

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 28 (AP). Protests over food shortages threatened tonight to result in strikes involving more than four million German workers in the British-American zones.

The latest threat came from the hitherto quiet Lower Saxony industrial area, where labor circles said 200,000 workers might walk out next week.

Previously one million workers in Wuerttemberg-Baden in the American zone and three million in the British-administered Ruhr and Rhineland areas were reported considering strikes.

An informant in Hamburg said a secret decision by trade unions in Hannover to strike on Tuesday would be announced tomorrow. Such a call would bring out 150,000 workers.

French Win Accord On Saar Coal Output

Paris, Jan. 28 (NYHT).—The French Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced tonight that it has finally won Anglo-American agreement to turn the Saar's coal over to France.

France has progressively absorbed that former German territory into the French economy. The agreement worked out in Berlin states that transfer will be gradual. Within 15 months it is expected that total Saar production—about 12 million tons a year—will be at France's disposal.

8 Americans Feared Lost in European Crash

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 28 (AP). All U. S. Air Force rescue agencies were ordered tonight to hunt a missing C-47 transport plane which had three American women and five children aboard.

The craft also carried a crew of four. It was lost soon after leaving Istres, France, Tuesday morning for Udine, Italy. The passengers were dependents of United States servicemen and were en route to the Trieste occupation area.

Air force officials said they feared the plane had fallen into the Mediterranean.

Slight Rise In Mercury Due Today

A Northwest cold front yesterday thumbed its icy nose at the local weatherman, and pushed back the snowstorm predicted to hit here from the South.

The new cold, from the North Central States, was expected to push the city therometer down overnight to eight degrees and tumble suburban readings to around zero, the weatherman said.

he said, and a temperature high of about 30 degrees.

A low tonight of 20 degrees will be followed by mostly cloudy tomorrow.

Washington registered a near-hit on the predicted one to 3-inch snowfall. It dropped from four to 16 inches on Tennessee en route here and tapered off up through Virginia almost to the District line.

Freeze-up condition of upper reaches of the Potomac River yesterday led to Coast Guard action to evacuate personnel from four river lighthouses reported threatened by drifting ice. The Coast Guard cutter Madrona was dispatched to evacuate keepers from lighthouses at Maryland Point, upper Cedar Point, Mathias Point and Ragged Point.

Winter's siege of snow and bitter cold extended yesterday from the Rockies to the Gulf and the Atlantic seaboard. Snow, ice and freezing rain plagued the South. Heavy snow fell in usually dry Mexico.

Word of relief from the longest siege of cold since 1936, however, came from Chicago yesterday. The frigid weather, said observers there showed signs of breaking up. A "warm wave," ending the two-week cold spell was due to hit the Midwest today, forecasters said.

Washington's weatherman verified the good news. With no new storms brewing in Canada, he said, Washington can look to compara-

Cost-of-Living U. S. Pay Raises Strongly Urged by Anderson

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson yesterday put himself squarely on record for a general cost-of-living pay raise for Federal workers.

In testimony before the Senate Civil Service Committee, the Secretary put forth his best argument in behalf of top-bracket employes and officials. He made it plain, however, that he also favored pay raises for all Federal workers to help them meet substantially higher living costs.

The outspoken Cabinet member made known his personal views in spite of the President's recent statement that he was opposed to cost-of-living pay raises at this time.

Anderson cited facts and figures to support his views. He told the committee how he had lost many of his best employes and officials because of the tight Federal salary structure, particularly the $10,000 ceiling on Classification Act salaries. Anderson explained::

"We lose these people not because they want big salaries, but because they see such a definite limit to security in the Federal service."

He added that he could have kept most of the people who had quit "if I had been able to offer them enough money so they would have been able to do the things they were accustomed to before the war."

Meantime, it was learned that the Administration has completed

Gasoline Is Cut Back To Help in Oil Shortage

Industry Starts 60-Day Program; District Gets Fuel From Navy

The petroleum industry yesterday instituted a 60-day cutback in gasoline production to help meet the critical fuel oil shortage.

In addition, the National Petroleum Council asked for a step-up in fuel oil production, a seven-day week in loading an unloading fuel oil supplies and the pooling of supplies and transportation facilities.

Meanwhile, Washington was receiving some help from the Navy Department, which loaned the city enough oil for about one week of emergency use.

Action Voluntary

The Petroleum Council's voluntary action, coming with approval of Attorney General Tom Clark, is a temporary move, with virtually all the Nation's companies joining in.

An Interior Department spokesman said that most producers have reduced the gasoline out-put in order to make a larger percentage of their petroleum stocks available for production of fuel oil.

To help Washington, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Mark E. Andrews authorized transfer to the District of 17,500 barrels, or 735,000 gallons of Diesel oil from Navy stocks at Norfolk, Va.

Orders have been issued to have the fuel sent here immediately from Norfolk, to augment the limited shipment coming up the ice-filled Potomac River by barge.

Won't Last Long

J. Thomas Kennedy, chairman of the District Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee, said plans for distribution of the Navy's oil loan will be made this afternoon.

"I don't think it's going to last more than a week even on an emergency basis," Kennedy said. The diesel oil, he said, can be used in home burners, but may not be usable by all larger users which require heavier oil.

District institutions have not been affected by the oil shortage beyond the general 15 per cent reduction set as a conservation measure said Roland M. Brennan, District purchasing officer. All fuel oil for District buildings is furnished through the Treasury Department's Bureau of Supply, he said.

As a means of aiding the national fuel oil crisis, Attorney General Clark yesterday ruled that the Nation's fuel oil producers and dealers could pool their resources to meet the fuel shortage without risking antitrust proceedings.

Ruling Asked by Krug

Interior Secretary Krug had requested the ruling on a voluntary program suggested by the petroleum industry, involving cutbacks in gasoline production to step-up fuel oil output and other measures.

James Brown, secretary-treasurer of the National Petroleum Council, said last night that producers would be notified of the ruling, but he declared that many companies already had individually taken action to increase fuel oil production.

The American Petroleum Institute announced yesterday that petroleum production hit a new high level, for the third straight week. For the week ending January 24, the institute said, daily average gross crude oil output was 5,336,287 barrels, compared to 4,671,550 barrels a year ago.

Ice Breakers at Work

All day yesterday, Coast Guard ice-breakers labored through the ice-filled Potomac to aid oil barges headed here.

One barge, loaded with 450,000 gallons of domestic-type fuel oil and 100,000 gallons of kerosene was due to dock last night at the American Oil Co. pier just south of Key Bridge.

Clearing the way for this barge and the tug towing it was the ice-breaker Mohican, the second Coast Guard vessel sent to aid this area. The ice-breaker Madrona yesterday was diverted from barge duty to assist in evacuating lighthouse keepers near the mouth of the Potomac.

Fuel Oil Coordinator Kennedy said he also received a report yesterday that three oil-laden Standard Oil Co. barges were enroute here.

Steelworkers Say They'll Ask Pay Rise

UAW Complaint

GM Charged With Labor Law Violation

A complaint that General Motors Corp. violated the Taft-Hartley labor law was filed yesterday by Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Acting on charges made by the CIO United Auto Workers union, Denham alleged that GM:

1. Refused to bargain with the union on a union-proposed insurance plan, and

2. Sought to compel the workers to accept a company insurance plan drafted without consulting the union.

Meantime Denham can apply at any time for a Federal Court injunction to halt the alleged unfair labor practices until the NLRB examiner can rule on them.

A spokesman for Denham's office said yesterday that "we are seriously considering" applying for such an injunction.

There was no immediate comment from General Motors officials.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the union, declared that the company was trying to "jam through" what he termed a substandard insurance plan by Sunday, one month before negotiations are opened on a new contract.

Denham's complaint — issued within a week after the union brought its charges—is the means provided under the Taft-Hartley law to send the case to a hearing before an NLRB examiner. The hearing will begin February 10 in Detroit. After the examiner makes his findings, the contending parties have an opportunity to challenge them. If they are not challenged, the findings stand as an NLRB decision. If they are disputed, the NLRB reviews them and makes its decision.

'Third Round' Since VJ-Day to Be Aim In April Parleys

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28 (AP).—The CIO United Steelworkers served notice today it will demand wage increases for 850,000 members at negotiations expected to start April 1.

The union disclosed its 170-man wage policy committee will meet in the steel capital February 18 "to prepare a program to lay before the steel industry calling for an increase in wages"—as part of the "third round" of pay hikes since V-J Day. That session will be preceeded on February 16 by a session, also in Pittsburgh, of the union's international executive board.

No hint as to the size of the pay demand was given. A union spokesman said the average hourly wage now is $1.546. In the first round of postwar raises in 1946, the steelworkers demanded 25 cents more an hour and settled for 18½, after a strike. Last year they asked "substantial raises" and settled, without striking, for benefits averaging about 15 cents an hour.

Contract Expires Next Year

Although the current contract with U. S. Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and other industry giants does not expire until April 30, 1942, the pact provides wage clauses may be reopened April 1 this year if either side desires. Wage negotiations must be concluded in 30 days, the contract specifies, or present pay scales continue in effect another year.

Union and industry spokesmen have expressed belief the contract's "no strike" pledge will hold good regardless of whether April negotiations bring the desired pay jump.

Wages Advanced 11% In Building Trades

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP).—Wage rates of union workers in the building trades advanced an average of 11 per cent last year in 25 cities of the north central region, the regional office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

Adolph O. Berger, regional director, said the average straight time rate for such workers increased from $1.75 on January 15, 1947, to $1.93 on January 2, 1948.

Anderson Asks Federal Raises

a study which showed that the $10,000 Federal official in 1940 had had his income in "real" dollars reduced to about $4800 as of today. In other words, it takes $10,000 today to purchase what $4800 would have bought in 1940. The $10,000-man hasn't been given an increase since that time.

In pleading for higher salaries, Anderson pointed out that when the Government has a job in which an official could make a mistake that would cost 100 million dollars then we'd better have the best man available in that job. But he said it was nearly impossible to hire that type of person today because of the inadequate salary scale.

The Agriculture Secretary threw his support behind the Flanders-Baldwin bill which would raise Cabinet members to $20,000; $17,500 for undersecretaries, and $15,000 for assistant secretaries. But he added that the department head should be given the authority to raise salaries in a few special jobs to meet outside competition.

Anderson said that about half of Agriculture's employes are paid less than $3500 a year and that they were in grades that start under $3000 a year.

Another witness, John Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission, told the committee that 12,000 Federal workers are paid less than $1000 a year each, and that more than 30,000 get less than $1500. Chairman Langer said he couldn't understand how these people could make out in these days.

N. P. Alifas, of the Machinists Union, urged the committee to write in a provision to the pay bill to give per diem workers a pay raise. He suggested that the 600,000 per diem employes be given an increase of 50 cents an hour on their July 1, 1946 base pay. Any increase given a per diem since that date would be deducted from the 50 cents.

The union official was critical of the Navy's wage board system which fixes the salaries of per diems. He said the increases given here recently to Gun Factory employes were inadequate. He also proposed that unions be represented on the wage boards.

A spokesman from the American Federation of Labor indorsed the Lange-Chavez bill to give most all Federal employes a flat increase of $1000. CIO President Philip Murray has been invited to testify.

A proposal that Federal wages be tied to the cost of living was made by Representative Katharine St. George (R., N. Y.), a member of the House Civil Service Committee. She said such a system would be more equitable than a flat amount. Mrs. St. George, who has a pay bill pending in the House, urged the Senate committee to make a pay raise retroactive to January 1. Another House member, Representative Smathers (D., Fla.), indorsed the bill to give postal employes $1000 more each.

The committee yesterday suspended hearings for several days as Chairman Langer will be out of the city. Meantime, the Administration will draft a statement to explain the personnel ceiling law for the committee.

Langer quizzed Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming and Joseph Winslow of the Budget Bureau on the operation of the law. When it appeared that the number of Federal workers were now in excess of the legal ceilings, Langer warned that the agencies were inviting the "meat ax."

Mercury Due To Rise Today

tively moderate weather by this weekend.

Yesterday's temperatures here ranged between a low of 12 degrees at 7:42 a.m. to the day's high of 26, at 3:54 p.m. It marked the sixth consecutive day the thermometer here hasn't gone above the freezing mark.

Occupational and recreational casualties to the sustained cold continued to pile up yesterday. Traffic accidents were many but, for the most part, too minor to require official report. Sledding mishaps and falls on icy streets sent old and young to hospitals.

Frank Dabole, 13, of 4418 Georgia ave. nw., slipped and fell on ice at Western and Kansas aves. nw., at 6:20 p. m., yesterday, biting his tongue deeply. Several stitches weer required to close the wound at Garfield Hospital.

Margaret Morris, 19, of 712 3d st. ne., who fell on cie at 3d and G sts. ne. at 2:45 a. m. yesterday, was reported in good condition last night at Casualty Hospital. She suffered possible fracture of the left shoulder.

Other sledding mishaps and falls included:

200,000 Idled

Detroit Area Gas Short, Plants Stop

Detroit, Jan. 28 (AP).—A curtailment of industrial gas to the Detroit area idled an estimated 200,000 factory workers today, but the effect on auto production this week probably will be less severe than originally anticipated.

Ward's automotive reports estimated the production loss for the week will total about 15,000 cars and trucks in the United States and Canada. The agency said that while Chrysler faced a possible loss of more than 10,000 passenger cars output this week, Ford and General Motors are not affected materially. Ward's said last week's United States production was 105,800 cars and trucks.

The curtailment of gas to industrial plants was ordered by the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., for at least a week and was attributed to the current cold wave and a natural gas shortage.

In addition to Chrysler Corp., the Briggs Manufacturing Co., and scores of smaller industries in the Detroit area felt the effects of the curtailment.

Gas Supply Is Cut Off From 600 Ohio Plants

Cleveland, Jan. 28 (AP).—East Ohio Gas Co. announced today a 100 per cent curtailment of gas supplied to the some 600 northern Ohio industries on its lines, to continue until the cold snap ends. Residential consumers were unaffected.

Lubbock, Texas, Mayor Asks Business Holiday

Lubbock, Tex., Jan. 28 (AP).—An acute gas shortage in 44 South Plains towns brought a call for an emergency business holiday today as bitter cold throughout the State and new snowfalls, over large areas already ice-locked, tightened winter's paralyzing grip on Texas.

Mayor A. C. Bestwick of Lubbock, one of the largest cities affected by the gas shortage, asked business houses here to remain closed today and all residential users to use as little gas as possible. Temperatures throughout the area were only a few degrees above zero.

LCI Will Try to Free Ice-Locked Auto Barges

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28 (AP).—The United States engineers office said here today an LCI would be sent upstream tomorrow in an effort to free 12 ice-blocked barges in the Ohio River near Newburgh, Ind.

The barges were loaded with 406 new automobiles, valued at approximately $500,000.

Gasoline Cutback Ordered In Critical Oil Shortage

trict followed a report from L. P. Steuart & Sons here stating that its fuel oil supplies were exhausted, said Commissioner Guy Mason.

Kennedy, accompanied by William H. Press, executive secretary of the Board of Trade, sought the aid of the Senate Small Business Committee, headed by Senator Wherry of Nebraska.

Senator Wherry then arranged for the Navy loan, which must be returned "in kind" by June 30, 1948. A loan on a similar basis was made to the State of Virginia the previous day.

The majority of the Navy loan here will probably be distributed by a local oil company, said Kennedy. Earlier it was reported that the Steuart Co. would be the distributor, but Kennedy said no definite arrangement will be made until today.

Appeals for emergency allotments of gasoline and kerosene jammed the four telephone lines into Kennedy's office in Municipal Center yesterday, where limited deliveries are made from set-aside in the District's emergency stocks.

Electric Fan Helps Keep the House Warm

To keep warmer these cold days, put that electric fan to work.

Eperiments conducted by General Electric engineers have proven that a strategically placed electric fan can increase the temperature of the average room four to six degrees, at bridge table level.

The trick is to so place the fan that it deflects warm air from the radiator or register to a point midway on an adjacent wall and two feet from the ceiling. This keeps the warm air in over-all circulation instead of hugging the ceiling.

Fur Farmers May Get Eight Million Credit

By The Associated Press

Things are tough for the farmers who raise silver foxes intended for milady's coats Senators agreed yesterday.

So the Senate Agriculture Committee recommended that eight million dollars of Government credit be made available to all fur farmers.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), author of the special credit, declared Soviet Russia and other Nations are dumping raw furs into this country to get dollars. He said Government loans are needed to enable American fur farmers keep their breeding stocks.

Inflation Seen Driving Cities Bankrupt

If Congress fails to enact inflation controls this session, cities in the United States will have to go bankrupt or be "bailed out" by State and Federal governments. Hubert H. Humphrey, Mayor of Minneapolis, said yesterday.

The dynamic young mayor was testifying before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, which is studying Administration proposals to curb the high cost of living.

But even while he spoke leaders on the other side of the Capitol were making it plain that except for rent-control extension, Congress will pass no anti-inflation legislation this session.

Wolcott Gives Opinion

Chairman Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee said he believes Congress will not enact any price or wage controls or establish priority or rationing in any field during this session.

Wolcott said he thought the committee had set a pattern when it refused to grant controls over the use of grain in distilling.

Most informed observers at the Capitol concur with Wolcott's estimate of the situation.

The plight of some victims of inflation—the family of eight who on Tuesday begged Congress to lower prices because they couldn't live on $40 a week—touched the heart of Washington yesterday.

The Washington Post received offers from a dress shop for a new dress for Mrs. Cyrus J. Waud of Camden, N. J., who told the Senate Banking and Currency Committee Tuesday she never bought a new frock because all the family income had to go for food, clothing, and shelter of the brood of six children under 11.

Clothes Offered

Offers also were made of clothes for the children and a winter coat for Mrs. Waud.

In New York a Florida fruit grower said he was sending a month's supply of oranges to the family, whose soup factory worker father had said he couldn't afford to buy them.

The Washington Post has referred all inquires to the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers union headquarters here. It was the union that paid the expenses of the Wauds to lay their plight before the Congress.

The Wauds were baring the pitiful story of their family budget, however, not to receive individual charity but to bring home to Congress the fact that there are millions of others who need help to push down the high cost of living.

Humphrey told the Senate Committee yesterday he was speaking not only as mayor of Minneapolis but also as vice chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal and anti-Communist group.

Outlay Plan Cited

In 1948, he said the city of Minneapolis will spend approximately 7 million dollars for materials and goods exclusive of personal services. The sum, he said, will purchase approximately the same amount as could have been purchased for $4,120,000 in 1945.

"The American city is being victimized by uncontrolled inflation," Humphrey declared, urging action to control prices, ration scarce goods, and curb excessive profits.

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) lashed out angrily at a representative of the Illinois Manufacturers Association who told the committee that price control and rationing would "take over management of industry."

"That's absolutely silly," Tobey declared. "It's a figment of imagination."

Truman Plea Due For Grain Controls

President to Ask Congress Today to Extend Authority

President Truman will ask Congress today to keep controls on grain for whisky-making, it was reported last night.

A bill continuing power to allocate scarce grain to distillers was pigeonholed by the House Banking Committee Tuesday. Unless action is taken by Saturday, the Nation's distillers will open full-blast Sunday morning.

Present allocations limit the use of grain by distillers to 2,450,000 bushels for January, against consumption last year of almost 8,500,000 bushels in the same month.

A full report of the failure of the distilling industry to join in a voluntary agreement to conserve grain was sent to the White House last night. Several distillery representatives had joined with him. Agriculture Secretary Anderson said, in asking for curtailment of the use of grain.

"They did so for public relations reasons," Anderson said. "They know that whisky is on the wrong side of any argument between it and bread."

Sen. Thomas Won't Testify

October, November and December, 1947.

"I request that you review the information given by your department to clear me of the unfounded imputations that I have abused my position as a servant of the Government."

Made Public Tuesday

Thomas' name, that of his wife and a secretary, Miss Beth Gage, were on the list of Government officials and employes who had been speculating in commodities made public Tuesday.

Thomas previously had acknowledged his tradings. The Senate Appropriations Committee, of which Thomas is a member, seeks to learn if any public employes had profited by inside information in their speculative dealings.

The Senator said he had "not one penny" of interest in the tradings of Miss Gage. "She has a little money on an original investment of $400," he said.

Thomas said that when he was first elected to the Senate in 1926 he sold out all his property in Oklahoma, and quit his law practice. "I was losing $10,000 a year trying to manage it at long range," he said. Having no other business interest, he said he invested in stocks and commodities.

He has recently, he said, disposed of all such holdings.

Curiosity Unsafe

Lincoln, Neb. (U.P.)—Raymond L. Hartman was curious about an accident involving two automobiles. He drove close to the scene of the wreck. Hartman's car collided with another, and he paid a $15 fine in Municipal Court for careless driving.

ISIDORE GINSBERG

Ginsberg Calls Hearing 'Help'

disclosed that he is a lawyer of vast experience, a professor of mathematics and the holder of five college degrees.

After the hearing he told reporters he didn't have to be a mathematics wizard to figure out how these hearings had helped his business.

Before these hearings, he said, he had always had to pay cash for the transactions in which he played the middleman.

"But now they read in the papers about all the money I'm making," chuckled Ginsberg, "they give me credit."

After the hearing, Ginsberg turned to McCarthy and offered to bet the Senator wouldn't succeed in putting him out of business.

"Well it wouldn't break my heart to see you out of business," quipped McCarthy.

The session saw Congressmen shouting at Congressmen as well as Ginsberg shouting at everyone.

Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.) objected to McCarthy's asking some witnesses, who said they were creditors of Ginsberg's, to testify, and he didn't think the committee should go into the grand larceny charges either.

"This committee is not a debt collection agency," said Patman. "This witness is not a type to be admired. In some ways he is actually repulsive but his rights should be respected."

Patman agreed with Ginsberg that the Senator from Wisconsin had no right to call the dealer "a vicious gray marketer" when there is no law governing the so-called gray market.

Patman protested repeatedly against presentation of evidence which might later be used in criminal proceedings against Ginsberg. The laws—both civil and criminal—are sufficient, Patman said, and the matter is not one for a congressional committee.

"Anyway," added Patman, "the whole hearing is a farce."

Of Ginsberg, who says he doesn't mind being called "Mr. Five-by-Five," McCarthy had this to say:

"He buys gypsum—a scarce building material used as laths and partitions—and resells it at a large profit. This runs up the cost of housing to veterans and it is gray marketing."

Ginsberg viewed his operations differently—indeed as a positive boon to housing. He said he bought gypsum in New York and Massachusetts, where there isn't so much new housing. And by shipping that to where it's badly needed, he's performing "a public service, at a modest 16 per cent profit."

And Patman said that it was only natural that people would sell material to the person who paid the most for it.

Representative Muhlenberg (R., Pa.) put in that the Birdsboro plant "doesn't even make ingots."

Bennett-Fey acknowledged under questioning that his Ferrocraft company never made or sold any steel and had no income.

Then, in a burst of shouted words, he told the committee:

"There are lots or high-grade gentlemen who want to make money with me, but as soon as it's found out it all goes blooie. Everybody blames me. It all goes back to the eleventh commandment, 'Thou shalt not be found out.'"

Bennett-Fey denied that Irving Wexler, alias Waxey Gordon, one-time New York beer racketeer, was involved in deals with him.

"Is he an associate of yours?" Reddan asked.

"No, sir," the witness said. "The only deal I ever had with him was four years ago about some beer boxes."

Get Come-Uppance

West Chester, Ia. (U.P.)—Mrs. Homer Porter was surprised to find about 150 grasshoppers in her home in midwinter.

Investigation revealed that the insects had hatched in some flower pots that she brought into the house last fall. When attacks with a fly swatter proved unsuccessful, Mrs. Porter tried the vacuum cleaner. Finally she doused the flower pots with hot water in which cigarette stubs had been steeped.

"The water was too hot for the grasshoppers, but not hot enough for the plants," Mrs. Porter said.

Supporting 3 Families Keeps One Man Busy

Bellfontaine, Ohio (U.P.)—Husbands who think they are having a hard time meeting the high cost of living might consider the case of William Henlon, 24. He's supporting three families.

Henlon was brought into court here on a charge of nonsupport. He pleaded guilty and promised to pay $180 support-money, accumulated since August 11, 1947, and $10 a week in the future for the support of his second wife and one child.

Henlon also is paying $15 per week for the support of his first wife and two children. And he is living with and supporting a third wife at present.

NAM Suit Attacks Legality Of Lobbyists Registration Law

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The National Association of Manufacturers—which pays five registered lobbyists a total of $67,500 a year—attacked the lobby listing law in the District Court yesterday.

This law was passed in 1946 to require lobbyists to report who is paying them, and how much and what for. There was, however, no limit placed on their activities.

The NAM asked the court to rule on the constitutionality of the law and, meanwhile, to restrain Attorney General Tom C. Clark from enforcing it.

Clark has been investigating lobby law violations for months. On January 14 he ordered Special Prosecutor Irving R. Kaufman to take cases to the grand jury.

Attorneys Carl McFarland, Ashley Sellers and Raymond S. Smethurst filed the NAM suit, which said the listing law deprived the NAM of due process of law by violating its freedoms of speech, press, assembly and petition to Congress, by subjecting it to an unlawful search of its records and by forcing it to give evidence for use against it in criminal cases. The suit said, too, that the penalties—which are as high as $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison—were cruel and unusual punishments.

The law calls for three kinds of reports. One must be filed by a paid lobbyist before he does anything for or against a bill. As long as he does nothing, he does not have to file.

A paid lobbyist who has filed the first type of report must make a quarterly statement, to the House and Senate, telling what bills he was hired to boost or oppose and what money he has received and spent.

The third type of report must be filed by all who take money for lobbying—whether they file the other two reports or not. This must name all who gave the lobbyist $500 or more and all to whom he paid $10 or more and must state the totals received and spent.

There are five NAM men among the 1000 persons who have filed reports under the law. They are:

Walter Chamblin, Jr., vice president in charge of the NAM Washington office, pay $25,000 a year, and expenses of $2591.10 for the last three months;

Ralph T. Compton, pay $15,000 a year and expenses of $610.38 for the last three months;

Carey R. Sutlive, pay $8000 a year and $300.92 expenses for the last three months;

William S. Neal, pay $12,000 a year, with no expenses reported for the last three months; and

James M. Brewbaker, pay $7500 a year, and expenses of $1115.06 for the last three months.

The expenses reported were for taxis, meals, entertainment and the like. Besides these, the NAM pays for secretaries, telephones, telegraph services and other costs for its headquarters in the Investment Building.

The NAM itself has filed no reports under the law. The suit filed yesterday said the business group really was acting for its 16,000 members and might not be required to register, but that limited reports were being gotten up and would shortly be sent to the Capitol. These reports, the suit said, will not comply with the words of the law and the NAM may be subjected to penalties.

Morris Sayre, NAM president, said in a statement yesterday that his group was a service organization "with relatively little interest in lobbying as it understands that term." On the other hand, he added, "NAM has never sought to conceal its interest in legislation affecting the national welfare." And "once the law is interpreted clearly the NAM, like any other citizen, will comply with the spirit as well as the letter."

Stassen Needles Dewey on Debate

Durham, N. H., Jan. 28 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen today announced he is ready to debate with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on foreign and domestic issues in their campaign for the Republican presidential nomination anywhere, anytime in the United States.

Stassen's assertion came at a press conference during his tour of New Hampshire campaigning for delegates in the State's first-in-the-Nation primary on March 9.

Asked whether his comment could be considered a challenge to Dewey, Stassen replied:

"I would accept an impartial invitation."

Earlier Stassen had called on Dewey to come out in the open on issues and told a luncheon of Exeter, N. H., businessmen:

"If he remains silent on the issues, that in itself is an issue."

Stassen said he anticipated Dewey may "change his tactics" since the New York Governor's announcement he is entering the Oregon primary.

"He may have now decided to discuss the issues," said Stassen.

The 40-year-old former Governor of Minnesota clearly set the way for a possible showdown in the New Hampshire primary only six weeks away and said the outlook in the Granite State for him was good.

"I hope to win a majority of the eight delegates," he said.

Dewey Assistant Says 'No Comment'

Albany, Jan. 28 (U.P.)—James C. Hagerty, executive assistant to Governor Dewey, said tonight there would be "no comment" on Harold E. Stassen's willingness to debate with Dewey on issues of the 1948 presidential campaign.

Roper Survey Backs Gallup On Eisenhower

A survey by Fortune magazine, made public last night, showed that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was the only man who topped President Truman as the popular choice for the White House.

This confirmed an earlier Gallup Poll, published in The Washington Post.

Fortune's survey, conducted by Elmo Roper before General Eisenhower removed himself from the race and before Henry Wallace announced his candidacy on a third-party ticket, showed that Thomas E. Dewey, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Harold E. Stassen were virtually tied for third place.

Stassen Backers Cheered

Following is a summary of public preferences, as between Mr. Truman and each of six possible Republican candidates suggested by Fortune:

	Truman	Opponent	Undecided
Truman vs. Eisenhower	34%	48%	18%
Truman vs. Dewey	43	40	17
Truman vs. MacArthur	42	38	20
Truman vs. Stassen	40	36	24
Truman vs. Warren	42	31	27
Truman vs. Taft	52	27	21

Stassen supporters were especially cheered by these results, which indicated that the former Minnesota Governor had narrowed the gap between himself and Dewey. They were impressed, too, by the on-the-fence or "undecided" vote in the test between President Truman and Stassen—24 per cent.

GOP Victory Expected

Although Mr. Truman, with General Eisenhower out of the picture, leads the field in the Fortun survey, Roper found that most people expected a Republican victory in '48. Forty-eight per cent of those polled said they expected the GOP candidate to win, as against 29 per cent who looked for a Democratic triumph. Thirty-seven per cent of the Democrats looked for a Republican to win.

Other findings in the survey were that, for the first time since VJ-Day, a majority of the people now expect another big war in this generation; that a majority now take a favorable view of labor unions, and that 62 per cent of the people would be content with "only a little income tax relief or none at all."

Most emphatic voters' mandate for '48, the survey showed, was: "Lower the cost of living."

Report Snyder Toppled Eccles Denied by Both

(See Business Outlook, by J. A. Livingstone. Page 15)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Reports that Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder toppled Marriner Eccles from the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board were exploded yesterday by both men.

Snyder said:

"To my knowledge, Mr. Eccles and I never had any scrap or argument."

Eccles, answering "persistent press and radio comments," said:

"I have no reason to believe that Mr. Snyder . . . had anything to do with my replacement as chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System . . . My relationship with the Treasury has never been on a more satisfactory basis."

Mystery Continues

Why President Truman decided to supplant Eccles, a pioneer New Dealer, with Thomas B. McCabe, a Philadelphia Republican, continued to be an official mystery.

Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said he proposed to find out what was behind the shake-up, which will leave Eccles as vice chairman of the board.

"I think the President put himself in a very weak position by what he has done," Tobey said. "I deplore it. I want to know who the forces were who went to the President and objected to Eccles and got him to remove him. I think the committee deserves to know. I propose to find out."

An informal poll by the Associated Press indicated that the Banking Committee, despite the grumbling, would vote to confirm McCabe as a member of the Federal Reserve Board. If the Senate itself did likewise, President Truman could then elevate the Philadelphian to the chairmanship.

Began Last Fall

Talk of a feud between Secretary Snyder and Eccles started last fall when, in testifying on Capitol Hill, they disagreed on the question of how to hold down inflationary bank credit.

At a news conference yesterday, Snyder told reporters that his view on that was well known to Eccles all along and added that "he will tell you that we have never had any scrap, as you call it." He said that there never had been any "impasse" so far as he and Eccles were concerned.

Eccles, for his part, recalled a holiday message that Snyder sent him on December 22. This mentioned the "fine understanding between the Federal Reserve System and the Treasury Department, which has made possible such a splendid record of cooperation during the past year."

Bolivia Seizes Plotters, Orders Martial Law

La Paz Bolivia, Jan. 28 (AP).—Bolivia is under state of siege (martial law) today. The government announced it had discovered a "revolutionary plot."

The siege was proclaimed yesterday upon publication of documents which, the government said indicated a revolt was to have started at 5 p. m. Sunday.

The attorney general ordered corut-martial proceedings against a number of persons arrested.

Inter-American Labor Group Barred in Peru

Lima, Peru, Jan. 28 (AP).—Peru ruled tonight that the Inter-American Labor Confederation may not function within Peruvian territory.

The confederation, with which the American Federation of Labor is affiliated, was set up at the Inter-American Labor Conference in Lima earlier this month. A headquarters was to have been established here.

The government said it had never been notified officially that the conference was being called in Lima.

Wallace Names 6 To Run Campaign

New York, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace today announced the names of six men who will work to put him in the White House on a third-party ticket.

Wallace announced the formation of a brain trust committee of five prominent persons who will head a "National Wallace for President Committee" and picked C. B. Baldwin, executive vice chairman of the Progressive Citizens of America, to be his campaign manager.

Elmer A. Benson, former governor of Minnesota and United States Senator, will head the committee. The co-chairmen are Singer Paul Robeson, Sculptor Jo Davidson, Rexford Guy Tugwell, professor of political science at the University of Chicago and a former Undersecretary of Agriculture during the Roosevelt Administration. Angus Cameron, editor-in-chief of the publishing firm of Little, Brown and Co., will serve as treasurer of the committee.

Brig. Gen. Browning Stricken Ill on Yacht

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Former Brig. Gen. Albert J. Browning, 48, a special assistant to the Secretary of War during World War II, and a Ford Motor Co. vice president, is seriously ill in a Miami Hospital after being brought by boat from Cat Cay today.

His physician said he suffered a heart ailment on a yacht yesterday. His wife was with him.

Quakes in Philippines

Manila, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Four more earthquakes shook the central Philippines today and a Catholic priest who has inspected the worst stricken areas on Panay Island estimated damage since early Sunday at $3,500,000. The known death toll is 22.

Health Data to Issue From Social Parley

Delegates Pledged to Take Home Statement On Needs, Seek Help Toward Solutions

The delegates who attended the three-day conference on the Nation's social needs which ended yesterday will take back to their communities a positive statement on health needs.

They are pledged to acquaint their communities with those needs, and make every effort to secure citizen participation in solving them.

But the health problem which the Nation faces is one which delegates at the national conference are certain will require not only the help of individuals, but also the help of local, State and Federal Governments to solve.

If the Nation is to be healthy, it will need to step up by nearly 90 per cent the number of medical health officer positions in local health departments.

Making health units serve people rather than areas, the conference believes, would reduce health costs to $1.65 a person a year. But because taking this step would mean wholesale reorganization, present local and county organizations probably would not like such a plan.

One bottleneck in the health situation, the conference said, is the fact that poorer States cannot afford the number of hospital beds they need. In order to receive Federal aid to build new hospitals, the States must pay two-thirds of building costs. The conference would like to see a hospital bed, clinic or health center available to every American, no matter where he lives.

The conference also recognized the serious problem the country faces in training doctors. Delegates were told that we need more doctors now than ever before, and that if training services aren't stepped up, the Nation soon will be even "more seriously short" of need.

To step up this training, the conference wants bigger medical schools, better supported financially, and offering fewer drawbacks to promising students who can't pay high education costs.

Citizen Aid In Welfare Is Stressed

A strong plea for citizen participation in health and welfare services "in every community in the land" yesterday brought the three-day conference of the National Social Welfare Assembly to a close.

The plea was issued by Leonard W. Mayo, vice president of Western Reserve University, who declared that without citizen participation, "adequate progress in the development of social services has never been made in a single community."

Mayo defined proper health and welfare activities as designed "to prevent breakdowns or disintegrations in the lives of human beings, to conserve human life and enrich human relations."

Indifference Scored

"Whenever and wherever citizens have failed to participate to a reasonable degree in the direction and development of community services, it has been due, I dare say, quite as much to a lack of conviction and finesse on the part of the professional group as to any indifference or coolness on the part of lay citizens."

Mayo declared that not enough thought has been given "to the various methods by which potential leaders may be found and once found, properly 'briefed' and inducted into the intricacies of citizen participation."

Challenge Seen

He added that he believed now, more than ever before, "individual citizens, citizen groups and professional social workers are seeing the challenge of providing a higher quality of service and more adequate coverage as a team-work job."

The more than 300 professional and volunteer social workers who attended the conference are pledged to take the social problems presented at the conference back to their own communities and enlist citizen support in meeting such problems on the community level.

Some Refuse, Others Ignore X-Ray Recheck

Direct refusals and willful absentees for recheck X-rays in the city-wide campaign to track down tuberculosis were reported here yesterday.

Operators of the retake clinic, at Weightman School, 23d and M sts. nw., disclosed yesterday that out of 375 "suspects" called in for larger X-rays, 260 appeared, 34 asked for and were granted new appointments, 11 refused outright, and 70 just ignored the official request for a second filming.

The tabulation was for the first two days' operations of the retake clinic, where persons whose initial screening X-rays show signs of possible chest disorder. Records from previous surveys show that only one out of three having retake X-rays show signs of tuberculosis.

"Suspect" subjects who ignore requests to appear for second X-raying will be notified again and efforts will be taken to convince them that knowledge of their condition is to their best personal advantage, campaign sponsors said. All cases will be pursued by the medical and technical staff of the survey, they said.

The 6-month survey is aimed at X-raying the chests of upward of 600,000 Washington residents and workers who have passed their fifteenth birthday. It is sponsored jointly by United States Public Health Service, the District Health Department and the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association.

U. S. 'Middle-Aged' In Natural Resources

A sharp warning that the United States is no longer the world's youngest country in natural resources came from Dr. Mayo in his speech yesterday.

He called the United States a "middle-aged" country compared with manpower and resource-rich Russia. "This is the year six in the atomic age," said Mayo. "For humanity sake we have got to make this the year one in the conservation of natural resources."

Whale Is Sliced Up On New Jersey Beach

Point Pleasant, N. J., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—A salvage crew brought out a bulldozer, a power saw, a derrick and a truck today to remove, in pieces, the carcass of a 40-ton, 63-foot whale which floated onto the beach last Sunday.

The R. L. Guttridge Co. of Plainfield, N. J., a rendering plant which will convert the whale into oil, sawed it into 8000-pound slices.

Arabs Held Aided By Arms Embargo

Holifield Charges State Department Move Creates Corridor Against Jews

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A State Department embargo on arms to Palestine amounts to "support of the Arab states in their war against the people of Palestine," Representative Holifield (D., Calif.) charged yesterday.

Holifield made this charge at a hearing by a subcommittee of the House Executive Expenditures Committee on purchases of war surplus explosives by the Jewish Agency for Palestine. Later he told reporters the effect of the embargo was "to create a corridor for the Arabs to get arms into Palestine while the Jews have no such corridor" and said the entire munitions embargo should be ended.

E. T. Cummins of the State Department Munitions Division told the subcommittee an absolute embargo was placed December 5 on munitions shipments to Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Transjordan, Iraq and Palestine.

Sales Described

Other witnesses testified that 400,000 pounds of demolition blocks had been bought by an agent of the Jewish Agency and another 60,000 pounds originally had been bought for mine stripping operations in Pennsylvania. Both lots were sold by the War Assets Administration from surplus stocks turned over to it by the Army and Navy.

Chairman Rizley (D., Okla.) of the subcommittee said after the hearing it was apparent WAA was "perfectly in the clear" in both sales."

Two witnesses, Philip Alper and Charles Lowy, claimed constitutional immunity since both were under bond in connection with the transactions. Alper was identified as purchaser of the TNT sold orginally for mine stripping and Lowy as owner of a New Jersey farm on which 106,000 pounds of explosive were seized January 3.

TNT Resold

Abe Cramer, head of the Pottsville (Pa.) Coal Sales Corp., said he had bought 60,000 pounds of TNT for his own use for $2700 and had sold it to Alper for $3500. Alper explained that this shipment, seized in New York January 3, was handled by himself alone and not for any organization.

Samuel Nattis of the Materials Redistribution Corp. of New York, said his employer, Leonard Weisman, had him make the 200-ton purchase for Foundry Associates, Inc. Weisman later identified Foundry Associates as a purchasing agency for the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Weisman explained that the Jewish Agency had bought large amounts of military equipment, including tents and field telephones, and had stored it until export licenses could be arranged. The seized demolition blocks, he said, were being handled the same way.

J. Victor Carton, Monmouth County, N. J., prosecuting attorney, related finding of 106,000 pounds of TNT on the Lowy farm after State police had received an anonymous telephone call. The shipment was turned over to the Navy for storage at an ammunition depot nearby, Carton said.

Chinese Plan to Stay In Manchuria Capital

Peiping, Jan. 28 (AP).—A Chinese general in Mukden declared today the government has abandoned the idea of withdrawing either from the Manchurian capital of Changchun or the power center of Kiren to the east.

The government will fight to hold them, Gen. Cheng Tung-kuo told Chinese newsmen.

Cheng is a deputy to Gen. Wei Li-huang, new commander in Manchuria.

Self-Help Plan Offered For China

Nanking, Jan. 28 (AP).—Premier Chang Chun announced today a self-help program for China, including plans to combat runaway inflation, in order to make the best possible use of any United States aid.

His announcement came in a statement released both here and in Washington thanking the United States for including 18 milion dollars for China in last year's foreign stopgap aid bill.

Some observers, scanning the announcement, thought few of Chang's recommendations would be put into practice if they get no farther than the Premier's previous programs.

Here are some of the things Chang proposed in order "to secure the maximum benefit from external aid" such as the 300 million dollars Secretary of State Marshall says may be needed for China this year:

A drastic reduction in the government payroll, as much as 25 per cent in some departments; by June 1; tightening of commodity controls to check speculation; steps to stabilize the currency, including centralization of banking and credit systems in the Central Bank of China.

Tax refomrs to make sure more taxes are paid by those best able to pay; better treatment of civil service and army officers and men to improve efficiency and morale; promotion of exports and easing of some of the emergency import controls under which foreign business in China chafes; rehabilitation of communications and land reform.

British Say U.N. Partition Plan Did Not Call for Jewish Militia

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—The British see no provision for a Jewish militia in the United Nations decision to partition Palestine, a foreign office spokesman said today.

The statement answered a Zionist charge that the British had refused to permit Palestine Jews to recruit and arm their own militia. Moshe Shertok, head of the Jewish Agency's political department, said this was contrary to the U. N. decision.

The foreign office spokesman said:

"The (U. N.) Assembly plan did, of course, lay down that the Jewish area of Palestine should have the right to recruit and arm its own internal and frontier security force.

"But in that area the Arabs form 45 per cent of the population. In terms of the U. N. plan we assume that they should be represented in any militia formed."

Stern Gang Foiled In Kidnap Attempt

Jerusalem, Palestine, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—A daring attempt by 20 masked members of the Stern gang to kidnap the Jewish police superintendent of Tel Aviv was foiled today by his neighbor.

The Sternists stormed into Superintendent Shlomo Rozenstein's home and prodded him with pistols to a waiting truck.

Jewish neighbors, shouting, "If he goes, you can take us, too," rushed out and clung to the gunmen. Other neighbors telephoned police.

The Sternists abandoned the truck and ran.

Jewish-Arab fighting simmered down to occasional sniping, but another British soldier was killed—the second in 24 hours—and four Arabs were slain in separate Anglo-Arab incidents.

The American freighter Exford, diverted yesterday from Tel Aviv to Haifa, was to be searched for contraband arms and ammunition.

British troops withdrew from all-Jewish Tel Aviv today after lifting the dusk-to-dawn curfew, in effect since the United Nations approved partition seven weeks ago. Troops remained in all-Arab Jaffa and the curfew remained in effect there.

Suleiman Abdul Bey Taukan, portly mayor of Arab Nablus, predicted today Arab-Jewish clashes would lead to a third world war, with Russia possibly allying herself with the Zionists.

The mayor said Arab forces were prepared to sacrifice the lives of one million men in a four-month campaign against the Zionists "the minute the British leave."

Iraq Riots Threaten British Arab Policy

Protests Against Treaty Held Indication London Has Misjudged Near East Opinion

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—Worried government officials said tonight they feared a possible crisis in British relations with near Eastern states.

These officials said the bloody riots Tuesday in Baghdad showed the British had seriously miscalculated popular Arab opinion. The riots were in protest against the British-Iraq friendship and mutual aid treaty.

Some quarters still hoped a new Iraq government, capable of persuading the people to accept the treaty, could be formed.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had hoped the British-Iraqi treaty would pattern a system of alliances to preserve British influence in the Arab world.

If the successor to former Premier Salih Bey Al Jabur succumbs to popular demand to reject the treaty, it might block Britain's program to strengthen herself in the Near East, government informants said.

Some sources said Britain might propose slight modificatons of the treaty, which provides for British use of Iraqi airfields, a joint defense council and transit permission for British troops.

Klein said that he had engaged in some speculation in wheat and oats after leaving the Reparations Commission. He said that he had accompanied the Pauley mission through Europe and the Far East. At the close of his tour, he said, he and Pauley discussed their observations with Herbert Hoover, Hugh Gibson and Admiral Towers in Honolulu.

Officials quoted an unidentified trans-Jordan official who said today in London:

"If the people of the Near East had to choose between being Arabs under communism and being subjects of a foreign imperialism, whether British or American imperialism, unquestionably they would select communism.

"The British ought to have realized that after the Egyptian deadlock arose last year, but they did not. Until they get rid of the notion that they're dealing with a crowd of penniless coolies they'll get nowhere in the Near East."

The Moscow Radio said the Arabs viewed the Iraqi treaty as a direct menace to national interests and a bid "of the imperialists to continue their old colonial policy of enslavement of the peoples of Asia and Africa."

Salih Bey Flees Baghdad As 300,000 Demonstrate

Baghdad, Iraq, Jan. 28 (AP).—Former Premier Salih Bay al Jabur was reliably reported today to have fled Baghdad.

In the Oraq capital more than 300,000 persons marched through the streets, some carrying banners demanding his head.

Salih Bey's determination to fight for ratification of the British-Iraqi treaty of mutual defense and friendship in the face of violent popular opposition led to the downfall of his cabinet yesterday.

A secret police informant said he had fled to Hilla, 60 miles south of Baghdad amid the ruins of Babylon, to seek protection of the tribes of his father-in-law. The former premier was fired upon five times while leaving his home last night by automobile but escaped injury, the informant added.

A six-mile funeral procession was held for victims of rioting which preceded the announcement of Salih Bey's resignation yesterday. (Hospitals estimated 70 persons were killed.)

The coffins were covered with huge Iraqi flags inscribed with letters written in the blood of the victims.

The tin plate industry was established in America in 1891 largely for the production of tin cans for food packing.

French Arrange Gold Bill Compromise

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP).—Premier Robert Schuman patched up a compromise with the Socialists over his gold bill tonight and eased a crisis that had threatened the life of his government.

The compromise was reached in a half-hour session of the cabinet at which Socialist ministers proposed that they vote with the government for the bill to create a free gold market in France. Other Socialist members of the National Assembly would abstain from voting against the measure, the Socialists said.

A cabinet minister said Schuman accepted this offer preserving the outward solidarity of the cabinet.

The agreement was regarded as giving Schuman a narrow chance of winning in the Assembly.

Earlier, a cabinet spokesman had declared the government could not continue in office if the Assembly voted down the measure.

The gold bill was one of three parts of Schuman's money program announced Sunday. The first part, devaluation of the franc, was put into effect without parliamentary action. The second part, creation of a free currency market in Paris, also did not need parliamentary approval.

Taber Lifts Ban On Army Witness

Overrules Engel On Appearance of Gen. G. C. Richards

By The Associated Press

Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) told reporters yesterday he was going to let the Army's budget officer tell the House Appropriations Committee about the Army's budget after all.

He thus overruled a ban on Maj. Gen. George C. Richards by Representative Engel (R., Mich.), chairman of the subcommittee in charge of Army funds.

Engle announced last Saturday he would not permit Richards to appear because he has "no respect" for Congress and tried to cover up Army "waste and extravagance."

Informed of Taber's decision, Engel said he had no comment.

Taber said Engle told him he was willing to have Richards testify, but objected "to his coaching of witnesses."

The case was called to the attention of the House Tuesday by Representative Mahon (D., Tex.), a member of Engel's subcommittee. Mahon demanded that the Speaker of the House intervene.

The Texan said Engel's action "smacks of some form of Government which is utterly foreign to democracy and the principles of freedom."

Other committee members, Mahon said, had not approved the ban on Richards.

Really, Loretta—

Star's Views On Britain Pooh-Poohed

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—London newspapers frowned today—on page one—over Loretta Young's observations on the United Kingdom in these days of austerity.

They gave wide play to the Hollywood film star's statement in an Associated Press interview that the situation in Britain is "heart-breaking, sobering, desperate." They accompanied it by headlines of reproof:

The Daily Mirror: "The things some people see."

The Daily Herald, deadpan: "Life in Britain, by Loretta Young."

The interview with Miss Young said, in part:

"You get the feeling over there that people are tired and drained of feeling." She told of the business executive walking on cardboard-patched soles for lack of a clothing coupon . . . the girl who asked when given a bit of chocolate do "I lick or bite?" . . . the factory workers who faint around 11 a. m. for lack of adequate breakfasts . . . and the thin soup, pasty porridge and herrings "broiled with paraffin."

Sir Alexander Maxwell, chairman of the British tourist and holiday board, said Miss Young was ill in London and spent most of her time in a room. He could not understand how she managed to see, "what I have never seen."

(In Hollywood, Miss Young said, "I have no apologies to make for any accurately interpreted statement I have made or conditions I saw in England. My every expression has reflected my deep respect for the magnificent courage and unity with which England, rich and poor, shares the austerity restrictions.)

merce, Treasury and Agriculture on the proposed advisory board.

In the House, however, there is still much support for a radically different scheme proposed by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.).

At yesterday's Senate committee hearing, vigorous support for ERP came from former Senator Robert M. La Follette, who was responsible for drafting the Harriman committee report last fall. La Follette has been mentioned as a possible administrator of the recovery program.

He said many western European countries had already taken "decisive steps" to cope with inflation, but in Germany "stagnation" was having dangerous effects on other countries. He charged that the United States as an occupying power was "at least partially responsible for errors of omission and commission which are seriously retarding German and thus European recovery."

He accused the American military government of having adopted "polices of precisely the sort that we are insisting the free governments of Europe shall abandon."

A similar charge, made last week by John Foster Dulles, brought quick denials from Secretary Marshall and Army Secretary Royall.

On the cost of ERP, La Follette said the Administration's request to Congress coincided closely with the findings of the Harriman committee. Outlining the uncertainties of the future, he insisted that "the risks involved in authorizing or appropriating too small a sum are real, and are greater than the risks in the opposite direction."

He also told the committee that "real economy can be achieved only by tough, businesslike administration and not by setting too narrow a limit on the administrator's financial freedom of action."

A long list of "safeguards" on ERP was proposed to the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday morning by Herbert H. Schell, a New York textile executive, representing the National Association of Manufacturers.

Schell said American industry was "enthusiastically in favor of the purpose and objective of the European Recovery Program," but he outlined many conditions, among them that the recipient countries should not embark on further nationalizing of industry.

"The NAM is convinced," he said, "that Europe should produce more and experiment less."

bania, Romania, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia "and even Greece" would decide whether to have a federation or a confederation. He said these countries would first organize a customs union and would also "decide the moment when it shall take the shape of a state."

Pravda said its editors consider these countries stand in need "not of a problematic and far-fetched federation or confederation, nor do they stand in need of a customs union.

"What they need is consolidation and defense of their independence and sovereignty by mobilization and organization of the internal popular democratic forces as has been correctly stated in the well-known declaration of the nine Communist parties."

Feelings Boil Over Tax Bill

ning too high to say how many Democrats would vote for it.

"But we'll have a two-thirds majority, all right, if a veto comes back here," he said.

"On the Knutson bill or the bill the Senate works out?" asked a reporter.

On the conference bill," replied Martin.

House Democrats apparently have no thought of offering the President's plan "as is" when they move to recommit the Knutson bill Monday. It is certain they will offer the split income for married couples feature of the Knutson bill to whatever motion they offer. Whether they will press both the Truman $40 tax credit and imposition of a 75 per cent excess profits tax was still open to question.

Yesterday's sparring for tax position started with rival Republican and Democratic committee reports on the bill.

The majority report, signed by 15 Ways and Means Republicans, pooh-poohed Democratic warnings of a return to deficit financing, and insisted they could not only cut taxes for all individuals but also pay between 10 and 11 billion dollars on the national debt in the next two years.

The cost of the Knutson tax cuts meanwhile was steadily rising. At the start of the year, Republicans priced the bill at 5.6 billion dollars. A fortnight ago, Treasury Secretary John Snyder raised the estimate to 6.3 billion dollars. Yesterday, Republicans themselves hiked the ante to 6.5 billion dollars. They said this was due to an expected climb in the Nation's personal income tax total from 200 to 209 billion dollars.

Then they defended point by point (1) the proposed $1000 increase in individual exemptions (2) the 10 to 30 per cent income tax cuts (3) split income privileges for married couples and (4) extra exemptions for the aged and blind.

"By lowering tax rates in both the lower and upper brackets, your committee's bill will increase the incentives of labor and management to produce, and will increase investors' willingness to assume business risks," said the majority report. "This in turn will decrease inflationary pressures."

The 10 Democrats filing the minority report slapped back with the prophecy that Knutson bill cuts will "endanger the fiscal solvency of the Nation, threaten deficit spending for the fiscal year, 1949, jeopardize national security and impede the execution of our international responsibilities."

But while Democrats got together against the Knutson bill, they haven't yet found a plan they can get behind. Only half of the committee Democrats, for example, supported the President's plan on a test vote.

Republican differences were less marked, but present nonetheless. Representative Albert J. Engel (R., Mich.) yesterday proposed a bill limiting cuts to a $250 increase in individual exemptions.

Said Engel: "What I want primarily is to get the maximum tax relief for the low income group that is possible at this time. Bills that die in committee do not bring that relief."

Grass-Roots Justice

President Truman has contributed substantially to improvement of the outlook for the Municipal Court by nominating Frank H. Myers to fill the present vacancy. As Mr. Myers is one of the three lawyers recommended for this post by the District Bar Association, his nomination was obviously made on the basis of merit. As an attorney of long experience, a native of the District and an active worker in citizens' affairs, he will have the confidence of the community. In our opinion, the appointment is in accord with the high standards that should always prevail in choosing officials whose duty will be to judge their fellow men.

We hope this means the beginning of a much-needed rehabilitation of the Municipal Court. That tribunal has admittedly reached a low state of operating efficiency. While it has a number of able, conscientious and hard-working judges, its roster also includes idlers and judges of little experience. The court has been used, as we pointed out recently, as a training ground for judges. And some of its members who have the qualifications and temperament of judges are not giving the community a full measure of service. They leave the bench after doing half or two thirds of a day's work, despite the accumulation of a large backlog of undecided cases. Justice thus delayed often means justice denied. That is an especially serious condition in a court that is close to the people—a court from which the popular faith in, or distrust for, our judicial system is most likely to stem.

One other factor in the court's loss of prestige seems to be poor administration. The burden of deciding a vast number of cases in 10 different branches is poorly distributed. With appropriate scheduling, it is believed that 10 able judges could keep abreast of the work, but with the present haphazard assignment of cases some judges overwork themselves while others coast along as if they thought the community owed them a judge's salary. Chief Justice Laws of the United States Court for the District has given a striking illustration of the fact that the work of a court can be handled with system and dispatch. But that example has yet to prove contagious in the Municipal Court. Now that the President has responded to the community's appeal for an appointment on the basis of merit, is it too much to hope that the judges themselves will resurvey their problem and seek a more orderly and expeditious method of disposing of their cases?

Mr. Byrnes' Letter

In an adjacent column, former Secretary Byrnes comments upon our recent editorial references to certain minor discrepancies between the account of the Russo-German pact of 1939 given in his book Speaking Frankly and the documents which have just been released by the Department of State. The first allusion to the captured Nazi documents in Mr. Byrnes' book occurs on page 284, from which we quote the following passage:

> The history of those [Nazi-Soviet] negotiations remained obscure until records of them were discovered among the captured archives of the Nazi government. They make an important contribution to our understanding of what it is the Soviet Union seeks . . . Let us, then, look at the record. On August 15, 1939, the German Ambassador in Moscow, Graf von Schulenberg, received instructions to advise Mr. Molotov that; (1) ideological differences need not preclude friendly relations and there are no real conflicting interests between Germany and the Soviet Union; (2) Germany has no aggressive intentions against the Soviet Union and believes such questions as the Baltic states can be solved to their mutual satisfaction; (3) the capitalistic western democracies would try to incite the Soviet Union to a war against Germany, a fight which would benefit only the capitalistic powers; (4) English warmongering makes necessary a clarification of German-Soviet relations in order to avoid circumstances that would make German-Soviet friendship and the settlement of territorial questions in eastern Europe impossible; and (5) therefore Foreign Minister Ribbentrop is willing to visit Moscow to explain Hitler's views to Mr. Stalin . . . Molotov expressed keen interest, but thought there should be preparation for such a conference . . .

The plain implication in this passage, it seems to us, is that the negotiations leading to the Ribbentrop-Molotov pact were initiated by the Germans in August, 1939. The documents published by the Department of State, however, show very conclusively that the suggestion that "ideological differences need not preclude friendly relations and there are no real conflicting interests," etc., was put forward by the Russians on their own initiative as early as April, 1939. But of course, as we were careful to observe in the editorial, these slight discrepancies do not invalidate Mr. Byrnes' interpretation of subsequent events.

Continued Allocations

By a curious coincidence, the very day that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the constitutionality of the Administration's power to allocate grain to distillers, the House Banking and Currency Committee threw out the bill passed by the Senate to extend this power through the month of February. In light of the industry's inability to agree on any voluntary curtailment program, the result of the committee's action is to leave the Government powerless to prevent diversion of sorely needed grain to a whisky spree. Already distillers are reported to be preparing for full-scale grain-buying beginning Sunday, when the present temporary restraints expire. Meanwhile there is no evidence to indicate that the grain crisis has in any way lessened.

The purpose of the bill the House committee so blithely rejected was to continue the temporary allocation powers contained in the anti-inflation act until a full study of the needs and uses of grain can be made and a broader program devised. Three days are left for the committee to consider the consequences of its irresponsibility. It is earnestly to be hoped that the same sense of statesmanship that prevailed in the Senate will lead committee members to discard the narrow arguments advanced against recognition of the over-all need.

To be sure, this bill is at best a substitute for broad allocation powers covering all industrial users of grain. We have consistently argued that the inclusion of such users in a quota system is the only fair way to approach the grain conservation problem. Brewers, millers, bakers, syrup manufacturers and the like have been requested by the Secretary of Agriculture to draw up voluntary agreements to this end. This method deserves a trial, and, though it is significant that none of these groups has yet reached an accord, legislation on this point should await the outcome of the voluntary efforts.

There should be no such waiting in respect of allocations to distillers, with whom such requests have proved unavailing. It is possible to sympathize with their complaint that they have been singled out for discriminatory treatment—a complaint best answered by the extension of quotas to other users—and at the same time to recognize that a democratic society must take steps to protect itself in an emergency. The emergency is now in food, and the diversion of grain to liquor is one of the least essential uses of a vital food item.

The argument has been made that distillers use only a small portion of the total grain crop, and that they absorb only an insignificant amount of wheat. The fact is, however, that what grain they do consume has an important bearing on the total wheat available for export. Corn is the key to these exports, since the use of corn for animal feed releases equivalent amounts of wheat that otherwise might be fed to cattle. Distillery purchases constitute a considerable drain on the cash corn crop—the corn that actually leaves the farms—and consequently have a decided influence on corn prices. Moreover, the liquor industry is the only major industry that buys up large grain stocks for other than current use. To the distillers' contention that little if any grain has been saved by allocations it may be pointed out that distillery consumption this month has been approximately 2½ million bushels as compared with eight million last January. Furthermore, it is relevant that 2½ million bushels monthly is virtually enough for current use and that consumption above that figure goes largely into expansion rather than replenishment of the liquor supply.

The distillers raise one other interesting point: that compulsory curtailment is playing into the hands of prohibition advocates. To our mind exactly the opposite is the case. The best argument against the return of prohibition would be the exercise of a timely self-discipline within the liquor industry. Surely, in their own interest, the distillers will gain good will by accepting gracefully the allocation powers necessary to insure the most productive use of grain during the food emergency.

Equality For Aliens

The Immigration and Naturalization laws of the United States still contain a considerable element of racial discrimination which is at once an irritant to our relations in the Far East and a denial of our own vital principle that all men are created equal. The exclusionary features of the Immigration Act of 1924, directed against persons of Oriental origin, were modified with respect to the Chinese in 1943 and with respect to the Filipinos and East Indians in 1946. However, persons from Burma, Japan, Siam, Indonesia, Korea, Indo-China, the Malay States, and the Pacific Islands are still barred from becoming naturalized as citizens of the United States and are, therefore, in general ineligible even to enter this country as immigrants.

Representative Walter H. Judd has introduced a bill designed to cure this inequity. Its effect would be to do for other Orientals what has already been done for Chinese, Filipinos and East Indians—that is, to erase from our nationality and immigration policy any discrimination on racial grounds and treat them as we treat Europeans seeking to enter the United States. In practice, because stringent quotas are applicable to the peoples in question, no more than a few hundred Asiatics now ineligible to enter the United States would be granted admittance. Mr. Judd's proposal would not change the quota law in any respect; it would merely extend it.

The most important effect of his bill would be to make eligible for naturalization an estimated 88,000 persons now in the United States and Hawaii who are barred from becoming citizens because of racial origin. The President's Committee on Civil Rights urged that this be done. Most of those who would be affected are Japanese whose loyalty to their adopted country was amply demonstrated during the war; they produced, among other things, the 100th Battalion and the 442d Infantry Combat Team, which, as the late Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell put it, "bought an awful big hunk of America with their blood." Their present status makes them the victims of discriminatory land laws in some Western States prohibiting "aliens ineligible to citizenship" from buying, selling or conveying land. In the Oyama case, the Supreme Court pointed out the other day the invidiousness of this kind of discrimination. Congress rather than the court can furnish the most effective remedy. Americans of Japanese ancestry deserve fair play.

Eccles Mystery

The President's reason for replacing Marriner Eccles as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board is shrouded in mystery. And Mr. Eccles' decision to accept the post of vice chairman of the board poses another question that keeps commentators guessing. Although guessing at motives is a dangerous game, we believe that Mr. Eccles' recent testimony before various congressional committees, urging legislative approval of the board's special reserve plan for control of credit, may supply a clew to the mystery of his so-called demotion. For on those occasions Mr. Eccles repeatedly referred to the Federal Reserve System as "an agency of Congress" and stressed the board's responsibility "to point out to Congress the dangers which it sees in the existing bank credit and monetary situation."

This appeal, which was made despite the opposition of the Secretary of the Treasury to the special reserve proposal, appeared to some auditors to be in the nature of a new declaration of independence (insofar as the executive branch of Government was concerned) by an agency that has been compelled for a good many years to devote itself primarily to helping the Treasury to finance Government spending programs. Moreover, Mr. Eccles outlined a program of his own for control of inflation that incidentally revealed his skepticism as to the efficacy of the President's program. Allocations, price and wage ceilings, installment credit regulations, export and rent controls, and similar devices he classified as "curbs rather than cures." "Where they can be applied as a practical matter and enforced," he said, "they can be useful, but they do not go to the sources of the problem."

As an argument in favor of the over-all credit-control plan that the Reserve Board has indorsed, this kind of plain speaking was effective. But it was not conducive to strengthening Mr. Eccles' position as official spokesman for the Federal Reserve System. The President may have decided that his own anti-inflation program would have a better chance with Congress if the board had a new spokesman to present its recommendations. To be sure, Mr. Eccles, as a voting member of the board, will still be able to influence its decisions. Indeed, the President has asked him to remain "to carry forward legislative proposals now pending in Congress dealing with the important problems of bank credit as outlined in the President's economic report to Congress, as well as with other matters in the interest of a sound banking system and a sound economy." Since the President advised Congress to give close study to the special reserve plan, without actually indorsing it, Mr. Eccles will presumably continue his agitation for its acceptance. But his power to influence decisions by virtue of the prestige of his present office has undoubtedly been diminished by the President's decision to supersede him.

Trend Of The Times

However slowly, the world does move. Rationality and decency work their way even against entrenched patterns of prejudice. "The trend of the times prompted my decision," M. J. Uline said last week in announcing that henceforth cash customers will not be barred on account of the color of their skins from attending any event at his arena. Mr. Uline can have the satisfaction of knowing that the trend of the times will be accelerated, even if only in small measure, by his decision. For it will afford many white persons the novel experience of sharing with their colored fellow-citizens the pleasure of witnessing a tennis match or an ice show or a basketball game; and they will learn from this experience that their own enjoyment is in no way diminished by the sharing. Once this lesson is learned, racial discrimination is certain to disappear very rapidly.

Mr. Uline need feel no particular embarrassment in acknowledging that his decision was prompted in part by poor attendance at Arena-sponsored events from which Negroes were excluded. Good morality commonly proves to be good business; we hope this will be the case here. If so, other places of entertainment can learn from Mr. Uline's experience and turn the lesson to their own profit. The community as a whole will be the beneficiary of this trend.

TRAIN IN FOG

The train has sped us on between the hills,
And all are passed by and forever lost.
But soon a slow smudge from the dampened earth
Curls over track and field and trembling trees.
The hills are not entirely lost: they stop
From drowning in the white and chilly sea;
The wind is plowing spaces; the train's engine

"End Of A Friendship"

In your editorial of January 25, discussing documents published by the Department of State, Nazi-Soviet Relations 1939-1940, you refer to the discussions of such relationship in my book, Speaking Frankly, and state I was inaccurate in some details, especially dates, though the documents published confirm my thesis.

Because you do not state the details nor the dates you believe inaccurate, it is difficult for me to answer. However, I wish to say that the statements in Speaking Frankly on this subject of Nazi-Soviet relations were taken from documents recovered from the German Foreign Office and particularly from a report entitled Diplomatic and Economic Relations Between Germany and USSR. Free Translation. By Interrogation Team——, United States Army. The report was dated October 15, 1946. In a covering letter from Ambassador Murphy dated November 5, it was stated that this report was based upon an interrogation of the former counselor of the German Embassy, Gustav Hilger.

I see no conflict between the statements in my book and the documents now published, though it is entirely possible there may be some slight difference in language due to different translations.

In your editorial you refer to the memorandum now published, reciting the conversation between Hitler and Molotov on November 13, 1940, and state that it does not disclose that Hitler showed indignation. The memorandum now published is signed "Schmidt" and, of course, was taken from the files of the German Foreign Office. That memorandum shows that the German interpreter at the Hitler-Molotov conversation was Gustav Hilger.

The report of the American Interrogation Team is based upon its interrogation of Hilger and that report states that when Molotov was not satisfied with Hitler's answers and insisted upon a definite reply: "Hitler refused to give any definite reply without prior consultation with Bulgaria and Italy and showed indignation when Molotov continued to insist."

Presumably, the comment about Hitler's indignation was that of Hilger, who was present. His comment about Hitler could not be included in the official memorandum of the conversation which was filed in the embassy of Schmidt and which is now printed in the document issued by the Department of State.

The difference between the report of the Interrogation Team based upon its examination of the interpreter and the official memorandum on file in the German Embassy does not necessarily mean that either is inaccurate. The report may supplement the official memorandum.

I write because I want it known that my statements on this subject were based upon the best evidence obtainable from German documents and officials.

Tie With Newfoundland

In the little island of Newfoundland, events are taking place which may have a profound effect on the economy of the United States.

A strong effort is being made to induce the people of this island to vote for confederation with Canada in a plebiscite which is soon to take place. As inducement a family allowance and increased old-age pensions are offered, both of which will have to be paid for by the people of Newfoundland.

It is generally believed by well-informed people that Canada's desire to bring Newfoundland into confederation is prompted by the discovery of large deposits of high-grade iron (with a manganese content) in Newfoundland and Labrador. To Canada this is the second chance of becoming the leading industrial country in the Western Hemisphere.

There would be another consequence to Newfoundland's entering a confederation. Newfoundland would buy less from the United States and more from Canada.

However, the United States could assure herself of a large proportion of the mineral wealth of Labrador by an official statement by the Government of the United States that it would assist a responsible government of Newfoundland in developing a steel industry in Newfoundland and Labrador (using the gigantic hydroelectric power of the Hamilton River to smelt the iron). Canada would probably cooperate in the plan. It would have great advantages for Canada also. And it would save the United States from becoming dependent on Canada for iron or steel.

With the depletion of oil resources, it seems probable that there will soon be much greater demands for coal and shortages may develop in coal production. So the use of hydroelectric power for developing a steel industry in Labrador would reduce the demand for coal.

Newfoundlanders have always had a great liking for the United States. And the people of this island have always hoped for a closer association with the United States. It seems now that a closer association would be mutually beneficial.

Military Appointees

Is the American heritage such that we must abandon the functions of civil government to a military caste, constricted in training and outlook? It is a sad commentary, indeed, on American society today to conclude, as the present occupant of the White House apparently does, that this country is so destitute of enlightened civilian administrative talent that only career soldiers are available to fill the breach.

Those who expound the wonders to be bestowed by the military in administrative affairs largely predicate their claim on the patent need for eschewal of "politicking in office," and on the salutary need for "increased efficiency." Some military men, like our present Secretary of State, have undoubtedly fulfilled these expectations.

Yet, how many millions of Americans in the recent war were privileged to experience the all-persuasive force of the "game of politics" within and throughout the entire Army?

The inherent structural nature of the Army serves to encourage a "politicking state of mind," and to produce a kind of orthodoxy which enshrines mediocrity, and in which the unimaginative, torpid zealots with the requisite inelastic "manual mentality" are enthroned. Need we introduce this type of mind into our already suffering bureaucracy?

Is it necessary for America to fall back on this type of "leadership?" Have American educational institutions and the American "way of life" failed so abysmally? Has American public opinion become so barren and stultified?

The Washington Post would do its myriad readers a commendable service by continuing to oppose the trend to saturate our Government with "efficient, non-political" military appointees!

"Unity: Looking Ahead"

Your editorial of January 24 indorsing the proposal for a western European federation is very sound and realistic. A federation of the western European nations appears to be the only method of checking Russian aggression against the free peoples of Europe.

This proposal is not an idealistic dream; it has been advocated by the most informed men in the field of international affairs in the world. They see this as the only solution to the present stalemate of European progress.

Why has this union not received the official approval of the United States? Senator Fulbright and Senator Thomas introduced in the Congress a resolution on March 21, 1947, stating in concise form that "Congress favors the creation of a United States of Europe, within the framework of the United Nations." This resolution was referred to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and has not received any more attention from Congress since.

Congress should go on record as favoring a United Europe at the earliest possible date. Official United States promotion of a European federation will do much to start the machinery working toward a united Europe and a bulwark against future Soviet aggression.

NORVILL JONES.
Washington.

Your editorial, "Unity: Looking Ahead," of January 24, is very heartening to federal unionists who have been working for years to show Americans that security and prosperity lie only in outright union with other free peoples under a federal government on the United States pattern. Such an arrangement would assure the maximum individual freedom as well as collective security.

Clarence Streit proposed this in Union Now, just before the recent war, and if his plan had been adopted it would have prevented that war by making democracy too strong for nazism to attack.

Your editorial says, "The Soviet Union's refusal to make peace is inexorably pushing the free world into this grand nexus . . . inevitable as mankind gets the present-day measure of the problem of survival in a world of aggression and anarchy."

Also, "The grossest illusion is to imagine that a consolidated western Europe is all that is necessary . . . Interdependence worked out in political and economic relation with all like-minded peoples has become the last chance of our civilization."

Then having made this ringing and eminently sensible statement, you propose that we seek a union with Canada, only!

If we need a union with all of the strength of a free people why should we deliberately waste time doing the thing bit by bit? Making arrangements, forging instruments, which will all have to be made over before real security is obtained.

Former Justice Roberts, in the January issue of Freedom and Union gives us better counsel. He says that the United States Government should immediately call a constitutional convention of "like-minded peoples" representatives to frame an over-all federal government with all of the powers necessary to any sovereign state, including power for defense, to tax, to coin money and to regulate trade.

Such a government would be entirely responsible to the people under its jurisdiction, just as the governments of the member states are, through free elections.

This is the response that Bevin's action should call forth from us. Must we always wait for Britain, a nation we complacently call "weak," to take the lead?

Subsidized Tourists

By Malvina Lindsay

Travel and Trade

WAYS BY WHICH great numbers of Americans could become one-man and one-women Marshall Plans abroad are being discussed by those figuring out means of getting more dollars into Europe on a value received basis.

American tourists are needed in all dollar-short countries. For tourist trade enables foreigners to earn American dollars to spend here. It helps this country absorb imports of an invisible nature, which do not arouse opposition of American manufacturers. It brings the tourists themselves enlarged experience, wider understanding. It helps develop international understanding.

The policy of the State Department is to encourage foreign travel to aid diplomacy. Now Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson says travel should be developed on a long range basis as a means of enabling foreign countries to buy American food surpluses after the European recovery program ends.

A PROPOSAL for subsidizing American tourists as part of the Marshall Plan has been made by Dr. Frank D. Graham, Princeton University economist. By selecting teachers for this tourist lend-lease, he would provide a bait to combat the teacher shortage. Such travel subsidy could also be extended to students and veterans, he believes.

Dr. Graham would have the Government match dollar for dollar, say up to $1000, tourists' dollars to be spent in approved European countries. As to the immediate feeding problem, he makes two suggestions: Have the tourists pay special supplements of unmatched funds for American food, since presumably they would eat the same amount if they stayed at home, or have foreign countries take a reduction in their net accrual of dollar exchange to the extent that tourist sustenance is sent from the United States.

There is at present no dearth of Americans wanting to be European tourists even at their own expense. But the bottleneck of tourist trade is transportation. There aren't enough passenger liners. Those in service are virtually booked up for next summer. Before the war 27 luxury liners were operating, now not more than half a dozen. Lack of passenger liners is one great weakness of the American Merchant Marine. Recently the President's committee appointed to study Merchant Marine needs recommended the building of 46 passenger liners.

Whether the Maritime Commission will continue to operate troop vessels for certain forms of passenger service after its appropriation for this expires March 1 depends on Congress. Last summer these troop vessels carried thousands of students to and from Europe at modest rates. The student were sponsored by national organizations, their tours supervised by the State Department.

ADVOCATES of the tourist trade approach to dollar exchange would have the Nation start at once a program to make transportation available for average Americans wanting to travel abroad. Since shipbuilding is a long process, plans need to be made now for encouraging travel in the post-Marshall Plan era.

More immediate needs might be met by reconditioning troop vessels already built. Congress last session refused appropriations for this, but at that time the need for getting dollars into Europe did not seem so urgent.

Last year's invisible imports in travel were about a fourth what they were in prewar years. Now American production, especially in agriculture, is geared so high that a much greater tourist trade than ever before is needed to help provide dollar exchange for American products.

What kind of tourists go abroad also is of national concern. If only rich, jaded globe trotters do the touring, they may, even though good spenders, strengthen foreign illusions about American life. But subsidized teachers, scientific workers, others of that type, could help build a stronger cultural basis of understanding between this and other nations.

RFC For European Aid

While there may be doubts whether there is a further need for the RFC in this country, the generally favorable experience with this agency in bolstering up our faltering economy during the 1930s commends it for consideration to carry out a similar function in Europe under the Marshall Plan.

By authorizing the RFC to make dollar loans directly to the individual plants acquiring the machinery, the assistance can be rendered on a business-like basis that in the long run will give the greatest satisfaction to all concerned.

The RFC should be empowered to make the advances repayable in the currency of the country in which the borrower is located and on terms well within the capacity of the manufacturer to meet. Disposition of the collections would follow the course of the Herter plan and be used for American acquisition of commodities not normally included in commerce and in other ways that would not interfere with the usual trade of the nation in question.

Aside from the complication of foreign exchange, the European recovery plan is in many respects basically similar to the problem which faced this Nation during the depression. It seems logical therefore to turn to the agency which has carried out the experiment of aiding American enterprise for nearly two decades when we engage in a similar program abroad.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Reliving The Department

SECRETARY MARSHALL and his successors will be among those who benefit the most from the refusal of Senator Vandenberg and his committee to put the European Recovery Program under the Department of State. They will be relieved of a great burden.

Lippmann

The argument in favor of the original proposal was that since ERP is an engine of foreign policy, it must be subordinate to the Secretary of State. If that were a sound view, then every other department and agency of government which acts outside the 3-mile limit should also come under the direct control of the Secretary of State. Under this theory of Government he would become in effect the prime minister; yet in the American system it is not the Secretary of State but the President who makes foreign policy and conducts foreign relations. The President can be, and has often been, his own Secretary of State. But the Secretary of State cannot be his own President.

EVEN WHEN the President recognizes his own limitations, and selects, as Mr. Truman has, a man of great prestige and superior ability, it is impossible to delegate to the Secretary of State the conduct of foreign relations. They involve so many departments of Government so continually and so intricately that they cannot be controlled, or even coordinated, by the head of one of these departments.

When the Department of State attempts to do what only the President can do, it does not really take control of all the multifarious activities which enter into foreign relations. It becomes a kind of receptacle of those activities which have not been preempted and nailed down by some other department, as for example, propaganda; or are white elephants, as for example, the military government of occupied areas.

THE MOST serious consequence of taking over so many ill-assorted operations has been that the department has become an unwieldy bureaucracy. The unwieldiness of the machine causes the responsible men at the top to become so immersed in the details that the great decisions of high policy are really made in bits and pieces by subordinates down deep in the bureaus. Policy is not formed at the top by men who have time to consider the whole situation. They are too busy for that. They make policy in the main by settling disputes which come up to them from below.

The difficulties have been compounded by the practice which Mr. Byrnes adopted, and Mr. Marshall has continued, which is to treat the Secretary of State as a roving ambassador. No one can form and plan and really direct a global foreign policy—particularly one so vastly overextended as our own is today—if he is away from Washington attending international conferences or making speeches so much of the time. A consecutive, systematic, and thoroughly considered judgment cannot be arrived at by long distance telephone, from cables, and through occasional consultation.

IT WAS never more necessary than it is now that this condition be corrected. On the one hand, the country has commitments all around the world which, if they are not to be beyond our resources and our power, require careful and consistent judgment and planning. On the other hand, the situation, as Mr. Churchill said the other day, is evolving rapidly to a point where things are coming to a head. If we are prepared, lucid, resolute, and inventive, it may be that events can be developed which can lead to a settlement of the war we have won and of that other war which all must dread.

Only men who are not too busy to think can hope to be prepared. They will be much too busy to think if from day to day, and at any hour, they are called upon to listen to the anguished entreaties of foreign ambassadors, to decide the disputes among the departments of the Government, to iron out the difficulties arising from agreements that prove to be unworkable, which the administration of the European Recovery Program will unavoidably demand. That would mean only that in assuming too much control of the Marshall Plan, the Department of State would lose sight of, and would neglect, all the other things that need to be done if the grand purpose of the Marshall Plan is to be achieved.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Eisenhower's Wise Choice

THE DAY after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower issued his historic statement saying he could not accept the nomination for President, one of his friends asked him if he had ever had an abscessed tooth. Puzzled by the question, Eisenhower replied he had never gone through that painful experience.

Childs

"Well you know now how it feels to get it out," said the friend.

That is just how the general feels today. He acted in accord with the deepest dictates of his conscience. And the fact that his decision has been accepted by almost everyone, although reluctantly by most, confirms him in his conviction that he did the right thing.

The general had intended to wait to make his statement when he retired as Chief of Staff next month. But on the Sunday morning that the Gallup Poll showed him leading all other Republican candidates and President Truman, Eisenhower decided it was necessary to act at once. With a national Eisenhower-for-President organization being formed, too many people were tying their hopes to what the general had all along believed to be impossible. After 10 days of effort to make what he wanted to say as clear and as emphatic as possible, the statement was issued.

AT ABOUT the same time Eisenhower was coming to another important decision. He was signing a contract to write his story of the war. Here, too, a struggle of conscience preceded the final step.

Eisenhower has been critical of some of the quickie war books. He feels they have contributed chiefly to bickering and irritation.

Yet at the same time his study of past wars made it clear to him that future historians would turn to these personal memoirs as one of the most important and most easily accessible sources of knowledge. So he was persuaded that it was essential for him to write his story.

He has already catalogued his extensive notes. Those notes go back to Gibraltar, when General Ike went there to plan the landing in North Africa in the fall of 1942. He has even begun the writing of his story.

Now in the two months of "vacation" between his retirement as Chief of Staff and May 1, when he will go to Columbia University, he hopes to complete the writing job. Then, in order to insure the most thorough authenticity, the manuscript will be turned over to a professional historian who had no part in the events described in the book.

The historian, with the help of one of the general's wartime aides, will check every statement against the official communiques and reports. From the beginning, Eisenhower insisted on this kind of annotation. He hopes this will help him to keep away from any charge of partisanship and result in an account of the war that will be personal and yet objective.

At the same time that the political pressure was on, Eisenhower was being deluged by offers from publishers and editors. The financial arrangement he was able to work out naturally had something to do with persuading the general to write, particularly since under the terms of his contract he will be able to do the kind of book he believes should be done.

UNDER THE contract Eisenhower will sell the copyright on his work outright for a lump sum. In New York that sum is reported to be $750,000. The publisher, in whom Eisenhower has great confidence, will then farm out secondary rights.

According to present plan, a New York newspaper will syndicate the book to newspapers around the world. If the present plan is followed, there will be no magazine publication prior to the appearance of the book.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue informed Eisenhower that, on the basis of precedent outright sale of the copyright constitutes the sale of a capital asset—the story of a life accumulated through the years. Therefore the general will pay at the capital gains rate of 25 per cent rather than the income-tax rate of 85 per cent in the top bracket. It means he will have a sizable sum left after taxes.

In Roger Butterfield's remarkable book The American Past is a photograph of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant made at the end of his life. As President, the general had been deceived and defrauded by scheming political friends. When the photo was taken, the dying Grant was trying desperately to finish his memoirs so he could repay a debt of honor and perhaps leave a little money for his family. Can anyone doubt that Eisenhower in the wake of a greater and more terrible war has made a wise choice? That is true particularly when one looks at the reasons behind the decision which will be explored in a following column.

Baker of Harvard Declines CAB Chairmanship

George P. Baker, director of Harvard's School of Transportation, turned down yesterday the chairmanship of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The White House announced that President Truman offered him the job. But Baker said he could not get along on the $10,000-a-year pay.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, when making the announcement, commented that Baker has a wife and four children.

Ross said Harvard offered to let Baker do weekend work at the university to make extra money. But President Truman looked up the law, he said, and found it won't let CAB members hold two jobs.

The Story of a Friendship

Molotov, Hitler Quarreled Over Dividing 1939 Spoils

(This is the fourth in a series of articles based on the captured German documents, published by the State Department, on Nazi-Soviet relations from 1939 to 1941.)

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

The chips were down when Molotov and Hitler met for the second time on November 13, 1940. This time there were no long introductory speeches about future cooperation. The two partners went straight into a wrangle over the pact they had signed in 1939, starting with the question of Finland.

In the secret agreement attached to the Nazi-Soviet nonaggression pact, Finland had been placed in the Soviet sphere of influence. Since then Russia had defeated Finland in the "winter war," but Germany was moving troops through Finland ostensibly to northern Norway, and the Russians were uneasy.

Hitler said the British must not be permitted to get a foothold on Finnish airports; Molotov was firm that there must be no German troops in Finland and no "political demonstrations" there against the Soviet Union.

Hitler said Germany wanted no new war in the Baltic; Molotov called this a "new factor" not even mentioned in the 1939 pact.

Hitler said the Russians had overstepped the 1939 pact in Lithuania and northern Bukovina, in Romania. Molotov not only admitted it, saying these violations had been "insignificant," but made a brand-new demand for southern Bukovina as well.

Hitler grew excited, and reminded Molotov that Germany was engaged in a life-and-death struggle. It would be better, he said, if Russia did not now seek successes in territories in which Germany was interested for the duration of the war. Finally Hitler turned the conversation to what he called "more important" problems.

According to the official German record, Hitler argued as follows:

"After the conquest of England, the British Empire would be apportioned as a gigantic world-wide estate in bankruptcy of 40 million square kilometers. In this bankrupt estate there would be for Russia access to the ice-free and really open ocean.

"Thus far a minority of 45 million Englishmen had ruled 600 million inhabitants of the British Empire. He was about to crush this minority. Even the United States was actually doing nothing but picking out of this bankrupt estate a few items particularly suitable to the United States . . .

"The conflict with England would be fought to the last ditch, and he had no doubt that the defeat of the British Isles would lead to the dissolution of the empire. It was a chimera to believe that the empire could possibly be ruled and held together from Canada.

"Under those circumstances there arose world-wide perspectives. During the next few weeks they would have to be settled in joint diplomatic negotiations with Russia, and Russia's participation in the solution of these problems would have to be arranged.

"All the countries which could possibly be interested in the bankrupt estate would have to stop all controversies among themselves and concern themselves exclusively with the partition of the British Empire. This applied to Germany, France, Italy, Russia and Japan."

Molotov did not rise to the bait. He said he was "in agreement with everything he had understood," thereby not committing himself definitely to anything. The main thing, he said, was to make up their minds about German-Russian collaboration.

Hitler again talked of a "world-wide" coalition from Spain to Japan to inherit the British estate. To make this bait juicier, he spoke of "purely Asiatic area, oriented toward the south, that Germany even now recognized as Russia's sphere of influence." Still Molotov showed no interest in distant areas, but said he wanted to discuss Turkey instead.

Because of Russia's interest in the straits, he said, the recent German guarantee to Romania was aimed against Soviet interests, "if one might express himself so bluntly." The situation was all the more menacing to Russia since Britain had gained a foothold in Greece.

Therefore he asked what Hitler would think if Russia gave a guarantee to Bulgaria, with the assurance that Russia would deviate "not a hairsbreadth" from a pledge not to interfere in the internal order of the country.

Hitler said the answer would depend partly on whether Bulgaria had asked for a guarantee, partly on Italy's attitude toward it.

It was getting late; a British air raid was expected. Hitler reminded his visitor that "a great historical opportunity would be missed" if there were no agreement on parcelling up the British Empire. Molotov replied only that "a number of important and new issues" had been raised for Soviet Russia, and that Russia could not keep aloof from the great issues in Europe and Asia.

Late that night, from 9:45 until midnight, Molotov had a final meeting with Ribbentrop in the Nazi Foreign Minister's air raid shelter. Ribbentrop handed him the draft of an agreement by which Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia would promise to respect each other's "natural sphere of influence." He also outlined a secret agreement establishing these spheres, one provision being that "the focal points in the territorial aspirations of the Soviet Union would presumably be centered south of the territory of the Soviet Union in the direction of the Indian Ocean."

Once more Molotov asked specific questions. What about a Soviet guarantee to Bulgaria? What did the Axis contemplate regarding Yugoslavia and Greece? What were Germany's intentions regarding Poland? Did Germany still agree that Sweden must stay neutral? How about regulating the passages leading out of the Baltic?

Ribbentrop complained that he had been "queried too closely." He repeated that an understanding on all these points could be reached easily if Russia were first prepared to cooperate in "the great liquidation of the British Empire." He finally asked the direct question whether the Soviet Union was sympathetic, in principle, to the idea of getting an outlet to the Indian Ocean.

Molotov answered that he could not be definite at this time, since he had to consult Stalin, but he insisted that "all these great issues of tomorrow could not be separated from the issues of today."

The documents, as published, do not say what Hitler thought of his interview with Molotov. Captured German generals, interrogated by American officers, said he was convinced that Molotov's demands were nothing but preparation for an attack on Germany.

At any rate, little more than a month later, on December 18, 1940, Hitler sent a secret directive to his generals to be prepared "to crush Soviet Russia in a quick campaign," to be ready eight weeks in advance, and to conquer everything as far east as the Volga.

(Tomorrow: Stalin was willing to join the Axis, but on conditions which the Nazis spurned.)

Greek Rebels Said to Have 2 Submarines

Athens, Greece, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Minister of Public Order Costas Rentis said today his department had received information guerillas were using two submarines to transport personnel and to help exiled Communist leaders escape from island prisons.

Costas said he believed the submarines aided the recent escape of two Communist leaders from Nikaria Island, 130 miles east of Athens in the Aegean Sea.

Deputy Prime Minister Constantin Tsaldaris said last night "foreign powers" had supplied guerillas with the two submarines.

Security police today made surprise raids on bookstalls and stores, seizing several thousand copies of the monthly magazine, Communist Review, which was suppressed recently.

They also seized many books, including the Communist Party history and a volume entitled "The Slav Danger."

Twelve thousand books were confiscated in one store alone and 54 cases of books in another.

American military sources said the second group of U. S. Army officer-observers would leave Athens Thursday if weather permits, to join Greek army forces in the field.

Only minor activity was reported between army forces and guerillas today.

$20,000,000

Value Placed On Dresden Art Reds Got

Berlin, Jan. 28 (AP).—Authoritative sources estimated today the Russians took 20 million dollars in art treasures from Dresden's Zwinger Museum as war trophies.

A Russian trophy commission in June, 1945, picked over the vast storehouse of world famous treasures.

"Approximately 1700 of the 2300 pictures in the gallery, a collection dating back as far as 1745, were removed by the Russians, presumably to Moscow," the informants declared. They added:

Hubert Emrisch, German director at the museum, told western correspondents who toured the Soviet zone a week ago that Raphael's Sistine Madonna was among the pictures taken by the Russians.

Others included Antonio Allegri Corregio's Holy Night and almost all of the Rubens and Albrecht Duerer collection.

Some 200 German paintings are now in the National Gallery in Washington. They will remain there until Germany has a proper building to house them.

Va. Assembly Allows Alexandria Change

In Va. Senate

White House Tenure Bill Is Backed

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Over the vigorous objections of several members, the Virginia Senate today added its stamp of approval, 29 to 6, to a House joint resolution favoring an amendment to the Federal Constitution to limit the President of the United States to two terms in office.

The unexpected and sudden debate on the resolution which passed the House of Delegates unopposed was the highlight of a day in which:

1. The House killed by a vote of 57 to 36 a bill sponsored by Delegate Frank P. Moncure of Stafford which would have repealed the wartime ban against sale and use of fireworks. Delegate E. O. McCue of Charlottesville led the fight against the bill.

2. A constitutional amendment was unanimously approved by the House to permit one or more counties and towns to consolidate into one school district. The 1946 session of the legislature already passed a similar joint resolution and if it gets by the Senate the people will vote on it in November.

School Bill Received

3. The Senate got the first of a series of bills based upon the report of a school study commission headed by Senator Charles T. Moses of Appomattox. The bill which Moses introduced today would set up a sick leave plan for teachers and give them 10 days' leave with pay for sickness, quarantine or death in the family in the first school year and five days each succeeding year to an accumulated maximum of 30 days.

4. By Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington a bill to allow county governing bodies to make gifts of money or property to nonprofit hospitals. Senators Raymond R. Guest of Bayard and I. Paul Wailes of Amherst were copatrons.

5. Two bills were introduced by Senator Lloyd C. Bird of Chesterfield which would make it more difficult for first class cities to annex county areas. Bird's bills would prevent annexation proceedings by cities whose bonded indebtedness is 12.6 per cent or more of their assessed land values and prevent them from annexing any area, in addition to any other taken in the preceding 10 years, that constituted more than 10 per cent of a county's assessed real estate value.

Election Measure Offered

A bill to call an election May 11 on whether or not a convention shall be held to amend the constitution was introduced by Republican delegates Bently Hite of Montgomery and Ralph L. Lincoln of Smyth.

The house also received a bill by Delegate Ernest Robertson of Roanoke County which would require that before any city can annex a town incorporated before 1885 a petition signed by 51 per cent of the voters in the town, favoring the annexation, must be filed in the court of jurisdiction.

The house passed a charter bill for the city of Waynesboro. Approved under suspension of rules the bill advances Waynesboro to a city of the first class and establishes a corporation court.

Favors Referendum On Choosing Council Members at Large

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.)—The State Senate today approved House Bill 46, calling for a referendum March 2 in Alexandria on whether the city shall elect its city councilmen at large.

The measure, approved by the House Monday following its introduction by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, of Alexandria, was taken to the Senate floor out of order on a motion by State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, also of Alexandria. His motion went unopposed and the bill was approved by a 34-0 vote.

The bill, awaiting Governor Tuck's signature, would enable Alexandria to decide in the March referendum whether they wish to retain the present nine-man council, composed of six ward representatives and three councilmen-at-large, or install a council of seven members, all elected at large. A similar referendum in 1944 resulted in retention of the ward system.

Boothe's bill came as a surprise to Alexandria officials, who said they had no knowledge he intended to introduce it. It was introduced, however, at a time when petitions were being circulated through the city, asking the Circuit Court to order a similar referendum.

Sponsors of the petitions, who had claimed previously they had more than the required number of signatures to institute court action, said the papers would not be filed with the court, inasmuch as the Boothe bill made their action unnecessary.

The petitions calling for a reform in the local government first appeared several months ago following a political upheaval touched off by the resignation of three key city officials and subsequent appointment of Nicholas A. Colasanto to succeed Carl Budwesky as city manager.

Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the Alexandria Circuit Court, said plans for the referendum would be set in motion as soon as a copy of the bill was forwarded from the General Assembly to the court. Under existing electoral regulations, all "normal" election machinery will be used, and the referndum will be conducted as any other regular election, Hoffman said.

Insurance Lawyers Win Union Rights

In the first decision of its kind, the National Labor Relations Board yesterday granted union bargaining rights to lawyers employed by an insurance firm.

The case involved the New York office of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Co. of Chicago, doing business in New York as the American Lumbermen's Casualty Co. of Illinois.

The firm argued that the attorneys are professional employes representing management and that "membership in a union would violate the canons of ethics of the American Bar Association."

The NLRB ruled, however, that the attorneys are regular salaried employes without supervisory duties.

Bears Dont' Hibernate, Expert Says

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—A Harvard University expert cleared up the mystery of the prowling black bears of Maine today by announcing that bears don't hibernate in winter.

"Just a common misunderstanding," scoffed Dr. Charles P. Lyman, assistant curator of the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology.

This was news to Fish and Game Deputy Commissioner W. Earl Bradbury of Augusta, Me.

"Our bears always hibernate in December," he said firmly. "Everybody up here knows it. But this winter the woods are filled with bears. We're bewildered. It's not natural."

"Perfectly natural," persisted Dr. Lyman. "Woodchucks, ground squirrels and bats hibernate, but not bears. When an animal hibernates its temperature drops and its respiration and heartbeat slow down.

"Bears don't do that. Their temperatures remain normal. They do a lot of sleeping in winter, but they get up to eat. They never enter a state of suspended animation. Throw a rock at a 'hibernating' bear and find out."

Hibernators take two to six hours to wake up, even when stoned and clubbed, he said.

"There's been a lot of snow this year," the doctor said. "If a bear's larder becomes exhausted during a blizzard, he has to trudge through the snow to the corner store. He doesn't like it, but he has to eat."

Mason Confirmed As Commissioner

The Senate late yesterday confirmed Guy Mason for a third three-year term as District Commissioner.

Senate approval was given in a matter of seconds, just before the Senate adjourned at 5:10 p. m. There was no objection and no discussion.

Board Expects To Fix Tax Tomorrow

Alexandria City Council will meet in recessed session at 7:::30 p. m. tomorrow when, council members hope, it can take final action on the city's 1948 tax rates.

The council planned to adopt tax rates Tuesday night but action was deferred after other matters kept the council busy until near midnight.

Enactment of a new business license tax ordinance is expected to be only a formality, since the Council has already voted 6 to 2 to accept recommendations of its finance committee.

The ordinance, recommended by the committee, would provide $409,000 from tax on business and automobile licenses, based on an estimated 1947 business volume of $72,478,869.62.

The $409,000 is $116,000 less than anticipated when Council adopted its budget of expenditures December 30. Committee Chairman Everett A. Hellmuth said the deficit could be met by a cut in a $284,000 "cushioning fund" set up for capital improvements.

Council agreed to adopt the folowing rates per $100 gross receipts: retail merchants, 29 cents; wholesale merchants, 21 cents; contractors, 39 cents; business service, 29 cents; personal service, 29 cents; repair service, 29 cents, professional, $1.03; and amusements, 59 cents.

The council must also adopt tax rates on personal property and real estate. It has tentatively agreed to raise personal property rates from $2.80 per $100 to $3; and real estate, from $2.50 to $2.75.

Next U. N. Step In India-Pakistan Dispute Debated

Lake Success, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Security Council debated without result today its next step in the Pakistan-India dispute.

Fernand van Langenhove of Belgium, Council president for this month, reported to the Council that Pakistan and India had agreed in conversations with him on three points.

He said they were: (1) The first objective of Council action is to stop the fighting in Kashmir state in northern India; (2) Indian and Pakistan must cooperate to attain that objective; (3) A plebiscite under U. N. auspices should be assured by adequate measures.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin asked whether the negotiations had broken down completely. Van Langenhove said they had not.

The Council decided to meet again tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Daniels' Will Terms Paper Public Trust

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Continued operation of the News and Observer by his sons and if possible by their children, under an injunction that they never "advocate any cause for personal profit or preferment," is provided for in the will of Josephus Daniels, editor-publisher and elder statesman, who died here January 15 at the age of 85.

His will, probated yesterday, bequeaths an estate valued at $344,130.03 equally among his four sons, Josephus, jr., Jonathan and Frank, all with the newspaper, and Dr. Worth Bagley Daniels of Washington.

"I have never regarded the stock I owned in the News and Observer as property," Daniels said in the will, dated November 20, 1946, "but as certificates of a trust to be administered for the common good of the people of North Carolina."

Further, he said, "if the paper should at any time be the voice of self-interest or become the spokesman of privilege or selfishness, it would be untrue to its history."

Lutheran Hits Irreligion On Campuses

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—The National Lutheran Council, holding its thirtieth annual meeting here, heard Dr. Morris Wee, of Chicago, executive secretary of the Student Service Commission of the council, urge aggressive student ministry to combat the "pagan influences on the American campus" today.

"What the students think today will be the conviction of America tomorrow," Dr. Wee said. "The imperative before the church is to shape the thinking of students so that they recognize religion as a necessary and accountable factor in education and all of life.

"The Christian church must challenge the irreligious educational philosophy and make its religious witness on every campus in America."

To achieve this goal the National Lutheran Council's student service commission is expanding its student work in the United States and Canada, he reported.

The Lutherans also heard Dr. C. E. Krumbholz of New York, present the annual report of the division of welfare, of which he is executive secretary.

Earlier the council visited the current session of Virginia's General Assembly.

Fire Damages Seventh Street Apartments

A two-alarm fire caused heavy damage to second floor apartments at 1126 7th st. nw., about 5:40 p. m. yesterday and routed one elderly tenant.

Stock of the Nabby's Men's Wear Store, which occupies the first floor, was damaged by smoke and water. Irving Steinhardt, manager of the store, said he saw a cloud of smoke pouring from the second-floor windows; then saw flames shoot out through the ceiling.

Only tenant in the second-floor apartments at the time, John Wilson, about 65, was led from the building by an unidentified youth.

The store is owned by Joseph King, 2343 14th st. ne., who said the stock and fixtures are fully insured.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt
As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 888 Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 888 Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 888 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Capital Transit Deficit in Year Put at $90,827

By S. Oliver Goodman

Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported that its 1947 operations resulted in a net deficit of $90,827, as compared with net income of $987,224 in the previous year.

The report includes the result of the fare increase of last May, the recent wage increase and economies instituted in the last quarter.

For December the transit company was $7531 in the red, a slightly better showing than in the same 1946 month, when a deficit of $11,822 was reported. Operating revenues of $2,331,397 were 6.7 per cent higher, despite a drop of 2,496,321 or 7.4 per cent in revenue passengers. Reflecting the new belt-tightening policy, the company reduced car-miles 8.3 per cent and bus-miles 2.7 per cent.

For the year operating revenues of $27,127,020 were 0.5 per cent improved, operating expenses of $22,588,501 were 11.1 per cent heavier, taxes were 22 per cent lower and provision for depreciation was 13.8 per cent reduced.

Revenue passengers for the year numbered 380,711,307, a drop of 29,414,252 or 7.2 per cent.

NEW DIRECTOR: Glenn M. Spitler was elected a new director of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Arlington at the annual meeting Monday. All other officers and directors were reelected. The report of John P. Balster, secretary, revealed that resources rose approximately a million dollars to a new peak of $4,205,000.

CHAIRMEN: More than 1000 bankers and their guests are expected to attend the 40th annual banquet of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, on February 21 in the Mayflower. Thomas J. Norris, general chairman in charge of arrangements, listed the following committee heads: Decorations, James Ahalt; entertainment, Samuel C. Redman, jr.; publicity, Allen Greenstreet; reception, Herbert D. Lawson, jr.; seating, Walton L. Sanderson; women's, Helen R. Dwyer; entertainment of out-of-town guests, Stephen O. Porter.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: New officers of Hamilton Bank Club are F. Ripley Bowman, president; J. Richard Freer, first vice president; Wilmer J. Waller, jr., second vice president; Francis E. Houser, secretary; and Arle L. Sheldhahl, treasurer . . . C. L. Austin has been elected executive vice president and treasurer of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. . . . W. D. Singleton has been appointed manager of Ford Motor Co.'s plant at Chester, Pa., succeeding the late J. C. Davidson. . . . Charles Munson was elected chairman of executive committee of Air Reduction Co., Inc., and John A. Hill succeeded him as president . . . Henry C. T. Palmer has been appointed supervising accountant for Capital Airlines.

ODD LOTS: Northwest Airlines, Inc., will begin construction of new international traffic office at 1510 H st. nw. and expects new quarters to be completed in March, shortly after airline launches Washington service . . . C. & O. Railway soon will complete three-million-dollar project to link new Kentucky coal fields to Wise County, Va. . . . SEC authorized the Southern Co., Commonwealth & Southern subsidiary, to negotiate privately for the sale of about 20-million dollars of additional shares of its common stock . . . More stock splitups proposed as follows: Ingersoll Rand Co., 2-for 1; William Whitman Co., 10-for-1; Union Carbide & Carbon Corp., 3-for-1 .

PROMOTION: Mervin O. Parker has been advanced from assistant cashier to auditor of the Industrial Bank of Washington, President Jesse Mitchell reported yesterday after the annual meeting. Two new directors are Dr. Claude P. Carmichael and Robert H. Harrison. All other directors and officers were reelected.

INSURANCE: Washington agency of New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. showed an 8 per cent gain in new business for 1947 over previous year with nearly 3¼ million dollars worth of life insurance issued. J. Hicks Baldwin, local general agent, said Henry Hirsch led in sales here . . . The J. D. Marsh & Associates Agency of Washington led all Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. agencies in total paid production for 1947.

CORRECTION: More than 800 million dollars in United States war savings bonds were sold in Washington during the 3½ years that Wilmer J. Waller served as chairman of the District of Columbia Savings Bond Committee. The figure of 80 million dollars in a recent news item was erroneous.

GULF SELLOUT: The First Boston Corp. announced yesterday an immediate sellout of an offering to the public of 1,213,443 shares of Gulf Oil Corp. capital stock at $59 a share. The stock represented a portion of 2,269,050 shares offered to stockholders, who were given the right to buy the stock at $51 a share on the basis of one share for each four held. Rights to purchase the stock will expire February 10. Public offering of more than half the stock, concurrent with the offering to stockholders, was made possible by the fact that the Mellon interests, which own more than half of the outstanding Gulf stock, announced their intention of not exercising their rights to purchase new shares.

Eccles Still Can Run Reserve Though Fired as Chairman

By J. A. Livingston

AS CHAIRMAN of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Marriner S. Eccles was a front-seat driver. He was the board's spokesman, sparkplug, philosopher, and leader. Now Eccles has been asked by President Truman to surrender the chairmanship, take the vice chairmanship. And, wonder of wonders, Eccles has accepted.

His successor, Thomas B. McCabe, 54-year-old industrialist, who started as an office boy and worked up to the presidency of the Scott Paper Co., is no back-seat driver, either. As one of his close Philadelphia associates put it, "He is a strong man, too." There's drama in those words.

Livingston

Leadership—dominance—of the Reserve Board does not go automatically with the chairmanship. It's majority rule. And if Eccles can persuade other members of the board to go along with him, he'll drive, though he doesn't sit in the chairman's seat. As one man put it, "Where Eccles sits, there'll be at least one head at the table. He always thinks; he always puts forth provocative, stimulating ideas. And he's persuasive." So, theoretically, by asking Eccles to stay—not to resign—President Truman set the stage for a struggle for power between McCabe and Eccles.

YET, ON BASIC policy—on credit control and interest rates—no struggle is likely to develop. Eccles and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder have been in hearty accord on the need for stabilizing the Government bond market, for preserving the 2½% interest rate. It's highly unlikely that, McCabe, as board chairman, would attempt to upset that basic Snyder-Eccles tenet. That would bring him into direct conflict with Snyder.

Eccles and McCabe are more apt to disagree on operations—on the relationships between the Board of Governors and the reserve banks and the member banks—than on credit policy. Eccles is the autocrat at the banking table. His wiry arm has reached out to Chicago, San Francisco, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Dallas and other reserve bank cities. He has supervised budgets of the reserve banks, protested when salaries got out of line, checked cost of departments.

The officers of the banks haven't always liked that; nor have local commercial bankers, who regard themselves as "owners of the reserve banks." They put up the initial capital; therefore, they have wanted autonomy for their appointed officials. But under Eccles they felt they were being run from Washington.

Eccles was carrying but the law. The Board of Governors has power to remove officials of reserve banks, to supervise their operations, and, of course, to regulate the supply of credit. McCabe, presumably, will do the same. But he may be smoother about it. And he may grant local banks more leeway.

AS HE told me over the long-distance telephone: "The Reserve Banks play a conspicuous part in the areas in which they operate. They must provide commercial banks and industry with proper economic information as to trends. They must be enabled to play their part. They are the focal points of the operation of the Reserve System. And it's significant that Congress set up the Reserve System on regional lines—with 12 banks. In that respect our central banking system is unique. We have decentralized, whereas in other countries, the central bank is strictly central."

McCabe has had a brush with the Board of Governors — with Eccles—on this point. As chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, he wanted to raise the salary of Alfred H. Williams, president, from $25,000 to $35,000, but was turned down. In its attempt to standardize budgets and operations of the 12 reserve banks, the board has set top salaries for the presidents at $50,000 for New York, $35,000 for Chicago, and $25,000 for the 10 other banks.

McCabe is not a banker, but he knows banking. His father was the first banking commissioner of Delaware. He, himself, served as a director of a Chester, Pa., bank, and has been chairman of the Philadelphia Reserve Bank for seven years. His chief stock in trade, according to friends, is his affability, "his ability to get along with people." And persons who know both him and Eccles figure they'll be able to work as a team. Both have a common interest in economics and banking, and a great patriotism—a sense of duty.

ONE REASON Eccles stayed on—after what amounted to a demotion—was that he wanted to see the postwar problems through, that he wanted to serve the country. McCabe is of like stamp. During the war, he held numerous posts and wound up as a surplus property liquidator. Both men possess private fortunes, hence can afford to indulge their economic patriotism on the $15,000 salary as Reserve Board members.

(A concluding article on the appointment of Thomas B. McCabe as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board in place of Marriner S. Eccles will appear tomorrow.)

Roxas Asks Amnesty For All Collaborators

Manila, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—President Manuel Roxas recommended amnesty today to political and economic collaborators with Japan "to heal the sores we might still carry in our hearts."

Amnesty which must be approved by Congress, would affect about 100 Filipinos, including Dr. Jose P. Laurel, former puppet President of the Philippines.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP).—Grains made fair-sized advances in active dealings on the Board of Trade today. The market moved over a wide price range but closed not far under the best levels of the day.

Strength was derived chiefly from severe cold weather in parts of the Southwestern winter wheat belt. A ruling of the Illinois Banking Commission late yesterday in refusing to approve extension of grain use restrictions for the distilling industry.

Wheat closed 2½ to 3½ higher, May 2.90¼@2.90; corn was 1½ to 2¼ higher, May 2.58@2.58½; oats were ½ lower to 1¼ higher, May 1.22⅜@1.23½, and soybeans were 1 lower to 1 higher, March 4.11.

50,000 Alley Cats Wanted for Europe

New York, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—A "Cats to Europe" plan was in the making today as the American Feline Society laid plans to comb 39 States, Canada and Costa Rica for 50,000 cats for Europe.

The society acted after the London Daily Mirror ran a front-page editorial stressing the need for a million cats to catch rats stealing grain.

Robert L. Kendell, president of the society, emphasized this was no job for bluebloods. "What we want is just cats—alley cats," he said.

N. Y. Central Nets 36 Cents a Share on Record 1947 Gross

The New York Central Railroad yesterday reported 1947 net income of $2,306,082, equal to 36 cents a share, compared with a net deficit of $10,449,268 in 1946.

The report said the 1947 profit includes $7,350,156 of credit adjustments in taxes, while the 1946 deficit was after a carry-back tax credit of $21,142,300.

Operating revenues in 1947 reached a peacetime peak of $703,340,527, up 14 per cent from $616,784,755 in the preceding year.

Freight revenues were at an all-time record of $496,734,880, 21.4 per cent over $409,199,396 in 1946. Mail and express revenues gained substantially, but passenger revenue fell 10.1 per cent to $133,187,777 from $148,109,502 in the preceding year.

Great Northern Railway in a preliminary 1947 report showed net income of $22,498,700, or $7.27 a share, compared with $23,457,001, or $7.58 a share in the preceding year.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas line reported 1947 net income after fixed charges and adjustment bond interest of $2,820,000, compared with $1,715,000 in the preceding year.

Union Pacific Railroad in a preliminary report for 1947 announced net income of $55,955,469, equal to $23.40 a common share, compared with $34,211,738, equal to $13.60, for the previous year. The earnings include credits of $1,547,973 in 1947 and $3,780,135 the prefious year, representing releases from reserves against possible refunds on United States Government shipments.

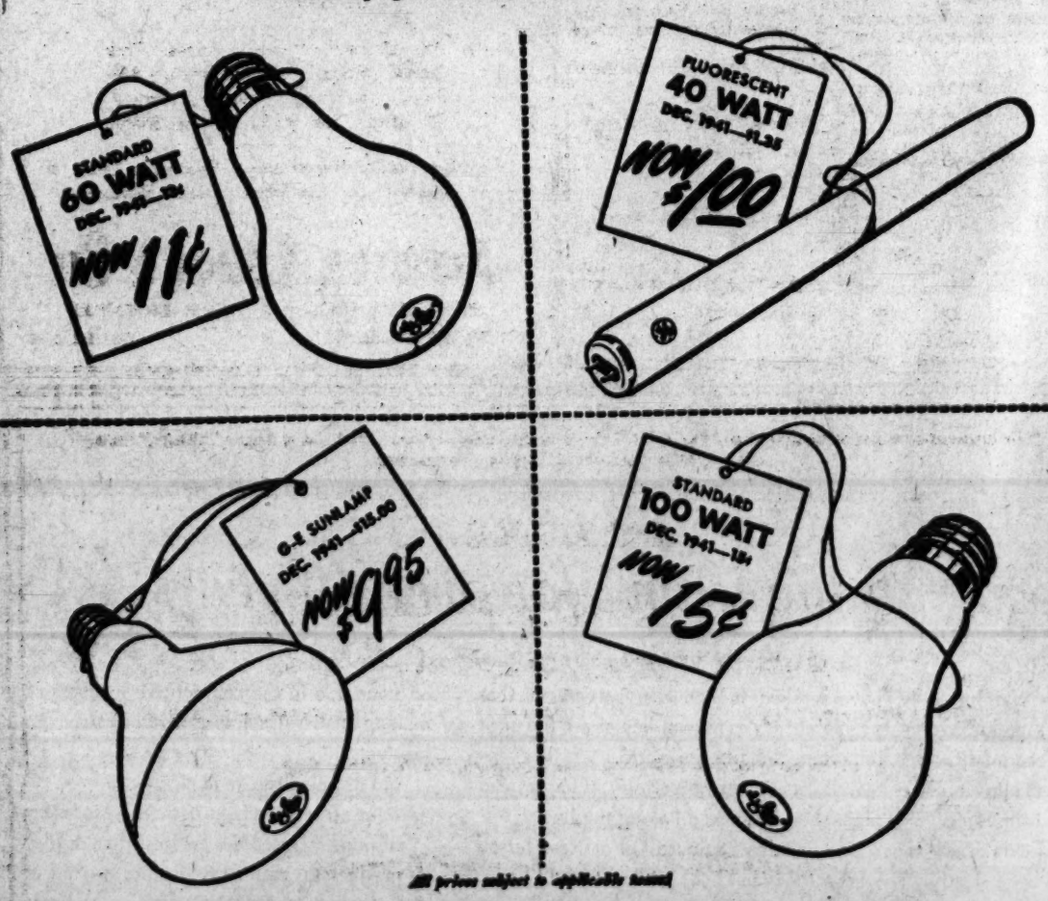
What else do you buy today that costs less than pre-war?

You may be surprised at some of the present prices on General Electric lamps. On the 100-watt bulb it is the same price that you were paying before the war. Prices on some types of lamps are higher. Prices on many lamps are substantially lower than they were in 1941.

But, the average for all G-E Lamp prices is below the December, 1941 level, excluding the present excise tax which the government collects. That's a remarkable accomplishment of the folks who make and sell G-E Lamps—one that is helping to hold the price line today.



All prices subject to applicable taxes

General Electric's policy has always been to develop and make the best possible lamps for every lighting need and to sell them at the lowest possible prices. The constant aim of G-E Lamp Research is to make G-E lamps Stay Brighter Longer.

Gulf Oil Corporation

Capital Stock

(Par Value $25)

Rights, evidenced by Subscription Warrants expiring 3 P.M., Eastern Standard Time, February 10, 1948, to subscribe for these shares at $51 per share (an aggregate of $115,721,550) on the basis of one new share for each four shares held were issued by the Corporation to its Stockholders of record at 3 P.M., Eastern Standard Time, January 27, 1948. After the expiration of the Warrants the Underwriters may publicly offer any unsold Capital Stock at a price or prices not yet determined. Issuance of Capital Stock upon the exercise of Warrants is not conditioned upon the sale of unsubscribed stock to the Underwriters.

The Subscription Warrants have been admitted to trading privileges on the New York Stock Exchange and the Capital Stock is listed on said Exchange.

The following is the Corporation's brief outline of certain information contained in the Offering Prospectus and is subject to the more detailed statements in the Offering Prospectus and the Registration Statement which include important information not outlined or indicated herein.

THE CORPORATION Gulf Oil Corporation, incorporated in Pennsylvania in 1922, and its domestic subsidiaries constitute an integrated unit in the petroleum industry, owning substantial reserves of crude petroleum which are located in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, California, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico and in other states. A wholly owned subsidiary of the Corporation owns petroleum concessions in Venezuela and a wholly owned subsidiary has a 50% interest in Kuwait Oil Company Limited which owns a concession in Kuwait on the northwest corner of the Persian Gulf. DeGolyer and MacNaughton, oil experts, have given their opinion that reasonable estimates of reserves of crude oil and condensate of the Corporation and its subsidiaries, considered proved as of January 1, 1948, are 1,100,000,000 barrels in the United States and 575,000,000 barrels in Venezuela, and a reasonable estimate of the reserves applicable to the Corporation's interest in Kuwait Oil Company Limited, considered proved as of such date, is 5,138,000,000 barrels.

The Corporation and certain subsidiaries own crude oil refineries and natural gasoline plants, pipe lines, tank cars, tankers and other marine equipment and in addition have marketing outlets and equipment in thirty-one States and the District of Columbia in the United States and, through foreign subsidiaries, in many European and other countries.

CAPITALIZATION The outstanding funded debt of the Corporation at December 31, 1947 consisted of $84,000,000 of 1¾% and 1¾% Notes payable to banks due in 1949, a $3,000,000 Installment Note, 2¾%, due in 1948, held by a wholly-owned subsidiary, and a $100,000,000 Installment Note, 2¾%, payable to an insurance company due in annual installments from 1953 to 1972, inclusive.

The Capital Stock of the Corporation consists solely of Capital Stock, par value $25, of which 12,000,000 shares are authorized and 11,345,250 shares will be outstanding after the sale of the 2,269,050 shares covered by the Offering Prospectus. The Capital Stock has one vote per share, has cumulative voting rights in the election of directors and is non-assessable.

EARNINGS The following summary of earnings of the Corporation and consolidated subsidiaries has been reviewed by Price, Waterhouse & Co., independent public accountants, and should be considered in conjunction with the summary of earnings and the financial statements together with the notes appended thereto in the Offering Prospectus.

DIVIDENDS The Corporation has paid dividends in each year since 1922 except in the years 1932 to 1935, inclusive, such dividends aggregating $2.75 per share in 1947. A quarterly dividend of 75¢ per share was paid January 2, 1948.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The purpose of the issue is to raise additional capital funds to be added to the general funds of the Corporation. Included in the uses to which funds may be applied are the acquisition and development of production properties and the expansion of refining, transportation and marketing facilities.

UNDERWRITING While no firm commitment to purchase the unsubscribed shares has been made, the several Underwriters have agreed, subject to certain conditions, to purchase from the Corporation at $51 per share such of the shares of Capital Stock as are not purchased upon exercise of the Warrants. Thus the net cash proceeds to the Corporation from all the shares offered will be $115,721,550 before deducting expenses of the Corporation and underwriting commissions. The aggregate underwriting commissions will be $2,603,735. The Underwriters have no option to purchase less than all the unsubscribed shares. With respect to sales set forth above the Underwriters may realize profits or losses independent of the foregoing underwriting commissions.

Prior to the expiration of the Warrants, the Underwriters will offer Capital Stock, purchased or to be purchased by them, at an offering price which shall be no more than the last sale price of the Stock on the New York Stock Exchange in the last preceding 24-hour period nor less than $51 per share. The offering price may be varied each 24-hour period but, it is intended, shall not be varied within any such period except that it may be reduced. Such sales may include sales to dealers at the offering price less a concession of $1.00 per share or such other concession as may be determined as set forth in the Offering Prospectus. In connection with such offering reference is directed to "Arrangements Regarding Certain Warrants," in the Offering Prospectus for information regarding certain Warrants to be made available for purchase by the Underwriters.

In accordance with the foregoing the several Underwriters offer 1,213,443 shares of the Capital Stock at the price of subject to change without notice.

IN CONNECTION WITH THIS OFFERING, THE UNDERWRITERS MAY EFFECT TRANSACTIONS WHICH STABILIZE OR MAINTAIN THE MARKET PRICES OF THE CAPITAL STOCK AND SUBSCRIPTION WARRANTS OF THE CORPORATION AT LEVELS ABOVE THOSE WHICH MIGHT OTHERWISE PREVAIL IN THE OPEN MARKET. SUCH TRANSACTIONS MAY BE EFFECTED ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE AND IN RESPECT OF CAPITAL STOCK IN THE OVER-THE-COUNTER MARKET. ANY SUCH STABILIZING, IF COMMENCED, MAY BE DISCONTINUED AT ANY TIME.

Further information, particularly financial information, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Commission and in a more complete Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from any of the several Underwriters, including the undersigned.

Park Police Power May Be Extended

Ruling Due Soon

Arguments Closed in Murphy Case

If Fire Chief Clement Murphy is found guilty of using "emphatic" language to firement the public interest will be impaired, his defense counsel argued yesterday.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, Murphy's chief defense counsel, declared in his final brief to the civilian trial board:

"If Murphy is found guilty of abusive language charges, then any officer, under the stress of excitement of fighting a fire can be brought up on charges by any cantankerous individual . . ."

Five of the counts against Murphy allege abusive language. Other charges include two counts of intoxication, improper use of an ambulance, and reduction of the department's efficiency through a personnel transfer system.

A ruling is expected today or tomorrow.

O'Donoghue stated that the alleged strong language, some of which Murphy admitted using, was "merely . . . emphasis that is used in everybody life."

The defense counsel argued that the prosecution failed to prove inefficiency and unifiitness through the overall specifications, and that Murphy cannot be convicted on specific counts which do not show general unfitness.

In his brief, Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher held that if the board finds Murphy guilty of any specific charge "it might properly consider such convictions as proof of inefficiency and recommend removal . . ."

"Congress, as the legislative body for the District of Columbia," said Maher, "did not intend that the charges made against officers of the District should be framed with the technical accuracy of an indictment."

Maher said in his brief, however, that if the charges were "strictly construed," the trial board could find Murphy guilty of one or more counts and not guilty of the general charge.

House Group Acts To Give Protection In 'No Man's Land'

A House Lands subcommittee yesterday voted to extend Park Police powers into Government areas around the District.

The subcommittee acted after hearing how a 22-year-old Government girl employe died in 1946 after she was struck by a car in a policeless "no-man's land" in Arlington, Va., and various police agencies disclaimed jurisdiction to investigate.

Louis F. Frick, Public Buildings attorney, told about the death and later identified the victim as Miss Genelle Huston, 22, of Champaign, Ill., a War Shipping Administration employe, who lived at Arlington Farms.

Miss Huston was struck by an automobile after she alighted from a bus on Ridge rd. near Arlington Farms. Five police agencies disclaimed authority to handle the case for a variety of reasons. The agencies included the Virginia State Police, the Park Police, Arlington County Police, the Metropolitan Police and Military Police. The scene of the accident was on Government property.

The park police bill, sponsored by Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.) would give the park police authority to make arrests in Federal areas in Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., in Alexandria, Va., and in Prince Georges, Anne Arundel and Montgomery Counties, Md.

It would give the Secretary of the Interior authority to make regulations on traffic, protection of persons, and other law enforcement matters in the specified Federal areas.

The subcommittee also heard testimony from Edward J. Kelly of the office of National Capital Parks and Conrad L. Wirth of the National Park Service.

The subcommittee is headed by Representative Frank A. Barrett (R., Wyo.).

290 to Make School Study In Arlington

Appointment of 290 teachers, citizens and specialists in several fields to 14 newly-formed school "exploratory committees" was announced yesterday by the Arlington School Board.

The 14 committees, themselves a new idea in Arlington educational circles, will study county-wide educational problems ranging from mental hygiene to recreation.

Meantime, Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker said yesterday he would contact Virginia's General Assembly to arrange its authorization of a $1,776,000 bond issue voted by county residents for elementary school improvement last spring.

The school board also has voted to call Arlington's new 14th and N. Quincy st. school the "Peyton Randolph School," while naming its auditorium in honor of Miss Lena Carey, late principal of the Patrick Henry School.

Names for the "exploratory committees" were among 454 submitted to the Arlington board by 37 civic organizations.

Health and Physical Education, Dr. Harry C. Trelogan, 6025 N. 18th st.; home economics, Mrs. P. E. O'Donnell, 1702 N. Rhodes st.; libraries, Mrs. Ben White, 3005 N. 2d rd. Mental hygiene, Mrs. Beatrice Smythe, 2240 N. Quebec st.; school building maintenance, Paul Netzer, 1616 N. Taylor st.; guidance, Mrs. Paul J. Southard, 1834 N. Quintana st.; extended school program, Mrs. W. C. Holley, 4436 N. 16th st.; entrance and promotion policy, L. Clark Keating, 4414 Dittmar rd.; vocational education and practical arts, E. A. Draheim, 4622 S. 1st st.; cafeteria and school lunch, Mrs. Arthur True, 205 N. Jackson.

Music and fine arts, Mrs. Charles S. Goode, 621 N. Jackson st.; personnel policies, Mrs. Harrison Mann, jr., 1318 S. Arlington Ridge rd.; audio-visual education, Henry Riblet, 4922 N. 11th st.; full-day sessions and kindergartens, Mrs. Mitchell Dreese, 4136 N. 31st st.

Thin Man Creeps In

Vidalia, Ga. (U.P.).—Police are certain that the "Thin Man" was responsible for two downtown burglaries here. Entrance to both places was gained by removing two boards, each 8 inches wide.

Payment Deferred

Baldwin, Ga. (U.P.).—It was a long time to wait, but depositors of the Baldwin State Bank—which closed 16 years ago—have received another dividend. The 8 per cent payoff amounted to about $6000.

Fines Imposed

4 Convicted In Drunken Driving Cases

Four persons were convicted or pleaded guilty to charges of driving while drunk yesterday in Municipal Court, one drawing a jail sentence of 60 days along with a $200 fine or an extra 60 days if the fine is not paid.

Judge Aubrey Fennell imposed the jail and fine penalty on Arthur Hammond, 33, of 2700 Robinson pl. se., after Hammond had pleaded not guilty. He was also fined $30, with the alternative of an additional 6 days, on charges of failing to show a driving permit to police and passing a red light at Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. ne.

After pleading not guilty and having two witnesses testify against him before a jury, Raymond C. Connelly, 43, 2838 Knox ter. se., decided to plead guilty to driving while drunk. He is scheduled to return for sentence next month. Connelly was arrested on October 26, 1947, at Barney cir. se.

Mrs. Louise B. Poole, 33, of 4738 Homer ave., Suitland, Md., was sentenced to $100 or 60 days by Judge Armand W. Scott on the drunk driving charge. She was arrested in the 100 block of B st. se. after an accident on December 30.

Judge Scott also fined Percy B. McMullen, 37, of 4009 7th st. ne., $100 with the option of 60 days in jail, on the same charge. McMullen was arrested at 4th st. and Todd pl. ne. on December 4.

Exhibit to Explain Cancer Facts

Chicago (U.P.).—A scientific exhibit on cancer which laymen can understand is being planned by the University of Illinois.

The exhibit, to be completed in 1950, is designed to educate the public about the nation's No. 2 killer. Heart disease is No. 1.

Constructed on entirely new lines, the display will cover a variety of subjects. It will explain causes, treatment, diagnosis, research, and methods by which the disease spreads.

It also will attempt to clear up popular misconceptions regarding cancer.

The exhibit was begun at the request of the American Cancer Society. One section will be devoted to an information center where current facts about cancer will be available.

Editor Taken Seriously

Calhoun, Ga. (U.P.).—Roy McGinty, editor of the Calhoun Times, printed an editorial outlining what he would do if he were mayor. Though it was not meant as a platform for candidacy, McGinty was elected without opposition. Oddly, he had advocated greater taxes.

Empire Buildnig Collapse Probers Prepare Report

Members of the inquiry board in the Empire Building collapse will meet today or Monday to prepare final drafts of their report on the cause of the collapse, Stewart Beall board chairman revealed last night.

Beall said the board thinks "we have all the information we need" but indicated additional hearings may yet be held if more witnesses are found.

Four persons were killed and 12 injured when the interior of the structure at 9th st. and New York ave. nw. collapsed December 16.

14 in County Trailer Camp Face Arrest

Warrants for arrest of 14 residents of Hillside Trailer Camp on Marlboro Pike near the District Line were sworn out yesterday by Prince Georges County Sanitary Engineer Charles L. Wood.

The camp was ordered closed for alleged noncompliance with Prince Georges County health regulations more than three months ago.

Charles Holle, owner of the land on which the trailers are parked, asserts he has not given permission for the families to occupy the property since the closing order was received and the camp manager left.

The warrants are returnable February 6 at Upper Marlboro Police Court.

Named in the warrants were: J. R. Paulman, W. R. Mosier, C. M. Benson, J. J. Johnson, E. H. Harmon, H. C. Parker, G. S. Carrico, A. Karaus, L. Balestra, R. L. Gray, W. D. Hartley, J. C. Rowe, E. F. Gaines and H. J. Warlick.

The warrants charge the defendants are remaining on the premises without permission of the owner.

Shout, Don't Whisper, Is Sales Advice

Chicago (U.P.).—An official of a large food corporation addressed a fruit and vegetable conference at the American Farm Bureau Federation convention on "Sales Promotion and Policies in Distribution."

He ended his talk with a rhyme:

"He who whispers down a well
About the goods he has to sell
Will never make as many dollars
As he who climbs a tree and hollers."

Years Take Toll

York, Pa. (U.P.).—The York Collegiate Institute, 148 years in business, will be shut down at the end of the present term. The school has operated at a loss for the last 15 years.

Lane Cites Huge Maryland Loss at Fire Safety Conference

Maryland's annual fire loss would in four years pay the cost of bridging the Chesapeake Bay, Gov. William Preston Lane told the Maryland Fire Safety Conference yesterday at College Park.

The conference, called by Governor Lane as first step in a State-wide campaign to reduce fire loss, was held in the Fire Extension Service Building at University of Maryland.

The State's fire loss for the past year is more than seven million dollars, and 14 persons, most of them children, have lost their lives during the past 90 days in Maryland, the Governor pointed out.

The Governor called for the assistance and cooperation of all citizens in the fire prevention drive, which will probably have its headquarters at the university.

Approximately 100 persons attended yesterday's conference.

Besides the Governor, other conference speakers included the Rev. James W. Minter, chaplain of the State Firemen's Association; Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the university; Dr. Alfred Fleming, supervisor of the conservation department of the National Board of Fire Underwriters; Charles R. Stallings, president of the State Firemen's Association, and Philip Ryan, who summarized the proposed functions of the recently named Maryland Fire Safety Committee.

Church There to Stay

Hingham, Mass. (U.P.).—The parishioners of the Hingham Center Evangelical Congregational Church already are planning the church's 200th aniversary in 2047. At a 100th anniversary celebration, a fund was set up to provide for the observance 100 years hence.

Burglars Hold Party

New York (U.P.).—Burglars who broke into the offices of the Griffin Wellpoint Corp. not only took $300 after ripping open a safe, they also went into the company's kitchen and helped themselves to soup, ham and eggs, coffee and a bottle of Scotch.

He's been "on the team" for over 40 years . . .

LOU HELDMAN happens to be a Warehouse Superintendent in Baltimore. He might have been a tank truck driver, an accountant, a research chemist, or president of our company—the basic story would run the same.

He came to work for Standard Oil of New Jersey years ago. His work has been steady and his pay has been good. At 65, he'll retire with a life income under the company pension plan. In the Thrift Plan, he's got a tidy cash nest-egg saved up. He's had regular vacations with pay, and special protection in case of sickness or accident.

In short, Lou has a high degree of the things that mean most to a man with a job.

He has them because it was planned that way. For over 30 years, this company's workers, their unions, and the management have worked in common agreement that people's needs as human beings are the most important thing in the world.

And it's not mere generosity. It has proved plain good business all along the line.

The average Standard Oil of New Jersey worker today has been with us over 14 years. More than 8,000 of them over 20 years. That's a lot of seasoned manpower to have on your side in the competitive business of making quality gasoline and other petroleum products.

And its benefits extend clear out to you . . .

Right now the whole petroleum industry is straining to meet the greatest demand for its products in all history — and this staff of skilled, experienced people is your assurance that everything possible is being done with this company's facilities to meet your needs for more and better petroleum products.

As your neighbors, too, people like these are good citizens, steady customers of local stores, steady payers of local taxes.

And year after year, as makers of products you depend on in your car or factory or home or on your farm . . . they're second to none in ability to give good value at modest price!

Swiss Defy Olympic Ban of U. S. Hockey Teams

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NAVY HAS been screening football coaches at the rate of one a day for the vacant job at Annapolis and the pattern of Navy thinking on the subject is now becoming quite clear.

From all the evidence, as the candidates beat a path to Annapolis, subject themselves to interview and go home to await the findings of the three-man Navy panel that will pick the man, the new head coach at Navy must (1) come out of the Big Six Conference, (2) must have served in the Navy pre-flight training program during the war, and (3) preferably be a man who saw service on the "Big E," as they delight in calling the air carrier Enterprise.

POVICH

Capt. Tom Hamilton, the retired coach, who soon will take office as athletic director at Annapolis, hasn't gone very far afield in his search for a civilian who will succeed him as head coach. All of the the three men he has interviewed thus far are coaches at Big Six schools, were with him in the preflight program, and two of them served on the Big E.

They are Don Faurot, coach of Missouri U.; Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, coach at Oklahoma and George Sauer, coach at Kansas. Apparently unless you are a former Navy man, you need not apply.

FAUROT APPARENTLY was Hamilton's top choice. The young Missouri coach had a head start with Hamilton, anyway, it seems. During the war, Hamilton was so infatuated with the split T version of football originated by Faurot that it became standard for all preflight teams and Hamilton himself installed the system when he returned to Navy as head coach.

Faurot talked with the Navy people, and then all of a sudden withdrew his candidacy for the job, despite the fact the pay is nice, about $15,000 a year, and at least a three-year contract would be guaranteed. Perhaps a five-year term. Wilkinson and Sauer have not yet eliminated themselves or been eliminated, but neither has expressed any great enthusiasm for the job since surveying the situation at Navy and being surveyed.

One football man who asks for anonymity has declared the Navy may be up against it in trying to hire a top-flight coach. The better coaches may not be eager for the job, he points out. He hints that Faurot, secure in his Missouri job, wanted no part of the head coaching job at Navy after weighing all the circumstances, chief of which was lack of material.

"THE COACH who takes the job at Navy will be working with nice people, and he'll have a nice contract, but he ought to be disturbed about where he will get his nice football teams," said our visitor. "No coach is going to be happy unless he can win a fair share of games and at Navy there's not much flow of player material.

"At Navy, he'll have wonderful working conditions. The athletic plant at Annapolis is the last word. He'll have plenty assistants, trainers, rubbers and discipline. But you don't win football games with good athletic plants. You need football players, too, and Navy's scouting system apparently isn't much and its alumni are of no great help in rounding up players.

"The Navy spirit is wonderful. He'll find his kids all fired up with the ambition to win games and thinking that Navy never should be licked. But, don't forget, he'll be playing other teams that have good spirit, too. Navy has no corner on inspiration. And at Navy, he'll be asked to play one of the toughest schedules of any team in the country. For the past two years the Middies have had a Notre Dame schedule with Bilgewater material. No wonder they've won only two games in two years."

NAVY'S ACTION in adopting a new policy of civilian coaching may be commendable enough, although a civilian coach is not the cure-all for the football troubles at Annapolis. Hamilton, when he had a good flow of material before the war, demonstrated that an officer-coach could turn out good football teams by beating both Notre Dame and Army in two of the three years he played them.

It wasn't presumed, though, that when Navy did decide to hire a civilian coach it would confine its search to former Navy men of the preflight program. The Annapolis people have not completely divorced themselves from the officer-coach policy. Now, seemingly, they are demanding a former-officer coach. Somehow, it appears to be a narrow field they are sifting.

One solution for Navy would be, of course, to fit its schedule to its material, and get out from under the heavy commitments. That would make it more attractive to the coach, at least. When you lose eight games a season, nobody remembers that you played the tough teams. You're just a losing coach.

MAULING MARYLANDERS—Coach Heinie Miller warns five members of his Terp boxing squad they face a formidable foe in LSU at College Park Friday night. Listening are Ed Rieder, 155-pounder; Barney Lincoln, 135; Walter Lindquist, 175; Roland Hyde, 145; and Dave Chance, 135. LSU defeated Idaho, 1947 champs, last week. The Terps have been beaten only by Army and hold victories over Catholic U. and South Carolina

Sports Near Washington:

Art Lewis Remains Coach At W. & L. for Next 3 Years

Lexington, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Washington and Lee football fans who have been worried that head football Coach Art Lewis might be lured to a larger institution can relax today.

According to Lewis himself, the big man from Parkersburg, W. Va., will be coaching the Generals for the next three years.

Lewis said last night that he had signed the recently-offered three-year pact and added that, "I'm happy here and may even buy a farm."

Woodstock Bowler Rolls for 8½ Hours

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 28.—Charles Lambert, 19, set a new area marthon bowling record when he rolled out 100 games in 8½ hours here.

The marathoner, whose high game score for the string was 154, stopped several times for checks of his heart condition.

Caps, Bullets Clash

Baltimore, Jan 28 (AP).—The intercity rivalry between the Baltimore Bullets and Washington Capitols of the Basketball Association of America will be renewed as the feature of a sports carnival at the Fifth Regiment Armory Friday night.

The carnival is being staged for benefit of the March of Dimes instead of the customary President's ball.

The Bullets and Capitols have met three times this season and the Washington club has won them all. In two games, the winning margin was only two points, one of them being an overtime contest.

Girl With Terps

The University of Maryland rifle team, featuring a coed who can handle a gun with the best of them, announced today a 10-match schedule for the 1948 season.

The girl on the squad, considered one of the top collegiate rifle teams in this section, is Sharon MacBride, the first coed to take an active part on a Maryland varsity team.

Lead by Art Cook, junior national champion, the Terps already have scored wins over Georgetown and Western Maryland.

Anglers to Talk

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission will give Free State outdoor sportsmen a chance to be heard tomorrow on three proposals.

Public hearings will be held on a State-wide season from February 25 to November 30 for white perch; opening of Evitts Creek in Allegany County for catching of fish other than trout, and closing for three years starting next year of White Rock, Hoyes Run, North Branch Bear Creek, Shield's Run, Middle Fork, Blue Lick and Big Run.

Taylor Signs With Redskins

Hugh Taylor, 6-foot, 4-inch end yesterday signed his 1948 contract with the Washington Redskins.

Taylor broke in with the Redskins last fall by catching three touchdowns passes in his first game and was looked upon as another Don Hutson, greatest pass receiver professional football has produced.

Illness later slowed Taylor down but he was able to score six touchdowns on 26 pass receptions. Against the Chicago Cardinals, National League champions, Taylor was in the game for only one play and scored a touchdown.

Taylor played college ball at Oklahoma City University. He weighed 197 pounds last season and Redskin officials hope that the winter-long rest will enable him to recover from his illness (recurrent attacks of fever) and gain about 20 pounds.

Coaching Job At Navy Still A Dark Secret

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

A veil of secrecy, reminiscent of wartime security measures, was drawn yesterday at the cloistered United States Naval Academy.

However, by unceasing effort, The Washington Post learned (through official channels) that Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, had "no information" on the coaching situation.

This terse statement was relayed by Comdr. Bryon L. Gurnett, the admiral's flag secretary.

The usually reliable Associated Press confirmed a report that George Sauer, presently head coach at Kansas, was interviewed yesterday by the academy braid.

It went so far as to quote Sauer saying, "I did a lot of listening and talking; we asked many questions back and forth. We discussed the matter in detail."

Sauer's interview followed the pattern of the Tuesday session for Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, coach at Oklahoma University.

The two Big Six coaches, former Navy officers, are considered the hottest prospects for Capt. Tom Hamilton's job. The Navy just wasn't saying whether or not any other candidates still might be in the field.

Only positive news from Annapolis was that Robert C. McNeish, backfield coach for the past two years, will resign when his contract expires this spring.

McNeish, former Southern California halfback and backfield coach at USC and St. Mary's Preflight School, declined comment on his future plans. Previously, he had asked that his name be withdrawn from the list being considered for the head coaching job.

Unknown was the status of the only other civilian academy coach, Eddie Erdelatz, end mentor. The third, Rip Miller, is moving up as assistant to Captain Hamilton when he becomes director of athletics in June.

GW Wins on Goal in Last Five Seconds

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Maynard Haithcock, George Washington guard, made only one field goal for his team tonight, but that lone marker coming in the last five seconds of play gave the Colonials a 60-58 Southern Conference victory over Virginia Tech.

Haithcock's set shot ended a rugged see-saw battle that saw the lead change hands or the game tied 11 times in the last 15 minutes of play.

The Colonials, who apparently had Tech outclassed in the opening minutes, saw an early lead dwindle as the half approached and left the floor with a bare 34-31 margin.

Things were even tougher for George Washington in the second half and Tech led 37-36 three minutes after the intermission. With five minutes remaining the Colonials got back into the lead, 50-49, on the strength of sharp shooting by Ace Adler and Bill Cantwell.

The game was tied at 57-all when each team capitalized on a free toss and then Haithcack contributed his game-winning bucket to the dismay of a partisan crowd.

The victory was the ninth in conference competition for George Washington and marked the third straight circuit loss of Virginia Tech.

Maryland Sells 3000 Seats For Bouts With LSU Friday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Midterm vacations at Maryland will benefit Washingtonians to the extent that 3000 of them will be able to watch the Terp boxing team meet the formidable Louisiana State University squad at Ritchie Coliseum Friday night.

Heretofore, less than 1000 seats have been set aside for the general public, but Maryland athletic director Walter Driskill last night announced that approximately 3000 seats will go on sale at the coliseum this morning for the intersectional ring match.

The seats, all reserved, are priced at $2. First of the eight bouts starts at 8:30 p.m.

The Terps and the invading Bengals are listed among the Nation's collegiate boxing powerhouses. Maryland has won three of its four matches, including a Sugar Bowl triumph over Michigan State, while LSU chalked up a 5-3 triumph over Idaho, 1947 college champs, in its lone appearance this season.

Both squads are composed primarily of sophomores and two of the second-year-men, Lightweights Andy Quattrocchi of Maryland, and Doug Ellwood of LSU, are expected to furnish the fireworks of a card which has all the earmarks of being a sizzler from start to finish.

Quattrocchi has been required to fight only three rounds in all three of his bouts this year, disposing of each of his opponents in less than three minutes.

Ellwood, captain of the Bengals, is one of the Nation's outstanding college mittmen. As a freshman, he flattened Wisconsin's Jackie Gibbons, national intercollegiate bantamweight ruler and who prior to meeting Ellwood was unbeaten in four years of college competition.

In addition to the touted Quattrocchi, the Terps are counting on their two Southern Conference champions, Captain Eddie Rieder and Heavyweight Ken Malone, to score for them against LSU.

Rieder, 155-pound champ, and Quattrocchi, between them have scored seven knockouts in eight bouts this season. Rieder was held to a draw in a Sugar Bowl bout, the only time either he or Quattrocchi has been held to the distance.

The LSU team arrived yesterday morning and worked out at Georgetown University. Maryland went through its final paces at College Park.

Muggsy Morris Dies Here at 55

Robert Emmett (Muggsy) Morris, local boxing figure, died yesterday at the Naval Medical Hospital. He was 55.

Morris was widely known as a referee and announcer for many years. He officiated at the old Ardmore, Sportland Heights, Fort Washington and Portner Arenas as well as at the more modern boxing sites here.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning from the Clements funeral home. A requiem mass will be celebrated at Fort Myer Chapel and buriel will be at Arlington.

Morris was a member of the American Legion and the Holy Name Society.

Mrs. Glick Bows at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Eddie Bush of Wilmington, Del., staged a major upset in the second round of match play of the sixteenth annual Helen Lee Doherty women's golf tournament today in defeating favored Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., 1 up.

Medalist Louise Suggs of Atlanta easily won over Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 6 and 4.

Jean Hopkins of Cleveland, Ohio, defeated Alice O'Neal of Indianapolis, Ind., 3 and 2, and Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio, another favorite, won her match with Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore, Md., 4 and 3. Mrs. Glick is the Maryland State champion.

Hosts Say AHA Sextet Is Eligible To Take Part

By Ted Smits
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Swiss defied the authority of the International Olympic Executive Committee tonight by refusing to obey an order throwing both disputed United States hockey teams out of the winter games starting Friday.

"The Amateur Hockey Association remains qualified to participate in the ice hockey championship," the Swiss Olympic Committee declared in a formal statement.

Nothing in the Olympic code covers the situation.

Meanwhile, the International Ice Hockey Federation quashed reports it might withdraw its teams from the Olympics and hold a world championship elsewhere by announcing it planned to stick with the Swiss Olympic organizing committee

An informed source said one possibility was that th eentire International Olympic Committee, meeting tomorrow, might remove the Olympic stamp from hockey but still leave it on the program with the Amateur Hockey Association team participating.

Other Teams May Withdraw

Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic Committee, has declared that if the AHA team competes in the Olympics, his committee will withdraw All American athletes from the games.

But if hockey is struck from the official Olympic program, even if continued as an exhibition or a world championship, the way is presumably clear for the United States ski, bob sled, and skating teams to compete.

Meeting as a "jury of honor," the International Olympic Executive Committee resolved, "owing to irregularities on both sides, not to allow either hockey team of the United States to compete in the winter games."

The hockey team selected by the United States Olympic Committee—which apparently gets the trip to St. Moritz just for fun—attended with other members of the United States team a banquet given by Brundage.

No Immediate Action

Informed of the Swiss decision, Brundage declared, "Now you have got a story," and J. Sigfried Edstrom, International Olympic president, immediately interjected, "Well, we're going to sleep on it tonight. We're not going to do anything now."

The whole angry international dispute which has marred the resumption of the winter Olympics after a 12-year war lapse began a year ago when the International Hockey Federation declared the Amateur Athletic Association no longered governed hockey in the United States.

Instead, said the federation, the Amateur Hockey Association was in charge.

Brundage declared the Amateur Hockey Association is under commercial sponsorship, and refused to certify its team for the Olympics.

The Swiss accepted the entry of the A. H. A. team and refused the team sponsored by the United States Olympic Committee.

It was in this tense atmosphere that the executive committee met this afternoon.

Compromise Plan for Armory Near

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

District and National Guard officials last night were reported near a compromise agreement on control of the revenue and non-military uses of Washington's armory.

The plan calls for:

1. Control of the non-military uses of the armory by a three-member board—the Commanding General of the District National Guard, the president of the District Board of Commissioners, and the chairman of the House District Committee.

2. The National Guard would get the income from refreshments sold at the Armory, and the District would get the income from the armory for sports events, meetings, and other non-military uses.

3. The scale of rentals for use of the armory by public and non-profit private schools and colleges would be lower than the rentals charged for commercial users.

The compromise was said to have been first proposed by James R. Kirkland, counsel for the Senate District Committee.

Another Parley Today

The Commissioners discussed the plan in a meeting late yesterday, but officials said there had been a question about some technical details, and final approval was not given.

These technical questions are slated to be the subject of a conference today between Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and Kirkland.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara, (R., Minn.) chairman of the House District Judiciary subcommittee had called for preparation of a compromise plan to settle the differences on the armory control question raised at a hearing by official agencies.

But Suspensions in '47 Increase Boxing Revenue in New York Off,

New York, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Boxing's contribution to the New York State treasury tumbled $138,921.64, in 1947, mostly because there was no outdoor heavyweight championship fight, the Athletic Commission revealed tonight in its annual report.

At the same time, the commission disclosed that a total of 397 fighters was suspended during the year, 102 more than in 1946.

The report said that the State's income dropped from the $332,924.92 in 1946 to the $194,033.28 collected in 1947.

Boxing's dirty linen came in for a large share of the report. The suspensions of Ray Robinson, Rocky Graziano and Jake LaMotta were reviewed in detail, but without comment.

Tinker's All-Stars

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Joe Tinker, just one year from the date they discharged him from the hospital after amputating his left leg above the knee, today declared he "was fit as a fiddle." The former Cubs star picked an all-time, all-star major league baseball team—something sports writers have been trying to get him to do for years.

Tinker picked:

Pitchers: Walter Johnson, Washington Senators, and Ed Walsh, Chicago White Sox; catchers: Johnny Kling, Chicago Cubs, and Roger Breshahan, New York Giants; infielders: George Sisler, St. Louis Browns, first base; Tony Lazzerri, New York Yankees, second base; Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh Pirates, shortstop; Jimmy Collins, Boston Red Sox, third base; outfielders: Babe Ruth, New York Yankees, Tris Speaker, Cleveland Indians and Ty Cobb, Detroit Tigers.

McCarthy Makes Bow

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP).—As usual, Joe McCarthy had little to say today when formally introduced as new manager of the Boston Red Sox but Marse Joe did relax long enough to promise:

"I'll do the best I can and give all I've got."

This assertion came after an unidentified scribe shouted the query, "gonna win the pennant?"

McCarthy ended his brief talk to the baseball news gatherers by asserting that "sometimes I might not answer your questions directly but I will never like to you."

Babe Defends Title

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Zaharias, notified Florida mixed two-ball open golf officials today that she plans to be on hand to team up with Gerald Walker to defend their title here February 24.

Walker, manages the Charleston club in the South Atlantic league.

Giants Draft Gehrke

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Bill Swiacki and Bruce Gehrke, Columbia's regular ends last season, may be reunited as members of the New York Giants of the National Football League. Swiacki already has been signed and today the Giants announced Gehrke was their third draft choice.

The club's first 10 draft picks were Tony Minisi of Pennsylvania, Joe Scott of San Francisco, Gehrke, John Wolosky of Penn State, Bill Erickson of Mississippi, Bob Pfohl of Purdue, Ray Coates of Louisiana State, Ken Wiltgen of Northwestern, Stan Magdziak of William and Mary and Pete Lanzi of Youngstown.

Tucker to Indians

Cleveland, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Outfielder Thurman Tucker, described as "the finest defensive player in baseball" by his new employers, went to the Cleveland Indians from the Chicago White Sox in a straight player deal for Rookie Catcher Ralph Weigel.

Too Cold for Golf

Tucson, Jan. 28 (AP).—Below freezing temperatures and winds reaching a velocity of 33 miles an hour today postponed, and possibly eliminated, the pro-amateur golf tournament scheduled for today as a preliminary to the opening of the $10,000 Tucson Open tomorrow.

Texas Good on Fouls

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—There's a good reason why Texas is regarded as tops in the Southwest Conference and one of the Nation's best teams in collegiate basketball—the Texans seldom miss from the foul line.

Statistics released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, covering games played by major teams through January 24, show the defending champs have converted 189 of 259 charity tosses. That's an average of nearly three in every four attempts (.730) and tops in the Nation.

Pastor Goes Punching

Lublock, Tex., Jan. 28 (AP).—They call him "the punching pastor" and he lives up to his name.

Randall Hinkle, a Baptist Minister at 17—youngest in the South Plains country&will be one of the title contenders in the regional Golden Gloves boxing tournament here February 2-5. He is a middleweight.

"I live cleanly," he says. "I don't smoke or drink. I believe a boxing bout can be as beautifully clean as life itself."

Haight Needs No Skis To Put Him on Skids

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

MOST OF US are familiar with the popular song, "Civilization," in which a savage chants "Don't want no bright lights, street cars, noise in my ears, etc.," concluding with "They have a thing called atom bomb, but I think I'll stay right where I awm."

Haight

He could add the line, "They have a thing called a pair of skis, but I think I'll stay right where I ees."

That's what I'm going to do.

I was invited to go skiing last week, but I've decided I'm having a tough enough time walking on our waxed floor. I shudder to picture my fat self speeding down some mountain side on a couple of barrel staves.

Don't think me ungrateful. If it were not for skiing I would not have known two fine gentlemen —President Norman Moore and Treasurer Ed Gallagher of the Ski Club of Washington.

They preach skiing and practice it, too. They painted mental pictures of the sport—invigorating, stimulating—until I was eager for a frigid communion with nature, topped off, at day's end, with a hot butter rum.

But that was before I met a certain fellow. Upon learning I intended to take up skiing, he laughed, "So you're going in for skiing, greatest reading sport in America?"

"Whatta you mean by reading sport?" I asked.

"You break a leg and spend the next six months with nothing to do but read," was his frightening answer and he continued, "Have you ever been in Paris in the spring?"

To that silly question I replied in the negative and he upped with "If you go skiing you may end up in Plaster of Paris in the spring."

He didn't have to add "if you know what I mean."

THAT CONVERSATION added to some news reports from abroad telling of misfortunes to Olympic ski stars, took all the ski out of me.

But there's no denying, skiing is the fastest growing sport in America today. Everybody seems to want in on the "all that goes up must come down" game.

Except for a few scattered individuals, there was no organized skiing hereabouts until the mid 30s. During the heavy snows of the 1935-1936 winter, some skiers —native and adopted Washingtonians—met out Rock Creek Park way and decided when skiing was not available here to take a trip to the mountains in Pennsylvania.

A railroad stepped in with a special train and after several successful weekend trips, the Ski Club of Washington was formed. Since it has grown like a snow ball rolling down hill.

MEMBERS, naturally, take advantage of every chance to get into action locally, but when conditions fail here they are off to the mountain country. The most popular spots are Laurel Mountain Slopes (175 miles), near Jennerstown, Pa.; Seven Spring Farm (175 miles), near Laughlintown, Pa.; State College, Pa. (175 miles); New Germany (170 miles), near Grantsville, Md.; Summit Hotel (190 miles), near Uniontown, Pa.; Oakland, Md. (165 miles); Terra Alta, W. Va. (175 miles); Spruce Knob Area, W. Va. (175 to 200 miles).

Day trips, when conditions are right, are made to Shenandoah National Park, Va. (100 miles); Manassas Gap, Va. (65 miles); Turners Gap, Md. (57 miles).

Members go by chartered bus to the skiing centers on weekends at a cost of approximately $20 each.

If you don't think skiing is catching, one of the most enthusiastic converts is the bus driver, who believed he was transporting a load of lunatics on his first trip.

I'm told skiing is not dangerous when properly indulged in. There are a lot of "don'ts" to the sport, and I understand many who are injured probably would be hit by streetcars or fall down steps anyway.

It must be fun—but I pass.

Incidentally, if you happen to bump into the anticivilization savage referred to at the start of this piece, tell him I was only kidding.

I don't want him to be singing, "They have a thing called the sirloin steak, but I think I'd rather have Walter Haight."

Sunshine Double Pays $3148; at Hialeah It's $8.70

Miami., Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—The long and short of it came up in Florida racing today.

While 6125 patrons cashed $2 daily double tickets worth $8.70 each at Miami's Hialeah race course a "little man with a big cigar" presented the only daily double ticket at Tampa's Sun-Shine Park and walked away with $3148,40.

Hialeah's daily double was made up of Arose, paying $4.60 in the first and Beau Dandy, a $2.70 for $2 choice in the second.

Koko G. won the first at Sunshine Park, returning $12.50 for a $2 win ticket. Duo Lady copped the second, paying $100.90, $53.00 and $18.50 across the board.

Parimutuel officials at Tampa said the lucky "little man" declined to give his name. After receiving a flood of greenbacks, he peeled off $4 for two tickets on the next race and disappeared.

Favored Alfoxie Easily Captures Jasmine

Caltha Takes 2d, Allies Pal Runs Third

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Alfoxie, a favorite in the field of four 3-year-old fillies, easily captured the $10,000 added Jasmine Stakes at Hialeah race course today.

Expertly handled by Jockey Arnold Kirkland and under a 109-pound impost, the black speedster went the 6-furlong sprint in 1:10 3-5, a fifth of a second faster than Cosmic Missile's winning time last year.

Walter P. Chrysler, jr.'s, Caltha, ridden by leading Jockey Ted Atkinson, was second, and S. D. Sidell's Allies Pal, with Al Snider up, third. Mrs. Frank Frankel's Flawless Pearl was the only other filly in the race.

The victory, Alfoxie's second in as many starts, was worth $7400 to Owner A. C. Ernst of Cleveland, Ohio.

Two-dollar backers received $4 and $2.50 on the winning horse. Caltha paid $2.50. There was no show betting.

Central Noses Episcopal With Big 3d Period, 43-40

Sponsler Spurs Rally, Gets 18 Pts.

A third-period rally during which they scored more than half their points enabled Central's Vikings to edge out Episcopal High of Alexandria, 43-40, yesterday at Alexandria.

The heavily favored Vikings were off to a bad start and trailed, 22-12, at halftime. However, they caught fire in the third period to outscore Episcopal, 23-5, and take a 35-27 lead into the final quarter. They stayed in front the rest of the way.

Out of the line-up because of a bad cold was Central's leading point-maker, Jimmy Pantos. Picking up the slack was Center Hal Sponsler, who tossed in 18 markers. Sponsler paced the third period Central surge by registering five field goals in eight minutes.

Henry Schacht of Episcopal tied Central's Bob Johnson for second high scoring honors, each checking in with 10 points.

The victory was the sixth in the last seven games for Central, bringing the Vikings' season record to 8-3. Episcopal's loss was its fifth straight following its opening game victory.

Roosevelt Loses Rohr

56 Interhigh Athletes End Schoolboy Careers Friday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

SCHOOL DAYS end tomorrow for six graduating interhigh basketball players, also for 50 schoolboy baseball, football and track stars.

The baskeiers bowing out in the two Friday doubeheaders at the Armory are Bobby Rohr of Coolidge, Lou (Poochie) Negri of Western, Bill Scott of Eastern and Emory Ellis, Pete Limber and Joe Friedman of Roosevelt.

Most keenly felt will be Coolidge's loss of Rohr, who has been the backbone of the Colt team. The only holdover of the Colts' 1946 and '47 championship teams, Rohr has been the league's best defensive player this season, and also one of its most aggressive performers under the backboards.

A star in baseball and football as well as basketball, Rohr will spend much of next week discussing the propositions of several major league baseball teams and colleges. He batted .370 and stole 12 bases in 9 games as Coolidge won the baseball title last spring. He is a first baseman. He plays halfback in football.

Other February graduates who will meet with pro baseball representatives are Pitchers Houston (Tex) Jones of Collidge, Bobby Jones of Tech and Bernie Myles of Eastern and Outfielder Ed Clark of Tech.

Tex Jones survived two years of interhigh pitching without a loss in 12 games. Three of his victories were no-hitters and three others were one-hitters. Bobby Jones hurled a no-hitter and three one-hitters last season. Myles pitched a streach of 33 consecutive scoreless innings last year. And Clark batted .440.

The lad whom the colleges will be hottest after is Robert (Bugs) Thompson, Tech's stellar triple-threat halfback, who led his team to the championship last season. Thompson is weighing propositions from some 20 schools.

Among the other February graduates are football stars Bob Bell, Ed Cleary, Jim McCauley and Buck Bernstein of McKinley Tech, Jimmy Johnson, Bill Wallace, Bob Petrillo, Bob Douglas, Jimmy Panor, Bill Tucker and Bill Giglio of Central and Chuck Ackerman, Jerry Kull and Don Crumpler of Coolidge.

Also, Tommy Hines, Jim Lassiter, Wally Newman and Dick Waller of Anacostia, Bob Harkey and George Roberson of Eastern, Jack Leadbetter and Charlie Ashton of Western, Stan Stearman, and Aris Bacas of Roosevelt.

Other baseball standouts graduating are Lee Durkay of Tech and Irv Shear, Lou Sledge and Bernie Mead of Roosevelt.

Louis Faces Bob Foxworth In Exhibition

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP).—Storm warnings today flew over the training camp of Bob Foxworth, aspirant to the world's light heavyweight championship.

Foxworth, 23, of East St. Louis, Ill., a rollicking puncher with 14 knockout victories in 18 professional bouts, has a four-round exhibition date with Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, in the Coliseum tomorrow night.

Normally, an exhibition is just another exhibition for Louis. But he regards this one as different, principally because of his sorry showing against Jersey Joe Walcott in New York last December 5. He will be gunning for a knockout, hoping to bow out with blazing fists in his farewell ring appearance in the city where he won the title.

"If he don't duck and I don't duck," Louis warned today, "both of us is likely to get hurt. I'm gonna be trying to hit somebody like I didn't hit Walcott."

Foxworth, who usually knocks out his opponent or sets him up for a finishing blow within four rounds, isn't impressed by the fact that he and Louis will be wearing 16-ounce gloves.

Louis probably will have a 30-pound weight advantage, scaling about 220 to 180 for Foxworth.

Louis will fight another exhibition in Baltimore, Md., February 9 and leave February 19 for England on an eight-week exhibition tour.

Guckeyson Portrait Shown

An oil painting of the late Bill Guckeyson, one of the greatest all-around athletes at the University of Maryland and West Point, will be hung in the Washington Touchdown Club's gallery of famous sports personalities.

Guckeyson

Guckeyson set several records which still are standing at the University of Maryland which he attended in 1933-37. He went on to West Point after winning letters in football, track, baseball and basketball.

Guckeyson was a leading scorer on the gridiron for Maryland, hit .320 in baseball and his javelin toss of 218 feet still stands. He attended Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

The oil painting now hangs in the lobby of the university administration building. It will remain there until February 16 when it will be received officially by the Touchdown Club at a dinner and dedicated by Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president.

WHY YOU MUST SAVE FUEL OIL NOW

Here's the problem that must be faced

This is what we're doing to meet the situation

Here's how you can help stretch the supply

You... your neighbors... your schools, your hospitals... are faced with a serious situation—the possibility of not having enough fuel oil to last the winter. Never before has it been more important that you save fuel oil and kerosene.

This is the case despite the fact that right now, more oil products are being produced and delivered than ever before in the nation's history. With more oil burners, more cars, more diesel trains, planes, farm machinery, the demand for oil exceeds even peak war years. Oil is asked to do—and does—more all the time!

EVERY BRANCH of the oil industry is working at breakneck speed to meet the ever-growing demand. Production of oil products is now at an all-time high... oil reserves at a record high level.

The oil industry is spending over 4 billion dollars to find new sources of supply... to expand refinery and distribution facilities... to provide extra, faster methods of transportation. But in this industry, as in many others, there are difficulties in obtaining necessary materials to expand facilities—refineries, means of transportation, storage. To correct the situation will take time.

In the meantime, there's one way you can help: save all the fuel oil you can... right now! It's the best way you can insure yourself having enough fuel oil the rest of this winter.

Save MONEY... save FUEL OIL... help stretch the supply.

1. Keep temperature at moderate level—not more than 68 degrees. Turn thermostat to 60 or below at night.
2. Keep doors, windows closed, shades drawn. Close off unused rooms.
3. Install storm windows and insulation to keep heat in... cold out.
4. Have your heating system checked to be sure you're getting the most efficient use of your fuel oil.

If everyone cooperates, the current "pinch" need not last too long. As soon as it is humanly possible, there'll be enough oil for your ever-mounting needs. The greater your cooperation, the sooner that day will be.

If everyone saves... there will be enough for all

Reed on Way to Take New State Dept. Post

Charles S. Reed, American consul at Saigon, French Indo-China, for the past two years, is en route home to become chief of the Southeast Asian Affairs Division of the State Department.

Reed, 48, is a native of Sandusky, Ohio, and has been in the foreign service for 20 years. In his new position he will replace Abbott Low Moffatt, who was assigned last fall as political adviser on the staff of American Aid Administrator Dwight Griswold in Greece.

Ruhland Declares Staff Too Small to Handle New Hospital Bill Collection System

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday accused Auditor A. R. Pilkerton of "serious lapse of memory" and declared the Health Department was too understaffed to handle a bill-collection crackdown on noncharity District hospital patients.

The Commissioners have overruled Dr. Ruhland and backed Pilkerton in ordering a tough new hospital accounting and bill-collection system, effective February 1.

They acted after Pilkerton and Tax Collector Guy Pearson said District patients' bills totaling $63,905 were uncollectable because they were more than 3 years old and Pilkerton reported "very little effort" had been made to collect them.

Dr. Ruhland, although admitting the system was desirable, refused to indorse it because the plan contained no provision for additional personnel. Pilkerton said none of three Gallinger and Health Department officials interviewed had mentioned need for more personnel and that he (Pilkerton) thought them unnecessary.

Ruhland declared that all three officials "definitely denied" they failed to stress the need for more personnel. "Pilkerton must be suffering from a serious lapse of memory," he asserted.

Main point in the new system is that all patients going to municipal hospitals or private hospitals that accept District patients on contract must be cleared first by the Health Department's Hospital Permit Bureau. This would involve close check on their ability to pay.

Ruhland said his present staff was able to check only 52 per cent of District patients.

Commissioner Guy Mason said: "If he (Ruhland) can't do it, he can't do it. But he'll have to show evidence of it at the coming appropriations hearings. He should cross that bridge when the time comes."

Lacy's $50,000 Special Purchase!

Here's how it happened: A telephone call from Chicago! An immediate flight to the Windy City! And Lacy's radio buyer purchased $50,000 worth of these latest 1948, nationally advertised radio-phonograph consoles. This truly sensational sale is being held at Lacy's in Washington, instead of some other city, only because of our years of friendly relations with this well-known manufacturer.

Note these many FEATURES
Read every one carefully

Garod Gives You FM (Frequency) Modulation)
A crystal-clear full-bodied tone with a background of soothing silence. No static, no fading, no interference by other stations or electrical devices. Thunderstorms and lighting do not affect FM reception.

Garod Gives You Short Wave Band
Not only FM and standard broadcasts but Short Wave reception as well. Just a flick of the control button and a twist of the dial . . . and you're in tune with Europe, South America and other foreign countries.

Garod Gives You a 10-Tube Radio
When an average combination selling for this price has only 6 or 7 tubes, you can realize how much more clarity and richness of tonal quality this 10-tube, plus rectifier, set gives you.

Seeburg Automatic Record Changer
It automatically plays and changes twelve 10-inch or ten 12-inch records on a single loading . . . for almost an hour of continuous music. The double-post record changer operates smoothly, silently with an instantaneous action.

Plenty of Space for Record Storage
Notice the large album storage space in the lower left compartment of the Garod radio-phonograph console. It's big enough to hold six large albums with space for up to 75 records. (Albums are extra.)

Auditorium Type Dual Speakers
The Garod "Grandtone" dual electro-dynamic Speakers provide the tonal balance necessary for the finest vocal, orchestral and symphonic music. The deep cone dual speakers, one a large 10-inch size, produce a richer, smoother quality.

Discrepancy In Laughlin Letters Laid To Defense

Prosecution Tries To Show Forgery In Missive Held Absolving Lawyer

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Two weeks after Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs was alleged to have written him a letter absolving him of complicity in abortion, Attorney James J. Laughlin wrote her demanding that she retract statements that he was to blaime.

This seeming discrepancy was revealed in District Court yesterday where Laughlin and Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., are standing trial on abortion charges.

Laughlin explained to reporters later that Mrs. Hobbs made the accusations after she had written the original letter last May 16.

Earlier a handwriting expert, Ordway Hilton of New York, testified the signature "Esther" on the May 16 letter, which stated Laughlin was not responsible, was genuine, as was the signature on a letter dated March 20, 1947, in which she said she was leaving for home.

Laughlin's letter to Mrs. Hobbs, dated May 30, 1947, was introduced by the prosecution to pose the question why the attorney would find it necessary to ask absolution if Mrs. Hobbs had really written him previously that he was not to blame. The prosecution charges the latter letter is a forgery.

Laughlin's missive, read to the jury by Prosecutor Charles E. Murray, said in part: "Dear Esther . . . there were some statements made that should be cleared up. Therefore I thought it well to write you . . . .

"Ellen (a sister of Mrs. Hobbs) told us that on the day you left Washington you told her for the first time that I was responsible for your pregnancy. You know that is not true and I ask therefore—if you told her that to retract it . . . She stated that was the first time you told her so, but on the contrary told her it was either Buddy Rowe or the Marine . . . She told us that you spent the night at the Roger Smith Hotel with your present husband . . . therefore the question comes up just who was responsible for your pregnancy . . . And it seems it could have been one of five persons . . . I also have had a private detective make an investigation and what he has uncovered is amazing to me.

While declaring that the signatures on the key letters signed "Esther" were in his opinion genuine, Hilton admitted that it was "possible" a forgery could be so perfect as to escape detection.

He followed up by saying "if a forgery is that well done, we don't consider it a forgery."

Murray's line of questioning sought to bring out that errors which appeared in the letter would be apt to be made by a touch-typist deliberately Mrs. Hobbs, it had been testified, was not an expert typist.

Hilton also denied that a forged name would be more apt to appear similar, written twice, than would a genuine signature.

Today the Government is expected to produce its handwriting expert. Mrs. Hobbs, also, is slated to testify. At the present rate of progress the case is not expected to go to the jury until early next week.

". . . In view of his report I doubt seriously whether you actually know the names of all the men you have been intimate with. . . .

"As you know I was always opposed to abortion . . . you have told me . . . that if you could not have it done you would kill yourself and I really thought you meant it. You, of course, knew that I did not want anything to happen to you. . . . I want you to be fair, honest and frank about it.

". . . You never at any time made the statement to me or anyone else that I was responsible for your condition. You know that simply isn't so. It may well be that you were intimate with so many that you don't actually know who is responsible.

". . . I am also told that while you were at the nurses' you barged into the Marine's room and offered to pose for him in the nude as soon as you were able.

". . . the fact that you fooled and deceived me so long was due to my absolute faith in you and my unwillingness to believe anything evil of you . . .

". . . In any event I want the matter of abortion straightened out. If you have intimated to anyone at your home—at his home—or anywhere else that I was in any way responsible I want you to rectify it. If it is not done I will have a hearing here to determine the parentage.

". . . take care of yourself and I want you to still believe what I said if the the going gets tough. I only ask that you be on the level . . Jim." The signature was typewritten as was the body of the letter.

One-Legged Fireman Does Full-Time Job

Worcester, Mass. (U.P.).—A man with one leg is a full time member of the Worcester Fire Department.

Injured Child Truman Visited Must Learn to Walk Again

The Washington Post

MOTHER'S SOLACE—Mrs. Frank Meenehan comforts her daughter, Sharon, 3, at the doctor's office yesterday. The casts were removed when Sharon reached home. She'll have to learn to walk again

Sharon Meenehan, 3, who took her first steps when she was 10 months old, will have to learn to walk all over again.

This was revealed yesterday by the little girl's mother, Mrs. Frank Meenehan, 2813 39th st. nw., shortly after casts were removed from the child's legs for the first time since last November.

Sharon, who attained some prominence when President Truman paid her a visit in her room at Georgetown University Hospital, was struck by an automobile and critically injured last November 14.

Mrs. Meenehan said the child can now sit up without support although "she hasn't bent her legs yet." She said she hopes to start the youngster walking again—preferably without the aid of crutches—in about two weeks. The child's legs fractured in the smashup, along with her right hip and ankle, are too weak right now.

Sharon was X-rayed yesterday, Mrs. Meenehan related, while "she screamed bloody murder." The casts were removed for the occasion but were put on again for the trip home. Then they were taken off again.

The accident also gave the child a fractured skull and neck but those are all healed now.

Police Catch Five by Trail Left in Snow

Charges of Robbery, Auto Theft Placed After Car Is Wrecked

Five men, arrested by Maryland police after a 12-hour manhunt through the snow, yesterday were held on bonds totaling $24,000 on charges of auto theft and robbery.

One of them, James H. Walker, 22, of 909 M st. nw., has already been named by police here as the "Fagin" of a juvenile gang linked with at least 30 yoke robberies here. Police say the eight members of the youthful band have been responsible for 90 per cent of the yoke robberies in the last three months.

Maryland police picked up the trail of the five men last Saturday after the automobile in which they were riding crashed near Elkridge, Md. Authorities found them hiding in a woods.

They waived extradition and were brought back to Washington by Detective Sergt. Otto Fuss and Detective C. I. Smith, who said the five admitted some of the clothing they were wearing was loot from yoke robberies.

The automobile wrecked near Elkridge was stolen in Washington Friday night.

Walker was held in $10,000 bond on the robbery charge; $2000 for unauthorized use of an automobile. The others and amount of their bonds:

Andrew T. Bell, 22, of 1016 16th st. nw., $5000 on the robbery charge, $2000 on the auto charge.

John A. Adams, 29, of 1017 26th st. nw., $2000 on the auto charge; Leon E. Johnson, 22, of 1524 D st. se., $1000 on the auto charge, and Benjamin F. Rollins, 22, of 1325 Neal pl. nw., $2000 on the auto charge.

Wrist Watch, 2 Diamond Rings Stolen

Theft of a wrist watch, described as a family heirloom, and two diamond rings with gold settings, was reported to police yesterday by Mrs. Lucie F. Mills, of 1311 New Hampshire ave. nw. Value was placed at between $3000 and $5000.

Mrs. Florence A. Schwartz, of 2032 Belmont rd. nw., told officers her $250 diamond ring vanished from the counter at the Valley Vista Pharmacy, at the Belmont st. address, where she had placed it momentarily.

Police held a 68-year-old woman for investigation in the theft of $108, which Benjamin Foster, of 1002 22d st. nw., said was missing from under his pillow.

Meyer Brown reported his grocery at 66 Pierce st. nw., was entered by thieves, who broke a lock and stole $39 in change and more than $200 in groceries and cigarettes.

If an early North Carolina militiaman was incapacitated while in service, he was treated at public expense and was given a slave to work for him.

On 9th Street

Eastside Tops West For Drunks

Oh, East is 9th, and West is 10th, and whenever the drunks do meet, the ones from the East do stumble most, past Jimmy's judgment seat.

James S. LeFevre, who heads a stove equipment store at 926 New York ave. nw. said he should know because his store is between the two, and he's seen drunks coming from both.

Eastern Boys Are Tops

"The drunks from the East are more drunk than the drunks from the West," testified LeFevre, before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

LeFevre appeared as a witness to character, or lack of savory same, of 9th st., particularly around 945 9th st. nw., where the New Western Lunch seeks renewal of its liquor license. He was but one of a number of property owners and businessmen thereabouts who protested the license renewal application.

Capt. Robert C. Pearce, who heads the First Police Precinct, testified that every liquor license is a potential source of more work for the police, whether it be on 9th st. or on Connecticut ave.

Opposed by Banker

C. L. Burton, president of City Bank, at 9th st. and Mount Vernon pl. nw., opposed the license renewal, testifying that the street's liquor spots are "just the sugar that draws the flies."

John C. Chevalier, president of Palace Laundry, with main offices at 9th and H sts. nw., said he'd like the street to attract "decent people." Hard-working men, he said, spend their money on Friday and Saturday nights but "bums spend theirs all the time." Ninth st., he said, was quite busy.

Other witnesses argued whether or not liquor licenses increase property values. The agreed they did—at the properties licensed.

The ABC board took the matter under advisement.

Purse Artists Victimize 4

Patricia Robinson of 9703 47th pl., Berwyn, Md., told police yesterday she was standing on a loading platform at 7th st. and New York ave. nw. when a man brushed against her. Then she discovered, she said, $4 was missing from her pocketbook.

Virginia M. Booner of 117 Winchester Way, Falls Church, Va., said her purse, containing $15, was grabbed while she was waiting for a bus at 11th and F sts. nw.

Lottie Henderson, of 612 15th st. ne., complained that her pocketbook, containing $3, was snatched by two teen boys while she was walking in the 300 block 15th st. ne.

Adolphus Prince, 35, an employe of the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains, reported his 17-jewel watch and $2 were lifted on a streetcar at 1st st., and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Howard McCormick, a soldier stationed at Fort Belvoir, complained that he was bashed on the head with a bottle by a girl known to him only as Elizabeth. She took $20 in bills from his pocket, somewhere in the 1200 block of 7th st. nw., he said.

Ambulances Told to Go To Gallinger

Full Use of Hospital Planned by Sending It All Except Some Emergency Cases

All patients picked up in District ambulances will be taken to Gallinger Hospital except in emergency cases, the Commissioners ordered yesterday.

Budget Officer Walter Fowler said the move was designed to make full use of Gallinger before sending patients to private hospitals under District contract.

Private hospitals have complained that they lose money on District charity cases, for which the city pays $7.50 to $13.90 a day, he said.

Emergency cases picked up in city sections closer to private hospitals than to Gallinger should be taken to the nearest hospital having a contract with the District, the Commissioners said.

These include Casualty, Emergency, Childrens and Freedmen's Hospitals.

"Emergency" cases include those with "massive" bleeding, women in active labor, persons who collapse on the street, those having convulsions, extensive burns, gunshot or stab wounds, fractures, symptoms of poisoning, strangulation or suffocation.

Building Costs Cut Hospital Center Size

Mounting costs of hospital construction will reduce the size of Washington's new Hospital Center from 1500 to 1250 beds, Hospital Council President William R. Castle said yesterday.

The Center, proposed for the Naval Observatory tract, has $1,700,000 to its credit and an additional two million dollars is requested in a budget proposal.

Castle said Federal architects believe it will be impossible to build a 1500-bed institution with the money available.

"If we had insisted on clinging to the 1500 bed plan, it would have meant giving up the nurses' home and proper quarters for residents and interns," he said.

He added, however, that if the cost of building materials drops by the time the hospital is ready for construction, the project will return to the 1500-bed plan.

He saw the reduction in size as a possible "blessing, as the general opinion seems to be that a 1250-bed hospital is the largest unit which can be properly administered."

French Resort Hurt By Lack of Cold

Megeve, France (U.P.).—While most of France complains of insufficient heat, this winter resort is depressed over the lack of cold and snow.

Because of mild temperatures and steady rains, ski resort towns like Megeve are having a bad season. The French government had counted on millions of francs in foreign exchange from winter sports enthusiasts coming to the Alps from abroad. They have failed to materialize.

Megeve has canceled its famous skiing grand prix after days of heavy rain. Over the holidays hotels expected about 3000 foreign guests—Americans, Canadians, Chileans and Egyptians. About 50 visitors arrived, mostly Belgians and Swiss.

The shop windows here are full of good things which recall prewar days. There are few buyers. Russian caviar, pate de foie gras and luxurious furs remain in the shop windows day after day.

Out-of-Season Duel Vetoed in Paris

Paris (U.P.).—Certain Paris social circles say the 1948 dueling season does not open until February 15.

"It's much too early to duel," said Michael de la Confrevon, a young industrialist who claims to be an authority on such matters.

At any rate, the first duel of 1948, scheduled this month between Jacques Herbetot, Paris theater manager, and Herve Lauwick, drama writer for a Paris weekly, was called off. Lauwich had written that Hebertot's latest play "stinks."

Their seconds met in a court of honor and decided rather than to authorize a duel out of season—"a grave breach of form," according to Confrevon—that "the challenge and acceptance resulted from a misunderstanding, not an affront."

A Letter From Buckingham Palace

The Washington Post

LET'S ALL LOOK—Maury School students gather 'round to read the letter from Buckingham Palace expressing Princess Elizabeth's thanks for a message the children sent to the princess on her wedding. The youngsters are (seated, from left) Joyce Ann Lynch, 10, of 220 15th st. ne.; Lorna Dolores Broadwater, 8, of 1418 North Carolina ave. ne., and Betty Goodson, 8, of 130 Tennessee ave. ne. World Peace Aim of Family Of War Victim

Cleveland (U.P.).—Because Capt. John Putnam, jr., was shot down on his fifty-second mission over Europe during the war, his sorrowing family has started a peace movement. It is gathering public support here with surprising speed.

The peace movement, known as World Security Workers, has gained support of hundreds of persons in the city, as well as leading citizens in other parts of the country. Dr. Albert Einstein is one of the supporters, its promoters claim.

The idea of world security workers, a crusade to create a mass demand for the establishment of world government, was born in the family of John B. Putname, Cleveland attorney.

After the death of John, jr., the family felt it must do something to prevent a repetition of warfare. Out of months of discussion with civic leaders, World Security workers emerged.

The organization advocates centralized world government with law and a military arm to enforce its decision upon the nations, but has no blueprint of the form such a government should take. It is meant to serve only as an instrument through which millions of people, wanting an orderly world, can make themselves heard by their government leaders, according to the founders.

The Putnams believe that when the swell of sentiment becomes impelling enough, extending through the United States and eventually the world, national leaders cannot resist the demand for the establishment of a world government.

"If Russia, at first, does not care to come along," said Mrs. Putnam, who runs the organization's office here, "she'll find herself behind a wall of people far more impenetrable than the iron curtain.

"There has always been a government for war. Now we'll have world government for peace with rules so strong that nobody can upset us again."

Membership in World Security Workers is accomplished by signing a pledge to give active support to the cause of world government. There are no dues.

Oak Ridge Put on Top In Fire Prevention

Boston (U.P.).—The home of the atom bomb, Oak Ridge, Tenn., has been named the winner among the Nation's cities in the twenty-fifth annual fire prevention week competition sponsored by the National Fire Protection Association.

Runner-up was Chicago, the association said, with New York third. Others in the first 10 finished in this order:

Mexican Town Told It's Going Under Water

Guerrero, Mexico (U.P.).—This little Mexican town, across the Rio Grande from Zapata, Tex., is going under water.

Mayor Fabio de la Garza has posted notices telling the residents that the town will be inundated with the construction of the Falcon Dam, being built across the Rio Grande to provide irrigation water.

The mayor asked residents to bring their deeds to his office for filing claims for settlement with the government for property that will be submerged.

Here's One Way to Get Acre of Land Free

Falls City, Nebr. (U.P.).—A Richardson County farmer still is not sure whether he was on the short end of a shrewd "horse trade," even though the transaction involved an acre of land instead of a horse.

A neighbor suggested that an acre of waste land owned by the farmer be cleared and offered to do the job. After the land was cleared, the neighbor offered to buy the acre for $150. The farmer sold it.

Librarians Protest Plan To Shift Rule

The Public Library Association objected yesterday to a proposal in the Auchincloss home rule plan to place libraries under an elected school board.

The association, composed of the professional staff of the libraries, voiced its opinion in a resolution sent to the House of Representatives.

"A joint Board of Education would be dominated by an instructional viewpoint and could not adequately foster the characteristic library approach to education," the statement said.

The association declared that it liked its present method of government by a board of trustees appointed by the Commissioners but if a change had to be made it preferred to come directly under a city manager.

In taking the action the association joined with the present appointed Board of Education which on Tuesday said that a school board has enough to do without taking on libraries.

The resolution said that libraries would get only incidental consideration if under a board that also ran schools.

The association objected also to coming under the control of any elected board. High caliber citizens would not be attracted to such a board and the libraries would lose their present nonpolitical character, it was said.

Boasts He Makes Old Things Last

Falls City, Nebr. (U.P.).—Gus Duerfeldt is fed up with reading about longevity records which he considered minor.

Duerfeldt pooh-poohed at light bulbs used for almost 50 years, a Christmas tree 28 years old, and a pair of shoes still in use after 53 years. So the 83-year-old man listed some of his long-time possessions. They included:

A set of cabinet-making tools bought by his father when he came to the United States from Germany 103 years ago. They still are in excellent condition.

A straight-edge razor he received as a Christmas gift in 1885 and has used every day on the intervening 62 years. It never has touched a sharpening stone, Duerfeldt boasts.

A 62-year-old knife he received at the same time as the razor.

Blind, She Makes Living By Laundry Business

Omaha, Nebr. (U.P.).—Mrs. Vivian Cottey, blind almost since birth, earns her living by doing neighbors' washing and mangling.

State assistance department officials believe she is the only sightless person in the country earning her living that way. She takes in about $25 a week, according to Harry L. Hines, director of the blind program.

Officials of a washing machine company sold the equipment at cost and taught Mrs. Cottey to use the washing machine and the ironer. Dials, Hines said, were especially marked so that she could set them by touch.

Pledge-to-Flag House To Be Memorial

Melrose, Mass. (U.P.).—The Upham House, built in 1703, is being rebuilt here as a memorial to James Bailey Upham, author of "The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States."

The home was built originally by Phineas Upham, one of the earliest settlers in Melrose. James Bailey Upham was one of his descendants. The Upham Family Society is sponsoring the restoration and expects to spend $15,000 before completing the project.

Advisory Unit Picked for D.C. Master Plan

Committee Selected From 90 Groups at Behest of Gen. Grant

A citizens' board to advise on a master plan for the development of Washington was formed yesterday from representatives of about 90 local groups.

Organization of the group took place in a meeting called by Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which is preparing the plan with the aid of Harland Bartholomew Associates, a planning group.

Elected as temporary chairman of the committee was Claude Owen, of the Washington Building Congress. Other officers named were John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Ernest F. Harper, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, as vice presidents, and Miss Arleen James as secretary.

Named as a temporary executive board to select the permanent board of the group were the following:

John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade; Slocum Kingsbury, representing the American Institute of Architects; C. Melvin Sharpe, representing the Committee of One Hundred; C. F. Preller, of the American Federation of Labor; Henry Beitscher, Congress of Industrial Organizations; F. Moran McConihie, of the Washington Real Estate Board.

Richard A. Norris, of the Bankers Association; William A. Powell, of the Washington Bar Association; Edward Burling, jr., of the Citizens Council for Community Planning; Charles T. Penn, of the Washington Housing Association; Fischer Black, of the Washington Board of Trade; Jacob Crane, of the American Institute of Planners; Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, of the Federation of Women's Clubs; W. S. Hoge, of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce; Walter Mulligan, representing Prince Georges County; Herbert Manuccia, Professional Engineering Society; Mrs. Marjorie Burke, League of Women Voters; James Beaty, Junior Board of Commerce; and John R. Reeves, Bethesda Chamber of Commerce.

General Grant said the master plan is expected to be completed by June 30. He said he wants committees of the advisory board to study each chapter of the plan as it is completed, and express their views on how well the plan meets with local interests.

D. C. Rent Control Hearing to Be Held Tomorrow

The Commissioners' rent control extension hearing is scheduled for tomorrow in the District Building Board Room at 10 a. m. The hearing is to give citizens a chance to voice their views on a proposal to extend rent control here one year to March 31, 1949.

The District Rent Control Administration announced yesterday that an average 12 per cent rent boost for 51 apartments had been asked by owners of Sulgrave Manor, 5130 Connesticut ave. nw.

Chicago Plans to Cut Loop Smoke Nuisance

Chicago (U.P.). — Chicago aldermen are considering a plan for central heating, air conditoning and electrical systems for the Loop which sponsors claim would cut smoke volume in the area 50 per cent.

Cost of the project is estimated at 45 million dollars and plans call for completion two to three years after it is authorized.

GSI Hearing Is Recessed As Marshal's Hunt Fails

Hoffman Orders Search Continued For Subpenaed Union Leaders

Capitol Hill hearings on the GSI cafeteria strike were recessed yesterday—at least until subpena-toting committee agents can catch up with elusive union leaders.

Again yesterday morning, United States marshals reported to the special House labor subcommittee that they had had no luck in efforts to serve subpenas on officers of the local CIO cafeteria workers union and its parent, the United Public Workers of America.

At a short hearing, Chairman Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) instructed the marshals to continue their searches. He indicated he would wait for the appearance of the witnesses until adjournment of this Congress, expected about July 1.

"It has been reported," Hoffman said, "that some of these people have been connected with Communist organizations. It's only fair to let them come in and answer the charges."

Those sought in Washington are Richard A. Bancroft, president of Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, the union striking against 42 GSI cafeterias in Government buildings, and Oliver T. Palmer, business agent. In New York, marshals tried unsuccessfully for personal subpena service on UPWA officers Abram Flaxer, president, Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer, and Robert Weinstein, director of organization.

Hoffman, noting that Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach was planning to meet with Local 471 representatives, suggested that a marshal might ask Schwellenbach for permission to be nearby when the union officials show up.

The Labor Department, meanwhile, reported "nothing new" in Schwellenbach's investigation of the 24-day-old strike. The walkout, affecting the menus for about 80,000 customers, was called when GSI refused to bargain unless the unions file non-Communist affidavits. Local 471 had sought a 15 cents an hour increase.

Dental Examiners Announce Results Of License Exams

Dentists, Drs. Joseph L. Bernier, Army Institute of Pathology, here; Raymond J. Congour, 3913 Edmunds st. nw.; Myron E. Drapen, 901 Quackenbos st. nw.; Harry S. Galblum, 1112 H st. nw.; Herman E. Gaskins, 2007 2nd st. nw.; Palmer L. Hamilton, 1719 S st. nw.; Raymond L. Hayes, 3107 14th st. ne.; Joseph L. Henry, 3109 14th st. ne.; Felix P. Potera, 908 Jackson st. ne.; George L. Wade, 851 20th st. ne., and Anthony P. Culotta of Waterbury, Conn.

Hygienists, Anselee Daniels, 1508 Q st. nw.; Barbara S. Elliott, 3301 Highland pl. nw.; Eleanor G. Harmon, 1419 A st. se., and Alicia M. Howard, 1426 Irving st. ne.

Illegal Interest Charges Laid to Two Loan Firms

Two loan companies are scheduled to answer charges tomorrow that they violated District loan laws on interest rates.

Bernard A. Salzberg, president of Equitable Credit Co. Inc., 1500 H st. ne., will appear in Municipal Court on three counts: That his company charged more than 8 per cent annual interest on a loan greater than $200; that the monthly interest rate exceeded 1 per cent and that the borrower failed to receive a written statement on the amount loaned.

Secretary-Treasurer Jacques P. DuVinage, of the Auto Loan Service, 638 Pennsylvania ave. se., is to appear before Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King in a preliminary hearing on similar charges.

'Gas Checker' Fined For Causing 'Leak'

A "gas company man" who has been "inspecting gas connections" in the basement of a 14th st. restaurant over a period of about six months, turned out to be an unofficial whisky inspector, according to testimony in Municipal Court yesterday.

Joseph Gallott, jr., proprietor of a restaurant at 3201 14th st. nw., told Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson he finally got suspicious of Boothe's heavy "tool case" last Tuesday after one of Boothe's "inspections." He found 11 fifths of whisky in it, he testified.

Boothe, who hasn't worked for the gas company since 1944, was sentenced to a $200 fine or six months in jail on a charge of larceny.

Boy 'Rescued' From Room

The Association of Infants Rescued by the Fire Department had a new member yesterday. Two-year-old William W. Jones, jr., of 811 Sheridan st. nw., applied for membership by just turning the key in his playroom door, from the inside. His mother's pleas through the door that he turn the key the other way were to no avail. Six firemen from Truck Company No. 6 and a ladder lifted to the second floor completed Billy's initiation.

Streetcars Delayed

A piece of a broken automobile chain early yesterday held up Mount Pleasant streetcars more than an hour, while going-to-work passengers shivered.

The chain lodged in the third rail near the Mount Pleasant terminal, breaking the electric power plows on three cars.

The first break occurred about 6:40 a. m. when two cars struck the piece. Later a third car struck a piece lodged deep in the power rail.

Suspect Adjudged Insane

Alfred Bowers, the one-legged cook who tried to hold up the Riggs National Bank last December, was judged of unsound mind by a District Court jury yesterday.

Bowers, 35, was under indictment on a charge of assault with attempt to commit robbery. He was arrested December 5 when the bank teller noted that Bowers' gun was a toy. Bowers had demanded "$1000 quick."

Justice Richmond B. Keech ordered Bowers transferred from District Jail to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Fined in Lottery

Frank C. Wright, 31, 412 N. Patrick st., Alexandria, was fined $305 yesterday and given a 13-month suspended jail sentence in Alexandria Civil and Police Court on a charge of operating a numbers game. Police said they confiscated $21.56 when they arrested Wright at his home January 20.

Surprised by Insurance

An 80-year-old Arlington woman has received proceeds from a 47-year-old insurance policy she didn't know existed, it was disclosed yesterday.

The payment, amounting to $396, was made to Mrs. Jessie Lapham, 3318 23d st., N., as proceeds of a policy taken out by her husband, the late Henry B. Lapham, in Lewiston, Mont., in 1901. The policy was discovered recently in the paid-up files of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. Lapham died in 1939.

Officials of the insurance company said Lapham discontinued payments on the policy in 1907, but indorsed a contract under which it was marked paid-up at its face value.

2 Held for Grand Jury

Two men were held for grand jury action yesterday on charges that they broke into the Newton Theater, 3601 12th st. ne., Tuesday and started to cart away a safe containing more than $500.

Pvt. Roy D. Marshall of the Twelfth Precinct told United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage he was walking his beat when he was attracted to the theater's furnace room by "too much noise."

Turnage set bond at $2500 for Woodland Evans, 23, 2020 Shepherd st, ne., and $2000 for Carl W. Behlen, 24, 144 11th st. ne., on charges of housebreaking and grand larceny.

Father and Son Sue

Two damage suits, one for $10,000 and the other for $50,000, were filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday by Robert L. Eastham, 672: Strathmore st., Chevy Chase, and his 9-year-old son, Robert L. Eastham, jr., as a result of injuries suffered by the boy when he was struck by a taxicab while crossing the street November 11. Defendants were the driver, Ray A. Sieber of Rockville, Chauncey R. Reed, 7236 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, owner of the cab, and Bethesda Cab, Inc.

A suit charging Seaboard Airline Railroad with race discrimination has been continued in Alexandria District Court by Judge Albert V. Bryan pending decision on a motion filed by plaintiff David H. Hinton for subpena of company records.

Hinton, a railroad fireman, has asked use of company records to prove he was passed up for promotion because he is a Negro. The case was originally set for trial January 27.

Christmas Returns With Lost Present

Somerville, Mass. (U.P.)—On her Christmas tree in 1946, Mrs. Anne Gigli found a diamond sapphire bracelet.

She immediately lost it.

While trimming her Christmas tree in 1947, she found the missing bracelet. It was entangled in a rope of tinsel which had been packed away the previous Yuletide.

FTC Action

4 Schools Of Theology Under Fire

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

There's a point beyond which religious zeal becomes an unfair trade practice, and therefore must be restrained.

That's the gist of allegations preferred yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission against two District and two Texas theological schools, and 10 persons associated with the schools, at a hearing in the FTC building.

Accused of such fervor as to violate the Federal Trade Commission Act are Mount Vernon University of Fort Worth, Tex.,; Mount Vernor University of the District, Christ College of Fort Worth, Tex., and Christ Seminary of the District.

Misleading Advertising Charged

The four schools are in effect really one, according to FTC complaint. One and all are guilty of misleading advertising, overselling the school courses, running colleges that aren't colleges, selling degrees and other similar activities, the FTC alleges.

Not so, is the vigorous response of the defendants. Their spokesmen yesterday admitted to enthusiasm in doing the Lord's work, perhaps even over enthusiasm in a few instances, but certainly no violations of the law. In fact, they say, all the defendants have given both of their time and money towards building the non-profit-making school(or schools).

Two students of the Bible, possessing some 15 degrees in divinity between them but none in the art of the law, arose yesterday to defend themselves, the others accused, and the schools.

Advocates for Defense

Serving as advocates for the defense were Philip B. Davis, 30, of Mount Rainer, Md., who doubles as a Library of Congress employe, and as an instructor and official of the two schools here, and John F. Doering, 35, of Moorehead, Ky., formerly connected with the Texas schools.

Davis holds Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Doctor of Divinity Degrees, the latter two from Mount Vernon University of Texas. Doering has four times as many degrees—12, according to his own count—including two from Mount Vernon.

Attorney William L. Pencke, pressing the complaint for the FTC, insisted that the distinctions between the schools didn't explain what the Government charges to be excessive claims in newspaper ads as to what the schools (or school) had to offer to prospective students.

Hearings will continue here today and in other cities later "in the public interest," with Trial Examiner John B. Bramhall sitting in as judge.

Schools Need 60 Nurses, Says Bureau Head

Sixty public health nurses assigned to schools instead of the present 15 are needed to provide adequate school health service, Mrs. Josephine Pitman Prescott, public health nursing bureau director, said yesterday.

Mrs. Prescott spoke with other District medical authorities at the closing meeting of the two-day Parent-Teacher Institute sponsored by the George Washington University and the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

District Health Officer George C. Ruhland repeated a request previously presented to the Board of Education that teachers be trained in nursing to relieve overworked public health nurses. Ruhland proposed that teachers be taught to recognize symptoms of illness sufficient to be able to judge when a child should be referred to a doctor.

Ruhland also said that health department clinics should be housed in school buildings and urged P-TA support of such a program.

Mrs. Prescott said that if 60 nurses were made available one could be assigned to each large school in the city and one to each group of four small schools.

Other medical officers who spoke on the program, describing the work of their departments were: Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, director of the school medical inspection service; Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of the bureau of material and child welfare; Dr. L. E. Wexburg, director of the mental hygiene clinic; and Dr. H. H. Ostrow, director of the Bureau of dental services.

VA Settles Dispute With School Here

Veterans Administration and Columbia Technical Institution settled their dispute yesterday, and permitted some 350 GI night class students to return to school under GI Bill of Rights.

Paul J. Leverone, principal of the school, located at Vermont ave. and N st. nw., refused to submit a financial statement to VA but offered to cut his night class tuition rates below $500 a year on a pro-rata basis. VA accepted the terms.

The contractual dispute between VA and the school had originally affected 800 GI students. A compromise was worked out for the 450 day students, but only after a Congressional hearing last Friday, was the situation saved for the night students. All GI students who have been paying their own way at the school since the dispute began early this month will be recompensed, it was announced.

Open Safe Persuades Yeggs to Be Honest

Houston, Tex. (U.P.)—Safecrackers who broke into a variety store followed directions and everybody, including the store owner, was happy.

The safecrackers found this note pasted to the front of the safe

"This safe is open. Its contents are important papers valuable only to us. They would be worth nothing to you. There is not one cent inside this safe. If you don't believe it, look."

Women Enjoy Equal Terms With Men in U. N. Debating

Lake Success, N. Y. (U.P.)—The United Nations sometimes looks like a woman's club meeting. During the latest session more than 20 women officially represented their countries.

In this, as in previous sessions, the queen bees of the U. N. were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt of the United States and Mrs. Pandit of India, both as skillful in mental fencing as any of their male compatriots.

Never one to sit quietly on the sidelines, Mrs. Roosevelt makes her presence felt in the U. N., particularly in the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee where she was pitted this year against V. A. Zorin of the Soviet Union in debates on war mongering.

When people praise her agile debating, Mrs. Roosevelt dismisses it by saying, "After all, I've had a great deal of political experience. You must remember that I am 63 years old and that I've made a lot of speeches."

Russians Alert

It is essential, as Mrs. Roosevelt points out, that, any delegate opposing the Soviet Union on any issue be alert. "If they don't win their point one way, they'll try another. You simply have to be on your toes mentally."

The Russians appreciate Mrs. Roosevelt as a very able opponent. She tells the story of one conversation she had with Andrei Vishinsky, Russia's nimblest speechmaker, at the last general assembly session.

"I told Mr. Vishinsky that I hoped one day he and I would be on the same side of a dispute because I admired his fighting qualities," she related.

Vishinsky's answer was "And I yours."

Mrs. Pandit, the only woman chief delegate at the U. N., has devoted most of her energies at this session to problems of trusteeship. A feeling of drama raced through the general assembly hall when this slim, dark woman, clad in a flowing gold and white sari, walked to the rostrum to plead eloquently that Southwest Africa be placed under trusteeship.

Nehru Is Brother

Mrs. Pandit's position as head of a delegation is unique in another way. She receives her instructions on India's position from her brother, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, head of the Indian government.

Mrs. Gertrude Sekaninova, of Czechoslovakia, the only woman delegate from eastern Europe, feels at home in the verbal wranglings of the political committee, for she practiced law in Prague before the war. Mrs. Sekaninova's lawyer husband was executed by the Nazis and she was interned for over two years. After her liberation in April, 1945, this intense intelligent woman, still very nervous as a result of her experiences in a concentration camp, was named counselor of the Czech ministry of foreign affairs.

Most of the women delegates at the U. N. are gathered around the oval conference table in the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee.

Glamour gal of the committee is Senora Amalia De Castillo Ledon. Senora Ledon, probably the most important woman in official circles of Mexico, is both a political expert and a playwright.

A sophisticated-looking blonde with gray green eyes, Senora Ledon could win hands down in a contest for the best-dressed woman of the U. N.

Mme. Marie Helene Lefaucheur of France, a sparkling, little brunette who has just left for home, is glad that men and women work together at the U. N. because she feels women are better off when they steer clear of the strictly feminine approach.

No Old Maids

There are four former school teachers on the U. N. social committee—and not one old maid in the group.

Mrs. Florence Paton of the United Kingdom, a laborite member of Parliament and the wife of an MP, was a history and English teacher. During the war she taught children who remained in London during the blitz.

Mrs. Enid Roberts of New Zealand, a pleasant looking white-haired woman, was a school teacher for a number of years and initiated the first adult educational program among the adults of the Maori people of New Zealand.

The other two school teachers in the committee are from the Near East. Mrs. Badia Afnan, before she was named alternate representative for the delegation of Iraq, was chief inspector of women's schools in her country. Mrs. Alice Cosma of Syria, who received her B. S. and M. A. degrees from Columbia University, was principal of girls schools in Syria for eight years.

Mrs. Bodil Begtrup, a maternal-looking woman with wavy brown hair, is no stranger to international organizations. She was a member of the Danish delegation to the League of Nations in 1938 and is chairman of the U.N. commission on the status of women.

In Battle of Trademarks

The Washington Post

SUSIE CUCUMBER MAY TAKE THE STAND—Mrs. Cynthia Richardson and "Susie Cucumber," formerly of Alexandria, Va., are prepared to appear in District Court at 10 a. m. today and if Mrs. Richardson has her way the canine pen pal of thousands of boys and girls will take the stand "in her own defense." Mrs. Richardson, who writes the intimate letters that Susie sends to so many youngsters, disclosed that a greeting card company objects to registration of "Susie Cucumber" as a trademark on the grounds that the name is confusingly similar to their trademark, "Susie Q." Mrs. Richardson and Susie Cucumber came here from Bucks County, Pa., their new home

Aged Man's Death Is Laid To Exposure

A 79-year-old former Government special agent, found unconscious in his freezing room about 10 a. m. Tuesday, died at 12:25 p. m. yesterday in Casualty Hospital as a result of exposure.

He was John P. Jackson of 216 4th st. se., a special agent in 1921 and '22 with the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Philadelphia. Jackson was found by Leslie A. Fritter, a traveling salesman who lives at the same address.

Fritter, who has the apartment above Jackson, said he investigated Tuesday when he had heard no sounds in the deceased's room for the preceding four days. Getting no response, he and the janitor broke the door in.

Fritter said Jackson had been something of a recluse since last year, when a pension check was stolen from his mailbox. Windows in the room were wide open, creating a low temperature, although an oil burner was on.

Jackson, said to have been a New York bank clerk at one time, was master of New Jerusalem Lodge No. 9, F. A. M., in 1921. He had not been active in the lodge since 1939.

Corner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued a certificate of death by exposure, stating the circumstances indicated Jackson had not eaten in four days, and possibly had been unconscious all that time.

Beside his wife, Mrs. Alice V. Jackson, of 1009 11th st. nw., Jackson is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Alice Neal, of 2421 I st. nw., and a son, Charles Jackson, of Los Angeles. The body is resting at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Veterans on Move, Survey Discloses

Chicago (U.P.)—Former servicemen have become the "movingest" people in the nation, the American Society of Planning Officials reports.

Nearly 12 per cent of all male veterans have moved at least once since the war ended, the society says. Despite the housing shortage, some 11 million Americans have found different homes since VJ-Day.

A slightly larger percentage of women were on the move compared with men. About 8.1 per cent of the total female population moved, compared with .4 per cent of the men.

Six million of the postwar migrants moved to find or take new jobs, according to the society. Another two million changed locations in search of adequate housing. Other major reasons included school attendance, health and marriage.

From an occupational standpoint, professional and semiprofessional workers were the most mobile groups, with farmers and service workers other than domestics at the opposite end of the scale.

Hat-in-Theater Problem Handled Forthrightly

Tulsa, Okla. (U.P.)—An annoyed Tulsa man had his own solution to the problem of what to do when seated behind an oversized woman's hat in the theater.

An embarrassed woman reported to police that he man had taken the hat off himself.

Detectives who answered her call said the male theater patron first asked the woman to remove her hat.

She refused. Whereupon, the man grabbed the hat, stomped it on the floor and stalked out.

D. C. Guard Memorial for War Dead Set

The District National Guard will pay homage to the Nation's war dead in public memorial services at 4 p. m. Sunday at Washington Cathedral.

Many national and foreign dignitaries are expected to attend the ceremonies, the tenth in an annual series conceived by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding general of the District guard.

Rear Admiral William N. Thomas, chief of Navy chaplains, will deliver the sermon, "The Price of Great Values." He will be assisted by the Rev. Crawford W. Brown, canon of Washington Cathedral.

Ground force and air units of the local Guard, led by General Cox and his staff, are expected at the Cathedral at 3:30 p. m. to take part in the services. Also participating will be the United States Army Band.

The Very Rev. John W. Suter, dean of the Cathedral, will deliver greetings to the assemblage, which is expected to fill the Cathedral.

The benediction by Dean Suter will be followed by "Taps" sounded by a National Guard bugler. General Cox will speak on the background of Guard services.

Practical Joker Gives Sheriff Run-Around

Brownstown, Ind. (U.P.)—Sheriff George Abel and Deputy Ob Green wasted no time in getting to the scene of the crime when a hunter called to report a blood-stained corpse in a deserted cabin and a knife sticking out of its chest.

But it was only the work of somebody being funny.

Hole in Sack Leaves Trail of Evildoer

Fort Wayne, Ind. (U.P.)—Motor Patrolman George Szink followed a trail of kernels to recover a sack of prized hybrid seed corn for the owner.

W. A. Zimmerman complained that the sack had been stolen from his garage. Szink discovered a trail of corn leading from the building and followed it for several blocks to recover the property from a 16-year-old youth.

There was a hole in the sack.

Becomes Grandmother At Age of 29

Houston, Tex. (U.P.)—Mrs. C. A. Brown claims the Houston area title of the youngest grandmother at 29.

Mrs. Brown was married in Iola, Tex., when she was 13, and her daughter, Adia, was born when Mrs. Brown was 14.

The daughter, now Mrs. R. S. Millam, also was married at 13. Her daughter was born when her mother was 14.

Jury Box Tears Nylons

Davenport, Iowa (U.P.)—The Scott County Board of Supervisors is wondering whether to install special seats for women jurors. Two women on recent jury panels protested they had torn their nylons on the rough edges of chairs in the jury box. The women have threatened to file a claim against the county.

True Love Never Dies

Scranton, Pa. (U.P.) — Edgar N. Goodall and Osie Scott will be married here after 50 years' "separation." They were childhood sweethearts in Orange, Va. They were reunited recently when Miss Scott visited Scranton. Both are 68 years old. Goodall is a widower.

Wildcat Invades City

Columbus, Ga. (U.P.)—A wildcat managed to penetrate to the center of this city of more than 100,000 population. It went unnoticed until it was run over and killed by a motorist at a busy intersection.

Marshall Plan Seen Delaying Road Building

Operation of the proopsed European Recovery Plan may temporarily set back American road-building but eventual benefits of the plan will more than compensate for the delay.

George L. Bell, associate director, office of international trade, of the Department of Commerce, outlined the prospects here yesterday to members attending final day sessions of the American Road Builders' Conference, at Hotel Mayflower.

During the first years of the Marshall Plan, Bell said, American roadbuilders can expect to face "severe" shortages of crawler tractors, motorized road graders, and some sizes of Diesel engines.

He termed such shortages, due to overseas' allotments of the equipment under ERP, as "immediate, but short-lived," declaring that the road-building industry could look forward, however, to "reaping, in the end, the benefits from the seeds of prosperity and security which the proposed ERP is bound to sow."

At elections, later yesterday, J. T. Callaway, assistant to the vice president of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Chicago, was elected president of the American Road Builders' Association.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, District of Columbia, was reelected treasurer. Also elected to office was Jennings Randolph, former Congressman from West Virginia, and now assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, here, who was named to head the association's airport division.

Elevator Riding Leads In Transportation

Philadelphia (U.P.)—Americans will travel up and down skyscrapers and apartment buildings in record numbers this year as 5000 new elevators, installed in recent months, go into service throughout the Nations' metropolitan areas.

The new units, costing an estimated 60 million dollars, boost the total number of lifts now in operation to nearly 400,000, according to a market study by SKF Industries, Inc. That represents an increase of 40 per cent in the Nation's elevator census since 1927.

With more than 17 billion people a year being hoisted and lowered by this device, the study indicates that the elevator is now the most widely used mode of U. S. public transportation. Trains, for example, carry an average of 792,734,141 passengers a year; street cars, nine billion; buses, 10,045,387,000; subways, four billion, and airplanes, 13 million.

15 Cents to $1 a Foot Offered for Snakes

Houston, Tex. (U.P.)—The Houston Museum of Natural History, wanting a sizeable snake collection, now is paying 15 cents per foot for non-poisonous reptiles and $1 a foot for poisonous varieties.

The catch is that the museum has a "bring-'em-back-alive" policy. No dead snakes are considered.

"A dead snake goes flat and limp and is of no use for our mounting process," said Robert A. Vines, museum curator.

Chicago Going After Traffic Violators

Chicago (U.P.)—Chicago's "cafeteria' traffic court is being moved to huge Soldier Field to handle an expected one million traffic violators who will be arrested in 1948 under a stepped-up enforcement program.

The decision to use the entire west wing of the stadium came after municipal judges protested that police headquarters was inadequate to house the court under the unprecedented traffic program.

More than 3000 square feet of parking space will be available so that motorists can park near the stadium while paying fines.

Mrs. Mary Jane Woods

Frederick, Md., Jan. 28 (Spl.)—Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Thursday for Frederick County's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary Jane Woods, who died at the home of her son, O. E. Woods, near Emmitsburg, Monday night. She was 105 years old.

Mrs. Woods, widow of Levi Bennett Woods, was a native of Morristown, Tenn., and had resided at Emmitsburg in recent years. In addition to the son with whom she resided, the following children survive: T. S. Woods, Morristown; C. S. Woods, Dalton, Ga.; Mrs. Ida Tickle, Creagerstown, Md., and F. S. Woods, Emmitsburg. Mrs Woods was a member of the Methodist Church.

Burial will be made in the cemetery at Keysville.

Rev. R. Aubrey Williams

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—The Rev. R. Aubrey Williams, 77, pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church for 28 years, died last night at his home. He suffered a stroke two weeks ago while conducting a service at the church.

He was a former president of the Baptist General Assembly of Virginia.

Survivors include the widow, one daughter, three sons, a sister and a brother. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at Tabernacle Church with interment in Hollywood Cemetery.

David R. Gebhart

War Dead Due Feb. 12

San Francisco, Jan. 28 (AP).—The second shipment of war dead from the Pacific is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco February 12, the Army Port of Embarkation announced today.

The Army Transport Cardinal O'Connell will return about 3000 service dead from Australia, the Solomon Islands, the Asiatic continent and the Central Pacific.

Frank M. Williams

Frank M. Williams, 59, former District shorthand reporter and resident of the Washington area for 56 years, died of a heart attack Monday night in Stuart, Fla., where he had made his home for the last two years.

A native of Old Point Comfort, Va., Mr. Williams lived in Arlington County until he moved to Florida following his retirement in 1946. For many years he maintained offices in the Earle Building here, and was well known to District area newsmen and to others covering hearings on Capitol Hill.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret T. Williams of Stuart; two daughters, Mrs. Edward Cannon of Washington and Mrs. Norman Bowles of Arlington, and two brothers and six sisters.

Private funeral services will be held at his Stuart home tomorow afternoon.

Aurelia H. Reinhardt

Palo Alto, Calif., Jan. 28 (AP).—Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, 70, president emeritus of Mills College and nationally noted educator and lecturer, died today.

She taught at Mount Holyoke, Oberlin College, the University of Colorado and Williams College.

Sticks to Rules After Arrest for Speeding

Omaha, Neb. (U.P.)—Wallace E. Huen, 21, arrested for speeding, refused to drive to the police station with the arresting officer and was towed in.

"Why didn't you drive to the station?" Judge Lester Palmer asked.

"Well, the officer had my driver's license," Huen replied, "and I understood it was a violation of the law to drive without a license."

Postoffice Doing Well

Indianapolis (U.P.)—Postmaster Adolph Seidenstisker reported that the 1947 postal receipts were $3,032,905—nearly a 100 per cent increase over 1927, the top year in the post-World War I period.

It's All in a Day's Mail

Mr. President Hears About 'Mule Tough'; Lonely Heart Appeal Comes to Marshall

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THERE'S NOTHING more fascinating to people than people. And one of the most interesting ways to follow the human mind's curious convolutions is grab-bagging in the mail mountain sent President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall. The Secretary receives about 5000 letters weekly which, with some presidential mail dealing with foreign affairs, is handled by the State Department. Many of the communications are thoughtful, some touching, others screwball. The former are answered individually, the others merely acknowledged. Here are a few samples from the grab-bag—this one came from Paris, France.

"To the President: The writer is a partner in a small business establishment. Because of his feeling of friendship for the Americans he is sending an invitation to an American couple who may wish to visit Paris. The invitation comprises free hospitality for 10 days including food and wine. Both French and Italian are spoken in the home."

Enclosed with the letter, which is roughly translated, are two cards. On one is printed "Carte d'invitation No. 1 Reservee aux citoyens U. S. A. valable pour deux personnes pour hospitalite complete et gratuite pendant dix jours." The second card reads "En parle Francais et Italian. Cuisine Francaise: vin Francais."

Needless to say the writer received a personal reply.

Information Please

HERE'S ONE FROM an agitated Midwestern gal who mixed Secretary Marshall with Mary Haworth!"

Dear Mr. Marshall: Have the name of . . . . . , resident of Kansas who has several times broken his marriage vows. Unfortunately I entertained him, gave him no insults. Why do innocent, law-abiding people have to take so many digs? Respectfully, . . ."

Here's a Bryn Mawr citizen anxious to patch our foreign relations:

"Mr. President. Dear Sir: Now that "Mule tough" has gone home to father wouldn't this be an opportune time to make peace with the Japs?"

"Mule tough," as you might guess, is no less a person than Molotov.

The weirdest epistle of all was postmarked Bureau, Washington, B. C., the writer, who must be a refugee from one of those spooky Addams cartoons in the New Yorker, inquires:

"Dear Sir: I would like to know if you could possibly tell me where I could obtain a mirror that would show human beings only. Trusting to hear from you shortly. Thank you. I remain, sincerely yours, . . ."

The State Department also receives quite a few letters addressed to John Marshall, a distinguished gent who served as our fourth Chief Justice back in the 19th Century, first quarter. And, believe it or not, not so long ago, when a constituent sent his Senator a letter for forwarding addressed to Marshal Joseph Stalin, it was hustled around to Marshall, George!

Publisher Comes to Call

PUBLISHER EUGENE REYNAL, stepped into town for a day, presented President Truman with book-form copies of his economic reports. Eugene, promoter of the profitable paper-back Blue Ribbon books, fairly recently merged his Reynal, Hitchcock firm with publishing company Harcourt, Brace. In the spring they'll issue Henry Wallace's tome, a statement of his enchantingly Pollyanna credo. . . . Life magazine has been busier than usual interviewing New Deal Washingtonians for a profile of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt . . . The Soviet government is fast becoming land poor in this country. Their latest real estate deal, trembling on the verge of consummation, is a two-year rental of the late Stanley Mortimer's house in New York's smart residential section, the East Seventies. The rent comes to $20,000 for a two-year term. Meanwhile, Mrs. Mortimer, mother-in-law of Averell Harriman's daughter, Kathie, has taken over Mme. Jacques Balsan's heavenly apartment.

Boxer Show Will Be at Fort Myer Tomorrow

Mrs. James Caro, president of the British Boxer Club, is expected to arrive in Washington by air tomorrow to attend the Potomac Boxer Club's specialty show which opens at 1 in the post gymnasium at Fort Myer.

Mrs. Averell Harriman will be in town to attend the show. The Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall are also among those who plan to attend.

The judging will be continuous from 2 p. m., and it is expected the final award will be made about 9:30.

Others planning to attend are the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the designated Chief of Staff and Mrs. Omar Bradley, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Leslie R. Grove.

Friends From Shanghai Meet Over Cocktails

By Marie McNair

THERE'S always a common bond amongst those who have once lived in China.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Stackelberg held a sort of reunion over cocktails with Mr. and Mrs. Monnett Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Eric A. G. Petersen as their honor guests.

Monnett Davis, who'll probably be our next Ambassador to China, was serving as consul general in Shanghai when Mrs. Stackelberg lived there. And the Petersens, home on leave now, still make their home in Shanghai where Mr. Peterson heads the Chase National Bank.

Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, came in, wearing a wreath of slender gold leaves studded with jade in her smooth black hair, and a gown of black Chinese brocade.

Ambassador William D. Pawley, back from Rio, was there with pretty Mrs. Pawley, and was taking a ribbing with good humor on his appearance in the Executive Gallery of the House with Mrs. Truman and Margaret, when the President delivered his state of the Union message, and the attendant speculation among the press on Margaret's new "boy friend"

Senator Alben Barkley and former Representative and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey had lots to talk about. Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug was head and shoulders over most of the guests and others there were Gen. and Mrs. Junius Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Macy, Col. and Mrs. Frank Morrow and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brite.

Mrs. Deborah Leighton Glassford, who earlier had been hostess at the United Services for China tea, was there; Mrs. Martin Vogel stopped in with her pretty guest, Miss Anita Garcia of New York, and I met Mrs. Sidney Graves on her way out.

Also in this pleasantly informal gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurd, Mrs. Morris Cafritz demure in green taffeta with an old lace collar; Miss Emma Perley Lincoln, Julio Huertematte, commercial counselor of the Panama Embassy,

TOWN TOPICS:

Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the presidential assistant, has been chosen to christen the S. S. Loide-Peru, built by the Ingalls Shipbuilding Co., of Birmingham, Ala., for the Brazilian line.

The ship will glide down the ways at the Pascagoula, Miss., docks on February 6, at 11:45 a. m. and a luncheon at Longfellow House will follow.

Emma Steelman will have Mrs. Frank Boykin, wife of the Representative from Alabama, as her matron of honor. They'll leave Washington on the Crescent Limited February 4 and before they return will stop in Mobile, where Mrs. Boykin's friends have already arranged to fete the ship's sponsor.

Yesterday at the Mayflower Lounge Margaret Truman lunched at a table for four-all girls—with the giant mural of the majestic Capitol as a backdrop.

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, chairman of the Washington committee, United Services to China, will entertain at luncheon today in honor of Mmes Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, before the lecture by Lin Yu Tang at Anderson House. Tomorrow Mrs. Brooke has asked a very few old friends of Mrs. Edward Carpenter for cocktails at her home in Georgetown. Mrs. Carpenter, who formerly lived here, is back as Mr. and Mrs. Brooke's weekend guest.

The Best Looking

Three of the best-looking ladies in the room were in the receiving line. Mrs. Stackelberg wore turquoise blue to bring out the blue of her eyes, her gown made with floor-length skirt and blue bugle beads embroidering the sheer sleeves and yoke. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Petersen, who are both fair, were in black with touches of gold accenting the necklines.

Mrs. Burks Summers told me that she and her husband are just back from Charleston, S. C., where they visited Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim at their new plantation. The camellias are in full bloom there now on trees as high as the ceiling of their charming white house. The river winds by not far away and there's good hunting right on the grounds.

Palladian Room Has Opening At Shoreham

Down the wide marble stairway . . . into "Bird-Cage Walk" . . . and through great arch doorways moved one of Washington's brilliant gatherings of resident society, diplomats and officials. The occasion was the opening of the new Palladian Room at the Shoreham Hotel last evening.

The room, which derives its name from the sixteenth century architect, Andrea Palladio, is the result of a letter which Thomas Jefferson wrote to Prince San Faustino who was his host in Italy. In the letter Jefferson mentions his admiration for the "soaring white columns of Palladian architecture" . . . and fondly hopes that "some day I may transplant that beauty against the beautiful blues and grays of my own valley of the Piedmont and Shenandoah."

James Reynolds, noted painter, writer, designer, found the letter while doing research in Rome. It inspired him to create the room now known as the Palladian Room. Three sides of the room are covered with the Reynolds murals . . . the fourth is a circular wall of sheer glass overlooking Rock Creek Park.

Among those dining and dancing in this setting were the Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres, the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Averell Harriman, the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Stuart Symington, the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Representative and Mrs. Jay LeFevre, Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge, the Australian Minister, Alfred Stirling, and his sister, Miss Dorothy Stirling; the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John Steelman, Representative and Mrs. Ed Gossett, Representative and Mrs. Harry Sheppard, Senator and Mrs. George Malone.

Also, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson, Sir Herbert Brodley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Boland, Mrs. Edwin Watson, Ralph Fortser, Dr. and Mrs. Auguste Boas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schram, Comdr. and Mrs. Charles C. Windsor and Mr. and Mrs. Vesegur.

General and Mrs. Pratt Entertain Visitors

MAJ. GEN. AND MRS. CONGER PRATT entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. Vladimir Behr of Newport, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William Rose, visiting here from Honolulu.

Tossed Salad Used Leftovers

A tossed salad is good insurance against those uneaten lettuce leaves so often left on the plates. In preparing a tossed salad, wash the lettuce leaves, dry thoroughly, then break into small pieces. Just before serving, mix lightly with the dressing and other salad ingredients until each bit is moistened. A tossed salad is a delicious and convenient way to use up odds and ends of leftover vegetables, fruits, meats, cheese, fish, etc.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

I dyed some place mats black and put them on some blond oak end tables on which stood lamps. The mats evidently weren't dry, though they felt dry to the touch. Two weeks later when I was dusting the tables, I found some of the dye had transferred to them. I have tried soap and water, an eraser, and even bleaches, but the stain is still noticeable. Do you know of anything I could use to remove the spots? J. J. W.

You may be able to take them off by rubbing with rottenstone or powdered pumice and lemon oil. These supplies are obtainable in paint stores, sometimes in drug stores. Dip cloth in oil, then in powdered material, and rub in direction of grain. However, if the dye has thoroughly impregnated the wood, refinishing will probably be the only way to get rid of the stains.

Last summer, I bought a 100-pound sack of sugar, as I had a chance to purchase it at wholesale. Now that I am ready to use it, I find it had become a solid cake. Is there any way to make it break apart, or must it be scraped down slowly? M. R. H.

The first thing to do is to pound the sack with a blunt instrument to break it up into smaller chunks. Use a heavy stick, an ice mallet or a large hammer. The chunks can then be put into the refrigerator one or two at a time in a pan and left for several days to soften. Another way to soften the sugar would be to place lumps in a bread box with a cup of water alongside them. Pieces could also be rubbed on a metal grater to pulverize them or made into syrup for use in cooking or in beverages.

In response to J. W. S.'s request for information on musicales and other programs, may I suggest that she write to the Public Library of the District of Columbia, Washingtonia Division. They issue a monthly summary of educational opportunities—concerts, lectures, courses of study, art exhibits, nature walks and similar events—and will be glad to put her on their mailing list. E. F. M.

Possibly "Do You Know," a monthly release of the District of Columbia Recreation Department, would be helpful to J. W. S., who recently wrote you for information on musical programs and other events in Washington. This gives lists of plays, sports events, concerts, dance recitals and other recreational activities scheduled in Washington area each month. She can have her name placed on the mailing list for this monthly letter by writing the District of Columbia Recreation Department, Walsh Center, 1523 22d st. nw., rear, Washington 7, D. C. A. W.

Many thanks to E. F. M. and A. W. for sending in this helpful information.

Will you tell me how to make the sauce for shrimp? I can't seem to find a recipe for it in any of my books. B. D.

Am I right in assuming that you mean a cocktail sauce? Here is one that can be easily made and is often served with shrimp:

1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup ketchup
2 teaspoons horseradish (grated)
3 drops Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Mix and chill well before serving. This makes 1/3 cup sauce. Celery salt or finely chopped celery can be added if you wish.

E. G. M. stated in your column of January 14 that she has two luncheon sets of Guatemalan cotton which she wants to treat before washing. I returned from Guatemala this spring and brought back with me several luncheon sets of this cotton which I am using regularly. In their original form, direct from the "factory" where they are woven by the Indians, the cloths, napkins, etc., are unfinished; i. e., they have no hems and must be overcast or machine-stitched along the untouched edges to retain the fringe that is left by the weavers. The several weaving "factories" that make such cloths in Guatemala City and Antigua, the old capital of the country, are purely tourist commercial enterprises, as Indian textiles in other than their original tapestry form are not used by the Guatemalans of Spainish descent except as novelties. Because of this and the constant market from Americans, the factory owners are careful to have fast dyes in luncheon and bridge sets. Their market depends on this.

However, nearly the Indians (women, that is) weave their own material for clothes in their villages, not in "factories." It is this material that is bought for tapestries, table scarfs, etc., and their colors are entirely unreliable. The heavier embroidered material dry cleans beautifully, however.

In American homes and boarding houses in Guatemala, where the local "factory"-made tablecloths and napkins are used, in spite of the fact that their colors are good, the clothes are generally soaked as you have described, either in salt or in vinegar. I have had no trouble with my cloths here, however—perhaps partly due to the fact that our soap is much milder than Guatemalan soap, which is reported to kill fleas and all!

Perhaps my experience with Guatemalan goods may be of some help to E. G. M. R. G. G.

Thank you, R. G. G., for your interesting and informative letter.

My husband and myself find ourselves quite confused as to the proper method of finishing unfinished furniture—bookcases, etc., that my husband has made of pine. I would like the finished product to match my furniture in shade and shiny finish—which is bleached mahogany. So far, we have tried a stain—light mahogany—which looks almost like redwood. Then tried "natural" which did not deepen the shade of wood, and lastly, have tried a wax stain in "light oak," which, unfortunately, finished in almost a mustard color. I have tried explaining to the various paint salesmen that I wanted the furniture in a bleached wood shade, but seem to have gotten the wrong answers. Can you help me? I. S.

It is almost impossible to make pine look like mahogany, regardless of the finish which is applied. The grains of the two woods are entirely different and then too, one is a soft wood, the other a hard wood. Usually when finishing pine, a finish which covers up the grain is chosen because the pine grain isn't as pretty as in the hard woods. Why don't you enamel the book cases in a color which would blend with the colors in your room and be a pleasing contrast to the other furniture? Some of the most attractive and interesting rooms are those in which the furniture blends, but doesn't match.

It Will All Come Out in the Wash If You Follow These Laundering Tips

IT'LL ALL come out in the wash if you use modern methods in tubbing the family duds, says Miss Margaret Doughty, who is conducting a three-day laundry forum this week in a Washington department store.

Among the suggestions made by Miss Doughty, who heads the home laundry institute for a large equipment manufacturer, are the following:

The saying "A little is good—a lot is better" doesn't apply when it comes to using soap in laundering. Too much soap makes clothes slippery, lessens the effectiveness of your automatic washer in swishing them through the water. Add soap slowly, making sure you don't get more than the amount prescribed by your washer manufacturer.

Using water softener is important in Washington, as well as elsewhere. Here, where water is of about 7-grain hardness, Miss Doughty uses ¼ cup of water softener to each washer-load of water.

Instead of rubbing bar soap on shirt collars, perspiration-soaked underarms, cuffs, and other extra soiled places, apply solution of water and soap with a brush.

The time to remove stains is before washing; otherwise, they may become so set you'll never get them out. Use cleaning fluid on grease spots, then brush on soap and water mixture, and drop clothes in washer.

Mix your washer loads. It's better to have articles of varying size—children's clothes, bath towels, sheets, handkerchiefs, men's shirts—all mixed in the same load, than to make it all of the same size things.

Soak clothes in lukewarm water. It will loosen soil that might be set by an immediate dousing in hot water. Use hot water for washing ordinary laundry, lukewarm water for laundering fine lingerie, woolens, and the like. Rinse all laundry in lukewarm water.

After sprinkling clothes for ironing, don't roll them up. That only makes more wrinkles. Fold clothes instead, place in basket in layers, cover with towel, and leave until dampness has gone through them evenly.

Sheets Last Longer If Hung Properly

The proper hanging of sheets means a great deal in the life of a sheet. While still wet, shake them well. Hang them with the hems together, the edges of the hems pinned to the lines. This method will frustrate blustery winds and prevent torn corners, besides much easier to iron, as they will dry perfectly even.

Table linen is always so much more attractive if snowy white and it can be kept this way if a tablespoon of borax is added to each 2 quarts of clear water used for rinsing the napkins.

Do not dampen the clothes so wet that it is difficult to iron them absolutely dry. If clothes are not ironed dry it results in easily creased garments that look unsightly after one wearing.

If your hands have perspired and the kid gloves are damp, pull them off over your hand and not by tugging at the fingertips. You are most apt to break the stitches and get the gloves out of shape if you use this drastic measure when they are damp.

Two Syrup Jars

It is wise to equip the breakfast table with two syrup jars on hot cake days. It will save a great deal of passing and repassing if there is butter and syrup at each end

Mary Haworth's Mail

Two Years Ago Young Matron Initiated But Soon Abandoned Chase of Married Man, Who Created Serious Problem by Telling His Wife

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have been married 21 years and we have six lovely children to whom we are devoted. Until two years ago we were the happiest couple you could imagine, with no troubles whatever. And then trouble came.

We live in the country, though my husband's work is in town, and as we were expecting our fifth child at the time, I was staying home more. Then he started staying in town for his noonday meals and on Thursday nights he was always late getting in.

To make a long story short, a young woman whose husband was overseas had started chasing my husband. Wherever he turned, there she was. They saw each other for three months; then she joined the Wacs and left town shortly before our child was born.

My husband confessed it all to me, asking forgiveness and saying wrong company had led him astray. He was working with another man, who, though married, was a ladies' man and had no morals, and whose "girls" were all married, too.

Story Goes That Girl Was Bribed

WITH so many men in the service and so many women hungering for attention, promiscuity was rife and temptation rampant; but we have heard from others since that the girl was bribed to chase him,—bribed by some of his so-called friends, who, because of his good reputation, wanted to test his powers of resistance.

We both know where the girl lives, in a nearby city, as we go there often and pass her home nearly every time. Naturally if the girl were bribed she knows who bribed her, and for peace of mind we'd like to visit her together some time and find out who did it.

I have been very sick since it happened and worry constantly. I am planning a serious operation soon. I may die then and my husband begs me to go talk to this girl and get things straightened out in my mind. What should I do? Please advise. C. B.

Wife's Anxiety Isn't Justified

DEAR C. B.: Obviously your husband's devotion is still altogether yours to command, although I daresay it wouldn't be able to survive indefinitely the punitive strain of your pure-hysterical carryings on since he confessed all.

Whatever happened between him and the girl, it didn't jeopardize your marriage except as it has affected your health of mind; and the truth is, you can't justifiably pin that joy-killing denouement on him. Rather it points to a great deal of infantilism in your emotional make-up, a regressive escapist reaction to social experiences that threaten one's security.

Moreover, this woebegone suffering type of reaction to ego-affront or other disappointment inadvertently dealt by an intimate is the dependent immature personality's way of being insidiously vindicative; a way of crushing the other individual's spontaneity with the weight of one's displeasure.

Dramatic Play For Spotlight

IT WOULD be sordid and silly, a sellout of dignity, to go muckracking or grave-digging to the girl about who, if anybody, bribed her to chase your husband. But actually I don't think that's your true reason for wanting to go.

More likely the real compulsion is to track her down and size her up, to see whether she corresponds to your ideas of her; also perhaps to swagger a bit for "knowing all," for being manifestly the fall recipient of your husband's confidence in the matter, thus humiliating her; and maybe lastly to study your husband's behavior in her company, to decipher (if possible) whether he still has erotic feeling for her.

For advice: In the name of common sense, forget about the girl and the washed-up escapade which she initiated and abandoned two years ago. Don't destroy yourself by looking backward, as Lot's wife did. And about that operation: Is it really necessary? It could be that your unconscious is cooking up excuse to compel extravagant solicitude in dramatic circumstances. It's simply amazing how many middle-aged women head for surgery when their basic ailment is rooted in the psyche.

M. H.

Scout Leaders To Meet for Tea

The home of Mrs. Proctor Dougherty, wife of the former District Commissioner, at 3723 Jennifer st., will be the setting for a tea tomorrow honoring Girl Scout leaders and assistant leaders of District 3. Sharing hostess duties with Mrs. Dougherty will be members of the newly elected executive committee of this northwest area, headed by Mrs. Charles Howe, chairman.

In addition to the adult leaders of the Girl Scouts, the school principals and religious leaders of the neighborhood have been invited to the affair, which has become an annual custom.

On the Washington Club Front . . .

The DAR Grandmothers' Club—a new star in the District's club firmament—will hold a tea, Thursday, January 29, 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. at the chapter house, 1732 Massachusetts ave., nw.

Mrs. James W. Butler, voted the "youngest grandmother" at the DAR State Conference last spring, is the national chairman. The club was originally organized to create interest in the Children of the American Revolution. Under the leadership of Mrs. Butler, the activities of the members have become more diversified. Soldiers at Walter Reed Hospital receive a visit every Saturday, and look forward to the candy, books and magazines the Grandmothers bring; a contribution has been made in honor of Mrs. Butler to the Hodgkins Memorial DAR fund for the George Washington Hospital; and many new members have been brought into the DAR.

Among the honor guests to be present at the tea are: Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, Mrs. Donald Adams, Mrs. Rex Hays Rhoades, Mrs. Wilfred J. Clearman, Mrs. William Pouch, Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke and Mrs. John Morrison Kerr.

Mrs. Leonard Mayfield is chairman of the tea at the Chapter House, and her hostesses are Mrs. Mayberry Hughes and Mrs. Frank Sherman, assisted by Mrs. Wayne Birdsell.

Author to Address A. P. V. A. Friday

James E. Palmer, jr., author and historian, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Washington branch, Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities at 2 p. m., Friday, at the Willard Hotel. Mr. Palmer, author of "Carter Glass, Unreconstructed Rebel" will speak on "Underemphasized Contributions to the Things That Made Virginia Great."

Early this month, Miss Gabriella Page of Richmond, president of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, turned the first spade-full of earth for the reconstructioh of the old Guard House at Williamsburg, which is on A. P. V. A. property. Recently, the A. P. V. A. purchased the ante-belum home of Ellen Glasgow in Richmond to be preserved as a shrine to the Southern novelist and to the era it represents.

Friday's meeting will mark the fifty-second annual meeting of the Washington branch which will include the election of officers for the coming year. Mrs. Guy Withers, directress, will preside.

Washington Club Names Board Members

The Washington Club yesterday elected five new members to its board of governors.

They are Miss Temple Bailey, Miss Grace C. Burton, Mrs. Charles Mercer Marsh, Miss Emma T. Strider and Mrs. Bates Warren. Each will serve for three years.

Dr. Powell to Address Petworth Woman's Club

Dr. C. Perry Powell of the division of manuscripts, Library of Congress, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Petworth Woman's Club next Thursday, following luncheon served at noon by the Fine Arts section of the club. Dr. Powell will speak on "Another Chapter in the Lincoln Story."

A patriotic musical program has been arranged by Mrs. Frederick V. Brown and will include group singing of songs popular in Lincoln's day.

State Board, DAR To Meet for Luncheon

State Officers Club Board, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet Saturday for luncheon at the Kenesaw. Hostesses will be Mrs. Pearl M. Shaffer and Mrs. J. Edwin Lawton. Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., will preside.

How to Lose Ten Pounds Without Diet

By Ida Jean Kain

Under the heading of things subject to change without notice, add weight. That is, you don't notice it much. The pounds sneak on and it comes as a shock when someone remarks how well you look with more weight. More weight! You'd been blaming the cleaner for shrinking those last two dresses.

Any slight addition to regular eating habits pushes weight up. So for one reason and another, it's a good plan to weigh fairly regularly. That keeps you alert to the danger of graduating to a larger size. It can keep you from drifting along until you are 10 pounds or 20 over the normal for your weight and structure. Twenty per cent above normal weight is obesity.

It's so much easier to take off 3 pounds than it is 10. But never mind, it's still easier to take off 10 extra pounds than it is 20. Where to start? At the next meal—with fats. First cut down on the visible fats—the butter, cream, mayonnaise, French dressing, gravy and the fat part of the meat. Just trimming fats may be enough to cut your calories to the point where you'll lose the extra pounds.

You can easily lose 10 pounds without going on a diet. One overweight wrote that she lowered her weight simply by streamlining her dinner. She ate a good breakfast and a good lunch, but cut her usual big dinner in half. She left off the bread and butter and desserts, and avoided some of the fats.

A business girl stopped the rising tide in weight by getting out of the habit of taking a chocolate soda at 4. She drank a glass of buttermilk instead—thus saving 300-plus calories.

Many a reducer turns the trend of the scales by cutting out desserts and pastries. In fact, simply omitting desserts is to my notion the easiest way to lose weight. You may have a different notion.

Any slight change in regular eating habits that cuts calories below the amount used daily will force the weight trend down. For example, if you are in the habit of eating two slices of bread and butter per meal and cut down to one, you are subtracting at least 200 calories from the daily diet.

The Impromptu Party

Many times we gather together several couples for an impromptu party of bridge and are at a loss for prizes. Run down to your preserve closet and select a few jars of homemade preserves or jellies and wrap them in paper napkins and place in a box for the winner. Everyone enjoys a change in homemade preserves.

Try Spaghetti Dish For Savory Meal

¾ pound spaghetti
4 medium-sized onions, chopped
1 No. 2½ can tomatoes
½ pound grated American cheese

Cook spaghetti in boiling water until tender. Fry bacon, cut fine. Remove bacon from pan and, in the fat, fry the chopped onions. Add the tomatoes next and stir well. Return bacon to pan, add spaghetti and grated cheese. Simmer until cheese is melted and all is well-blended.

To All Users of Natural Gas

Up to this time we in the Washington area have been fortunate in escaping the serious effects of the natural gas shortage prevalent in most of the cities in the Eastern part of the country.

In common with other companies in the area, we have not at all times received our full requirements of natural gas during this period of cold weather. However, we have supplemented our supply by making oil gas in our stand-by plant, thereby delivering an uninterrupted supply to our customers.

Our present supply of oil is limited and additional supplies are uncertain.

A critical situation could develop at any time under present weather conditions. Therefore, we ask our customers to save gas and join the general fuel conservation effort by observing the following:

1. Keep thermostat at 68° during daytime and not more than 60° during sleeping hours at night. Use the fireplace and any other means of auxiliary heat whenever possible.
2. Do not heat unused rooms. Draw shades at night if you do not have storm windows. Close bedroom doors at night.
3. Use hot water sparingly from gas water heater. Curtail the use of other gas appliances whenever possible.

Doug, Jr.'s Just 25 Years Tardy

By Richard L. Coe

SWASHBUCKLER Douglas Fairbanks, jr., swashes a lot in Keith's "The Exile," but the picture buckles a good deal more.

Young Doug knew exactly what he wanted to do when he made this picture about England's Charles II in his Holland exile. He wrote it, produced it and stars in it. He presents a pretty newcomer with blonde hair and dark eyes in her first dramatic lesson.. He takes a staircase four steps at a time and exudes mahly charm all over the place. It isn't, alas, enough.

As a matter of fact, "The Exile" isn't half a second's advance in time over the pictures Doug's father used to make. While this probably is just what its star intended, one can't get enthusiastic over a carbon copy of a 25-year-old style that lacks the zest of the originals. As a script writer Doug isn't up to himself as a chandelier swinger.

His story is manufactured for those whose hearts bled at the romantic tangles of such royal lovers as Edward VIII, Carol II and Michel I. It broke Charles' heart, Doug tells us, that he had to go back to that horrid old throne in England and leave his heart's true love tending a Dutch farm.

This is, you see, the younger Charles whom you saw later in life as George Sanders in "Forever Amber." It also is the Charles of British history who was to declare war on the Holland wherein Doug's lady love presumably was still eating her heart out for the Stuart who took up with all sorts of London ladies, Nell Gwynn among them.

Dubbed-In Wisecracks

Doug, to be sure, isn't concerned with the Charles the historians know. He's creating a movie king, a gallant, outspoken guy who's a great one with the ladies and likes nothing better than a swing on a windmill. Doug has the grace to suggest he's something of a wit, too, which is a handy idea.

But his story does bog down too often in time-honored cliches, and the courtiers are rarely more than dressed-up actors.

Maria Montez, one of the most outlandish females of the contemporary screen, is in passing evidence as a roaming countess whose bathtub is one of the picture's livelier props. Miss Montez manages to speak even less distinctly than usual, a matter of no importance whatever, for Maria's lines can scarcely be called vital, and there is, after all, some entertainment in trying to cacth her fantastic gibberish.

Paule Croset (why doesn't she spell it Paul Crozay?) is the newcomer, and while she's mighty purty her screen future is something I wouldn't like to make book on. Henry Daniell shows considerable spunk for taking on the strapping Doug, though, of course, he does come to grief.

Keith's bill also includes a Disney Pluto cartoon, "Mail Dog," and one of those orchestral shorts, a Tommy Tucker "Jamboree," which rates as one of the deadliest examples this reporter has seen of a deadly idea. A band sitting in front of a camera playing undistinguished arrangements of three familiar chunes, just ain't photogenic, and that's that.

Monsieur Petrillo appears in the newsreel.

TODAY'S the day seats go on sale at the National for Bert Lahr's "Burlesque" . . . After its year's run in New York without paying its production costs, the comedy has startled the wiseacres by doing tremendous business the first three weeks of a road tour which began as being "brief" . . . Philadelphia saw two big weeks and now Baltimore's gate is so good a special performance has been added for Sunday night over there . . . By the time Lahr and his company get here, E st.'s advance will be "solid."

LAST NIGHT Valerie Warde's pupils of her Children's Theater offered portions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Pride and Prejudice" at Cafritz Auditorium . . . The age group of the first ran from 4 to 12, with Bonnie Lynne Magruder, Richard Kolb, Ginger Ann Rawley, Tom Bowen and Doris McCoy . . . The Austen story was acted by teen-agers, among them Ricky Schulze, Barbara Hill, Virginia Green, Billie Sue West, Jo Ann Vick and Kate Williams . . . Miss Warde's studio is at 2 Dupont cir.

Virginia Bill Would Audit Population Gains

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—A bill which would give localities credit for officially recorded population gains since the last preceding United States census was introduced in the house of delegates today.

One effect of the proposed change would be to increase shares of State funds allocated on a populatoin basis—such as ABC profits — for those cities and counties which can prove, by interim census reports, increases in population.

The bill provides that the population figures source should include "any and all official censuses taken by the Bureau of Census of the United States Department of Commerce and shall include special censuses as well as decennial censuses."

Principal immediate beneficiaries of the change would be the Hampton Roads and Arlington areas which have grown rapidly since 1940 and where special censuses have been made since that year.

Manassas to Keep Slaughterhouse Ban

Manassas, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—The Manassas Town Council has voted unanimously to retain a town ordinance prohibiting establishment of slaughterhouses within the corporate limits. Action was taken by the body after Manassas Frozen Foods, Inc., asked that the measure be rescinded to pave the way for construction of a modern slaughterhouse on the premises of its present locker plant on S. Main st.

Tax Commission Gets Hagerstown Assessment Case

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—A $43,000 disagreement between Washington County's supervisor of assessments and the county commissioners over evaluation of recent additions to the Brandt Cabinet Works of Hagerstown was taken under advisement by the State Tax Commission today.

The supervisor, Simon Clopper, told the commission he set the value of three new buildings, erected in 1947, at $133,888, basing his calculation on the 1941-42 industrial construction level to eliminate the "inflationary factor."

He appealed to the State agency when the county commissioners decided to cut the assessment figure to $90,000. The cut was defended at today's hearing by Commissioner Clarence V. Eldridge.

The commission is expected to hand down its decision within a week or so.

Athletics Found No. 1 Army Hazard in Peace

Fort Meade, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—Athletics is the most perilous pursuit of a peacetime army, statistics gathered at this Second Army headquarters post showed today.

The second worst hazard, Second Army officials said, is just plain falls. It causes 16 per cent of the "disabling injuries." Athletics produces a 22 percentage.

Third in line, and comprising 13 per cent of the disabling injuries, were vehicle accidents, the Army post said. Seventy-eight per cent of such accidents, it added, happened when "the soldier was taking a chance."

Huntland Farm Sold Near Middleburg

Warrenton, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—Sale of historic Huntland Farm, near Middleburg, to Mrs. Priscilla de la Fregonniere of Nassau, Bahamas, was announced here today by the real estate firm of J. Green Carter.

The 413-acre farm, with its large residence erected in the 1830s, was purchased from Fred B. Prophet of Detroit, who has owned the property since January 1946. The new owner plans to make the estate her permanent residence, and to devote the farmland to cattle raising.

Bids Are Asked On 5 Road Jobs In Nearby Md.

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP). — The State Roads Commission today asked sealed bids by noon of February 10 on the following highway projects in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties:

Asphaltic concrete surfacing of .15 miles on Georgia ave. in Silver Spring from the District of Columbia line to East-West Highway.

Asphaltic concrete surfaces of 1.7 miles on State Route 195 along Carroll ave. from the District line northeast to Flower ave. and from University lane south for .55 miles.

Asphaltic concrete surfacing of 2.68 miles on State Route 320 from Georgia ave. to New Hampshire ave.

Asphaltic concrete surfacing of 1 mile on State Route 194 along Flower ave. from Carroll ave. north to State Route 320.

Concrete asphaltic surfacing of .98 miles on State Route 198 along Montgomery st. in Laurel from the Baltimore-Washington blvd. west.

Va. Honey Crop Sets Quantity, Price Marks

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Virginia bees turned out a record honey crop of an estimated 4,640,000 pounds in 1947 and growers received a record price of 34 cents a pound for it, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service disclosed today.

The total value of the 1947 crop was "placed at $1,578,000, as compared with $971,000 in 1946.

Runs Into Mine

316 Reported Dead as Jap Ship Is Sunk

Tokyo, Jan. 28 (AP).—A small Japanese freighter packed with passengers struck a mine—probably laid by United States planes during the war—and sank today in Japan's Inland Sea with the loss of possibly 316 lives.

The military government put the death toll at 316, United States naval headquarters set it at 288 and Kyodo News Agency estimated 250.

It was believed all the victims were Japanese. Three of the rescued were British soldiers.

The 400-ton Joo Maru was on a routine run from Kobe to Tadotsu when it hit the mine in the early morning near the island of Kuro.

The military government at Okayama said the Joo carried 426 persons, that 120 were rescued and 10 later died of injuries.

Sports to Promote Safety

Akron (U.P.).—The typical American's interest in sports and in setting new records is the key to a new safety program B. F. Goodrich has announced for 1948. The sports angle is double-barreled providing not only the "themes" for three season contests, but also part of the rewards. Representatives of winning divisions will get all-expense trips to the Kentucky Derby, the World Series and the Army-Navy football game.

No Way to Treat a Jail

Coeur D'Alene, Idaho (U.P.).—Three prisoners got nowhere when they sought to escape the Kootenai County jail by battering a hole in the concrete shower room floor with a piece of pipe. They succeeded only in bending the pipe. The indignant jailer had them charged with "injuring a public jail," which is against Idaho law.

Six Negroes Seek to Enter Oklahoma U.

Norman, Okla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Six Negroes today applied for admission to four different schools at the University of Oklahoma in a renewed effort to break down the State's racial segregation in education.

Dr. George L. Cross, president of the university, said he had referred the question to the Oklahoma board of regents and the university regents.

The attempted enrollment follows the actions of Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old Negro, who unsuccessfully sought admission to the law school after the United States Supreme Court on January 12 issued an order to the State to give her equal and immediate educational facilities with those of whites.

The higher regents set up a three-man faculty school of law for Negroes but no one had enrolled at the deadline for applications for admission today.

Applications by the six Negroes brought before State officials the problem of providing separate Negro schools of substantially the same caliber, permitting them to enter the University of Oklahoma, or shutting down the specified classes completely to all students.

Dr. M. A. Nash, chancellor of the Oklahoma higher regents, said the decision would be delayed until after a meeting of the regents tomorrow or Friday.

Those applying are:

James Bond, a biology professor at Langston University, only Negro school for higher education in Oklahoma.

M. A. Dillon, honor student at Langston, who seeks graduate work in architectural engineering.

Helen Holmes, Oklahoma City, who wants to enter the graduate school in business administration.

Mauderie Hancock Wilson and Ivor Tatum, both of Oklahoma City, who seek graduate studies in social work.

G. W. McLaurin, Oklahoma City, who seeks a Ph.D. in school administration.

Atom Board Sets Up Fund For Studies

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday set up a one-million-dollar fellowship fund to finance the training of doctors and biologists in a new field of science.

The funds will be spent to carry out the first year of a long-range program designed to relieve what the commission called "the serious shortage of trained scientific personnel in the field of atomic energy as applied to biology and medicine."

Officials explained that the goal is not simply to train doctors in the treatment of atomic bomb victims, although that baffling medical dilemma will undoubtedly be explored. The primary aim is to gain more basic scientific knowledge of both the good and bad effects of atomic radiation on the human body, and other living organisms.

Thus, the scientists educated under the fellowship program will be encouraged to study the use of radioisotopes in the diagnosis and treatment of disease; to explore the mysteries of plant life; and to develop better protection for workers in atomic plants, among many other subjects.

The program will be administered by the national research council of the National Academy of Sciences.

The commission said that applicants from any branch of biology or medicine are eligible for fellowships, although the first will be distributed among doctors of medicine, doctors of philosophy in the biological sciences, and bachelors of science and of arts who will be given training in health physics.

5 Veterans Tell Of Payments at Williams' Trial

Five veterans yesterday related how they had deposited from $500 to $1000 with George H. Williams, real estate promoter, for homes he promised but failed to build.

Williams, who lives in Kensington, Md., is on trial in District Court on mail fraud and bad check charges, arising out of collecting more than $100,000 in deposits from 138 veterans in 1946. He had planned three housing projects in Prince Georges County.

Veterans who testified yesterday included H. W. Baker, Paul R. King and Robert T. Englehart of Kensington; Walter Bidzynski, Brentwood; and Thomas Roberts, 5100 H st. ne.

Group Named To Study Md. Prison Labor

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—Appointment of a 13-man committee to study prison labor, education and rehabilitation of inmates was announced today by Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes, chairman of the Maryland Legislative Council.

"Members of the council," the Senate president said, "are of the opinion that prison labor could be better utilized and that a study should be made in connection with the education of prisoners, particularly those who did not reach the fifth grade."

He said the committee would work with the Department of Correction, and made public a letter from the department's chairman, Reuben Oppenheimer, declaring he was looking forward "to cooperate with our committee in every possible way."

Chairman of the committee is Paul I. Leary of Baltimore, professional fire insurance engineer and underwriter. Senator Wilmer C. Carter (L., Baltimore) was named vice chairman.

The rest of the committee includes:

George W. Constable, Baltimore attorney; Delegate Charles M. Bandiere of Baltimore's Fifth District; Editor J. J. Tahaney of the Labor Herald, a weekly; Allen A. Gordon of Baltimore, president of Gordon Cartons, Inc.; Adam P. Barrett, Ellicott City, retired investment broker.

Richard W. Wickers, Towson, Baltimore County director of probation; Mrs. Helen Tingley, Baltimore, member of the board of motion picture censors; Dr. Ralph J. Young, Baltimore Negro physician; Vernon Scheidt, president of the prisoners aid association of Maryland; J. Bond Smith, Montgomery County attorney and member of the former prison labor commission, and Frank Clark Ellis, president of the Baltimore Building Trades Council.

James W. Curran, industrial superintendent of Maryland prisons, was appointed as consultant to the committee.

Union Bridge Student Wins DAR Contest

Westminster, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—Imogene Weybright, a senior at Elmer A. Wolfe High School at Union Bridge, has won the Carroll County contest for the good citizenship pilgrimage of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her essay was judged the best of seven submitted by county students and will be entered in the State contest. The Maryland winner will represent the Free State at the DAR Continental Congress.

Prince William County Seal Sales Fall Short

Manasas, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—Receipts of the annual tuberculosis Christmast seal sale drive in Prince William County have totaled $1650—$573 short of the $2223 quota—it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Frank D. Cox, county chairman. Persons who have not aided the drive to date are requested to send in contributions prior to March 24, when a final report will be compiled.

Married 56 Years . . .

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hackett of Highfield, Md., recently celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary. Hackett, who was 79 January 26, and his wife, 75, were married in Buckingham County, Va., January 5, 1892. They have 9 children, 25 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren. A messenger for the West Maryland railroad, Hackett meets four trains daily and hasn't missed a train for five years. His wife still takes care of the household chores in their Highfield home

Banker Trial Is Recessed Until Today

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Judge Johnson J. Hayes recessed the Federal District Court trial of Clarence L. Robey, president of the Purcellville National Bank, late today until tomorrow after one Government witness had been on the stand.

Robey is charged with aiding William Reeves Gardner in the misapplication of nearly $500,000 from the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

Judge Hayes recessed the nonjury trial of Robey when District Attorney George R. Humrickhouse took exception to contentions that the Purcellville National Bank had not allowed Hugh N. Rakes to overdraw an account in that bank and told the court he would introduce evidence to show that Robey had misrepresented a Rakes transaction in a letter to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

The Government witness was J. D. Tribby, cashier of the Purcellville Bank.

Virginian Is Held In Hitchhike Robbery

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—People's Court Judge Carl L. Walter has ordered Arthur David Hopkins, 29, of Chincoteague, Va., held in jail here in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of holding up a truck driver who gave him a ride.

L. T. Britt of Norfolk, Va., identified Hopkins as the man who "pointed something in his pocket at me" and took $40. Britt said he picked up Hopkins in Virginia and brought him to Salisbury on the night of December 29.

Florida to Consider Setting Merrick Free

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—Governor Lane said today he had been assured the Florida State Parole Commission would weigh carefully a request for the release of a 53-year-old man who asserts he fled a chain gang there 23 years ago.

Governor Caldwell of Florida wired the Maryland executive that he will ask the commission to give "most careful consideration" to the case of Brent L. Merrick of Easton, Md.

Lane had written Caldwell earlier this week, suggesting that the Eastern Shore man be pardoned.

4-H Leaders Attend School At Maryland U.

Nearly 90 Maryland youth leaders met yesterday at Maryland University for a three-day local leader training school.

The 69 leaders and 17 assistant county agents attending the meeting represent approximately 1000 4-H Club members. The school is planned to acquaint the leaders with the latest information on agricultural subjects and leadership problems.

Yesterday, the leaders heard facts they may not have known about Maryland, such as, Extension Forester Harry W. Denglar's comment that Maryland is 43 per cent woodland and that there are 120 species of trees within the State.

This morning Dr. R. Lee Hornboke, professor of industrial education at Maryland University will speak on "The Psychology of Group Leadership;" Field Agent E. W. Alton of the Department of Agriculture, on "Keeping High School Youth in 4-H Clubs;" and Stanley Sutton, assistant county agent of Kent County, on "Recreation for the Local Club Meeting." Ralph Porterfield, extension dairyman, will give helpful hints on dairy club work and John Cotton, extension soil conservationist, on soil conservtion, at the afternoon session.

Dr. Clarence B. Smith of Takoma Park, former assistant director of the Federal Extension Service, will speak at a banquet at 6 p. m.

4 Held for Taking 'Shangri-La' Houses

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—Four men were charged today with dismantling two United States-built houses near Shangri-La, famed Presidential retreat, and using the materials to construct new dwellings on their own.

Appearing here before United States Deputy Commissioner C. Welles Little, the men said they thought the Government homes had been abandoned.

They identified themselves as George A. Wolfe, Donald Smith, Howard L. DeLauter, and Eugene S. Kuhn, all of Foxville, 18 miles from here.

Welles held them in $1000 bond each for Federal Court in Baltimore.

Benefit Concert Tonight

Manassas, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl).—The choral group of the Manassas Regional High School will appear in a benefit concert at the Osbourn High School tomorrow at 8 p. m., under sponsorship of the Manassas Lions Club. Proceeds will be devoted to the Prince William County War Memorial Center.

Fight Planned On Two-State Fish Authority

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl).—Proposed Virginia-Maryland supervision of oystering and fishing rights in the Potomac River and Chesapeake Bay will be strongly opposed by the newly formed Virgina Pound Net Fishermen's Association.

The group, composed of fishermen from counties bordering on the Potomac in the northern neck of Virginia, has announced it will fight legislation now pending before the Virginia General Assembly to create a seven-man authority from the two States with full jurisdiction over currently disputed waters.

Spokesmen for the association said it opposes the measure on the ground that it would "add to government regulation, and would mean transferral of authority from the present Virginia Commission of Fisheries to a group wholly unknown to us."

A statement on the proposed bill added: "We do not feel that the joint Virginia-Maryland study commission, which recommended the legislation, is fully aware of the problems that would be created by the establishment of such a joint authority. Already the fish business is plagued by much government regulation, and this would add to it."

The association has elected E. O. Fitchett of Palmer as temporary chairman, and Robert K. Whaley of White Stone, temporary secretary.

Public Parking Lot Program for Bethesda Urged

A program of acquiring public parking lots centrally situated in the Bethesda business district was proposed yesterday by Montgomery County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter.

Sauter, commissioner for the Bethesda district, said that he was in favor of a program in Bethesda similar to the one now nearing the halfway mark in Silver Spring.

In the latter community, he pointed out, several public parking lots have been acquired and up to 14 are slated under terms of an $800,000 bond issue to be financed by a special tax levied on Silver Spring business properties.

Sauter said he would take it up with the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce and would confer with the county legislative delegation.

Md. Nets $13,000,000 On Sales in Half Year

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—Maryland's sales tax netted the State about 13 million dollars in the first half of the current fiscal year and will be about 60 per cent of the total collection when the books are closed June 30, tax officials estimated today.

On the basis of today's estimate, the tax will bring in $21,600,000 in its first year of operation.

Estimates of the annual yield of the levy, which became effective effective last July 1, vary from 30 million dollars to the $18,400,000 predicted when it was enacted by the Legislature.

Page County Holiday Ends for 3000 Pupils

Luray, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—An estimated 3000 Page County school children, who received an unexpected two-day holiday because of weather conditions, returned to classes today. Classes in all schools had been suspended since Monday morning, when Superintendent Cecil Graves sent the pupils back to their homes because of frozen water pipes and inadequate heat in school buildings, combined with icy road conditions, which hampered operation of school buses.

500 Tulips for Garden At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—More than 500 tulips are expected to be in bloom in the garden of the Mary Washington house here during Garden Week April 24 to May 1.

The gift of 500 bulbs representing 25 varieties by the Wayside Gardens of Mentor, Ohio, was announced today by Mrs. Wistar W. Braxton, president of the local branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

Cigarette Fire Fatal To Retired Mailman

Hillsboro, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—Garnett D. Conard, 65, a retired mail carrier, was burned to death in his home near Harpers Ferry early today.

Mr. Conard was found unconscious in his bed by members of the Brunswick (Md.) Fire Department, who answered the call after the fire was discovered by a relative. He died a short time later.

Firemen said the fire, which badly damaged two rooms of the house, apparently started when the mattress on the bed was ignited by a cigarette.

Mr. Conard, who has been spending part of his time in Washington since his retirement several years ago, is survived by his wife and five daughters, Mrs. Theodore Manuel, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. Robert Towles, Mrs. Rudolph Earman and Mrs. Charles McKnight, all of Washington.

'Safe Driver' Gets Award

Winchester, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl).—Halford Baker, 28, a driver for Railway Express, has been awarded this city's first "safe driver of the month" award, sponsored jointly by the Junior Board of Trade and the Winchester-Frederick County Safety Council.

Four Injured in Fires

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—A series of fires broke out in the early morning in the Baltimore area today, forcing about 70 persons to flee into freezing weather and causing the injury of four of them.

Postlude

Thibaud Heard With Symphony

By Paul Hume

The Philadelphia Orchestra played what we hope will be its only "old favorites" program of the season Tuesday night under the direction of Alexander Hilsberg.

Jacques Thibaud, famous French violinist, not heard in this country for more than a decade, was soloist in the A Major, or "Turkish," concerto of Mozart. Thibaud, one of the great artists of his instrument, played with perfect style, and fine feeling for the sense and shape of Mozart's pearling phrases. His tone was extremely small, a shortcoming of not too great consequence in Mozart's concertos.

Hilsberg, who conducted one of the orchestra's finest concerts last season, continues to display a sound knowledge of conducting technique. His players could find little difficulty in producing what he asked for years of playing first chair violin have given him ample opportunity to learn the secrets of clear directing.

Opening the concert with Leo Weiner's scholarly adaptation of Bach's C Major Toccata and Fugue, from which Hilsberg regrettably omitted the moving adagio section, the program closed with the third symphony of Beethoven.

The symphony, known for generations as the "Eroica," found itself in familiar hands, both in playing and conducting. What piece has this or any other orchestra played more often? Not many.

Moderate tempi and close attention to articulation of rapid passages gave the work a feeling of extreme clarity, but there was little excitement in the proceedings.

Alexandria Woman Is Kenmore Trustee

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 28 (Spl.).—The Kenmore Association, which has restored and is preserving the home of Betty Washington Lewis, sister of George Washington, has elected Mrs. Charles Rollins of Alexandria to its board of trustees. She succeeds Mrs. William A. Bell, who died recently after serving 23 years as a trustee.

Mrs. Herman O. Swanson was appointed general chairman of the reception that the Kenmore Association will give in honor of members of the Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution, who will hold their annual conference here March 18 and 19.

Anne Arundel Vote Lists Open Monday

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 28 (AP).—Permanent registration of Anne Arundel County voters will begin next Monday.

Frank H. Stockett, chairman of the board of election supervisors, said his office in the court house basement will be open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Mondays through Fridays, and 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays. Voters now on the registration books will not have to register again under the permanent system.

Maryland to Study Aid to Alcoholics

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—A seven-member committee to study State aid to chronic alcoholics was appointed today by Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes, charman of the Maryland Legislative Council.

The committe includes:

W. Carl Lohmeyer, Baltimore, chairman; H. E. Broadnax, Baltimore; Senator Roy T. Davis, Montgomery County; Seith W. Heartfield and Robert Van Horn, Baltimore; Delegate Noel S. Cook, Allegany County, and the Rev. Richard H. Baker, Baltimore.

Lohmeyer, Broadnax, Heartfield, and Van Horn were members of a similar committee appointed by the then Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

"Averaged 4 replies a day to our Post 'Apartment Wanted' ad"

"We wanted an apartment badly after six months in one room," says Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, employed in the National Institute of Government Purchasing . . . "yet we didn't want just any place. For one thing, we hoped to locate not far from Union Station, because my husband commutes every day to Baltimore. So we placed an ad in The Washington Post and let it run nine days. It brought a wonderful response—an average of about four offers a day. We looked at several and chose exactly the place we had in mind."

Veteran Cab Drivers Will Work for March of Dimes Again

From 11 a. m. until midnight you'll find a string of Veterans Cabs in front of the Warner Theater, 13th st. nw. between E and F.

Passengers engaging those cabs will pay their fares in advance—not to the driver, but into the March of Dimes wishing well in front of the Warner.

The drivers will get nothing; even the tips go into the wishing well. What's more, each man will pay for the operating expense of his cab out of his own pocket.

The boys at Veterans wanted to do the same thing last year, from in front of the Capitol Theater. But the City Stepfathers said they'd tie up F st. traffic.

The hackers came to me with anger blazing from their eyes. "We've got a right to do our part for a good cause," they growled. "Fix it up."

So we "fixed them up" with a stand in front of the Warner, with traffic authorities, police, and the theater's management cutting through red tape to make the project possible.

The boys raised $632 for the fight against polio, and I thought that would make them very happy. But they weren't satisfied.

"Those last-minute arrangements didn't give us a chance to let everybody know in time," they told me. "We could have hit a thousand bucks."

So if you need a cab in the vicinity of the Warner today, let's help them hit that G-note for the March of Dimes.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Five puppies; two females of Irish terrier extraction, two males and a female with leanings toward collie." (Overlook 2328.)

"Four-month-old female scottie pup, interesting background." (Woodley 0538.)

"Pretty gray and white female kitten, 10 months old." (Wisconsin 9304.)

"Five puppies, mixed breed." (Shepherd 8327.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Prohaska, 504 Maple rd. se.: I'm going to answer your note quickly, before others ask the same question. In making a line cut of Irwin's cartoon, the engravers inadvertently reversed the drawing. This, of course, made the lettering on the cab read backwards. It showed up in the first edition as "ixat" and "baC wolleY." A new cut was rushed through in time for the city edition, so most of our readers didn't even see the other one. But I'll agree with you that it certainly was gnisufnoc.

ALARM CLOCK BLUES

It's what I've been dreading—
A new day once more.

Oh, how I dread to leave my bed;
I think you know my plight.
The face I fed, the book I read—
They kept me up last night.

INFERNAL REVENUE DEPT.

I understand that Lever Brothers is about to spring the granddaddy of all radio contests—$100,000 in prizes, including five $3000 mink coats.

Local contest addicts who love to tackle everything from Mrs. Hush to itsy bitsy $5 contests will therefore be interested in a rumor that's floating around town.

The Internal Revenue Bureau usually holds that prize money is taxable income. And the rumor is that the bureau monitors all the quiz shows it can, and jots down the names and addresses of the winners.

In addition to cash, merchandise prizes must be declared at their "fair market value" (which might raise quite a controversial issue in these times).

The only exception is in the event a contestant refuses to do anything whatever to earn the prize. Like the lady who was informed by the Pot O'Gold that she had won a young fortune.

She refused to make a personal appearance on the show, use or endorse the product, or permit her name to be used in any testimonials. She just took the dough.

That, according to the tax people, made her prize a nontaxable gift.

MOUNT VERNON OR BUST

Hacker William Hughes of 6510 Ridge dr., Brookmont, Md., will testify to the veracity of the old saw, "everything happens to a cab driver."

During the height of our recent snowstorm a fare got into Bill's hack at the Statler and calmly announced:

"I want to see Mount Vernon before I catch my plane at 5 o'clock."

At first District Liner Hughes thought the man was kidding. But when it became evident that he wasn't, off they started for Mount Vernon.

It was a difficult trip, made in a driving storm that all but obliterated the entire countryside. But the fare was happy, in spite of the poor visibility. Bill says:

"He invited me to have lunch with him in Alexandria on the way back, and seemed to be completely satisfied that he hadn't been forced to leave Washington without seeing Mount Vernon. But I suspect that he'll always remember it as a Colonial style igloo."

SIGN OF THE TIMES

My favorite grocer says that people must be having trouble paying their Christmas bills. He can usually tell.

In normal times, the kids come to his store with dollars and fives. Now they're bringing the exact change.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Joe Mankiewicz, the movie producer, was in the Stork Club one night with Jessica Tandy and her husband, Hume Cronyn. "The question most frequently asked me," the producer told them, "is 'What does a producer do?' I'll illustrate this with an allegory." He told of a writer, a director and a producer, lost in the desert, who wandered off in search of food. The writer saw a rock and had an inspiration to move it. It took all his strength, but he moved it and underneath he found a large can of tomato juice. The director realized its possibilities, drew a knife and opened the can. Just as they were about to drink, the producer said: "Wait. This will make it better," and poured some desert sand and refuse into it.

HONOR: On February 12 the C. C. N. Y. Alumni Assn. will annnounce its John H. Finley Award, to be presented annually for distinguished service to the City of New York . . . John D. Rockefeller, jr., was designated to be the recipient this year, particularly because of his leadership in bringing the U. N. to New York . . . Rockefeller declined the honor, stating that he was grateful—but that he didn't consider himself worthy of it.

PRICE: This is a story told in Mexico City about the late wealthy, powerful Maximino Avila Camacho, whose brother was President. His word was law and none dared contradict him . . . One day he presented a fur coat to a young lady. It was of inferior quality, but he told her: "It cost me 20,000 pesos" . . . The lady thanked him, and the next day she went to the fur shop, selected a mink coat priced at 20,000 pesos and told the proprietor: "I'll take this mink, in return for this coat. Senor Camacho told me he paid you 20,000 pesos for it" . . . The furrier surrendered the mink coat; Senor Camacho paid him the difference.

WEALTH: Albert D. Lasker, who retired from active business a few years ago, has been devoting his time and money to the sponsorship of civic causes involving the health and welfare of the community . . . "All this is costing you a lot of money," one of his friends reminded him . . . "If a man has a lot of money and doesn't use it," explained Lasker, "then it means that he hasn't money. It means that money has him."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Foskett's Exit Involved Vaughan

By Drew Pearson

For 13 long years under Franklin Roosevelt the Navy had the inner track at the White House. Now, under former Captain Harry Truman, former commander of Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, the situation is reversed.

Political reports from various parts of the country indicate that Truman's loyalty to his personal doctor, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, will cost him perhaps a million votes. The public seems to resent the fact that Graham, sitting at the right hand of the President, speculated in the grain market, even more than they resent the speculation of Ed Pauley, who wasn't so close to the President. Nevertheless, Truman remains loyal to the Army doctor.

Meanwhile, almost unnoticed by the public is the fact that Rear Admiral James Foskett has left the White House for "sea duty." Admiral Foskett is the President's former naval aidee. Actually the reason for his exit is not necessity for going to sea, but the fact that he had a row with the Army—the Army in this case represented by Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan.

General Vaughan, a former manufacturer's representative in St. Louis, who used to train with Truman in the Missouri National Guard, has got the President into all sorts of personal pickles. But despite that fact, he continues to be one of the most influential White House hangers-on.

Cake for Jones

It looks as if former Congressman Robert Jones of Ohio wanted to have his cake and eat it too. Though now a member of the highly important Federal Communications Commission, Jones went back to Congress last week to help lobby through a piece of legislation which is God's gift to the power companies and also strikes a body blow at Western reclamation.

When Jones was first appointed to the FCC last summer, he continued to sit in Congress in order to finish his work on the Appropriations Committee where he did his best to meat-ax appropriations for Western irrigation, power and reclamation. One of Jones' pet schemes was to juggle interest repayments on Western reclamation so as to help the private power companies.

Last week this same issue came up for debate in the House of Representatives after a compromise had been worked out by GOP Congressman Dick Welch of San Francisco and unanimously approved by the Public Lands and Surveys Committee.

But Old Guard Republicans, backed by a powerful private utilities lobby, opposed the compromise. For some time the debate seesawed back and forth. On every vote the power lobby lost. Finally, Congressman Charlie Halleck of Indiana, sympathetic to the power lobby, moved adjournment.

That night the power lobby boys took advantage of the lull. They rallied their forces and had all their Congressmen on deck when debate opened next day. Also on deck was former Congressman Robert Jones of Ohio, who for years had fought the power lobby battle on the Appropriations Committee, but now is supposed to be spending all his time on the Federal Communications Commission.

In the end, he got his way. The power lobby, defeated the day before, rallied enough votes to send the compromise reclamation bill back to committee.

Jones and his power lobby friends were so strong that the reclamation program was set back even to the year 1902, at which time Teddy Roosevelt first started in earnest the water development of the West.

Communists Get Mad

The Communist newspaper in Paris, Humanite, recently published a violent diatribe against this columnist and the Friendship Train, among other things accusing the people of Strasbourg of spending more money on Friendship Train posters than the cost of friendship food. Here is the reason why the Communists were sore.

When several floods hit eastern France, the Friendship Train committee in Paris rushed several truckloads of flour to Strasbourg and the surrounding area. This flour was made into small loaves of white bread and distributed to the homeless with a label which read "From the Friendship Train." The people of Strasbourg were so delighted at getting this food that they themselves took the initiative and printed these labels.

Following this, a group of Strasbourg citizens set up a committee called "Pain de l'amitie," which has been producing 10,000 "petit-pain" (white rolls) each day from flour brought in by the Friendship Train. These rolls are given to school children daily, together with a small portion of sweet milk which arrived on the Friendship Train, plus soup made from Friendship Train dried beans.

This program will last approximately two months and should have an important effect upon the health of the children. Apparently the Communists also thought it would have an important effect upon their future friendship with the United States.

Auburn Slogan-Coiner

Auburn, N. Y., is famous for its stay-at-home folks. Guests at the huge State prison there are at-home practically all the time. However, Auburn allowed two of its leading citizens to migrate to Washington, D. C. And Washingtonians would gladly give one of them back to Auburn.

He is John Taber, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and watchdog of the Federal budget. The other Auburnite is Taber's secretary, Amelia Aveduti, and Washingtonians are quite happy to have her around. In addition to being one of the prettiest and most popular damsels on Capitol Hill, Miss Aveduti also is a slogan-coiner.

The other day, hoping to get her boss in a good mood so he would excuse her from work early, she concocted a new slogan for Taber's main obsession, the Republican Party. On a big cardboard poster, which she placed prominently in the office, she wrote:

"Don't be a Dem fool—Vote Republican in 1948."

Her plans, however, backfired. For the slogan reminded Taber that he had to write a long letter to the Republican National Committee. Miss Aveduti dutifully took the long dictation, though it caused her to miss a dinner engagement. But the following day she really hit the ceiling.

When she looked at her slogan, she discovered that some mischievous visitor had inserted "and" before the word "vote".

Churches Give $32,000 In Federation Drive

Churches have contributed approximately $32,000 to date in the Washington Federation of Churches' annual budget drive.

According to the Rev. Purcell Storey, director of the Federation's finance department, that amount will be considerably increased at the second report dinner meeting Friday at 6 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

The 1948 operating budget of the Federation is $80,000, of which $53,000 is being raised by the churches. The balance has already been assured through special income of the Federation.

A MESSAGE TO THE HEARTS OF WASHINGTON ON BEHALF OF THE METROPOLITAN POLICE BOYS' CLUB BY

Tom C. Clark

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES

A good start doesn't necessarily preclude a poor finish but it helps a lot to forestall one. Give the lads a good start and the race is won—American lads are that way. The start, however, is strictly up to us. We write the rules of the race and enforce them. No lad deserves to be penalized by our neglect. We must lend a hand at the start. That's the keynote of the Police Boys' Club program . . . Good starts make for good finishes. In a metropolitan area there are so many opportunities for a poor start. Footloose boys with undirected energies to expand, will find them in every one of our alleyways. These tomorrow's citizens play with real and toy firearms, read sordid literature, take part in gang hideouts, in tawdry, small-chance rackets, and mix up with wrong companions. Don't let a possible poor start destroy a youngster's chance today to become a good citizen tomorrow. Enroll yourself and a boy by joining the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police, D. C. It's our opportunity to give him his opportunity. Let's do it now.
